Two Women In Dillinger Case Seized

One Identifies Tipster Girl as Chicago Waitress.

Police Press Hunt for Hideouts, Loot; Body Is Taken Home.

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—Two women, one reported by police to have accompanied John Dillinger to the North Side theater where he was slain, were taken into custody tonight.

As a result of the detention of the pair the Chicago Tribune declared the mysterious "woman in red," either Dillinger's last sweetheart or the woman entitled to the reward for his death, had been identified as Mrs. Rita Keele, Calumet City and Gary divorcee, also known as Polly Hamilton.

Government agents could not be reached, as they were busy massing a drive in the Wilson avenue district to apprehend those who harbored Dillinger and to discover his latest hideout.

Women Arrested.

The women held at the Sheffield Avenue Police Station were Mrs. Anna Sage, 43, and Mrs. Maxine Dunn, waitress who worked at the same North Side cafe where Mrs. Keele worked periodically.

Mrs. Dunn identified the picture of a comely brunette Dillinger carried in his watch as that of Mrs. Keele, as did other employes of the cafe.

She was quoted as stating she knew Mrs. Keele had been going with Dillinger for some time and believed that she was with him at the theater Sunday night.

In one of the two places where she lived, police today found a red dress. Mrs. Sage lived in the same building where Mrs. Keele maintained a second room, and police were endeavoring to determine, if she, too, accompanied Dillinger to the theater.

Body Taken Home.

Dillinger, arch enemy of society for 14 short months, traveled a familiar trail today, as his body was hauled cross-country in a hearse by his aged father to the simple farm whence he sprang. Two Federal bullets had ended his violent career of 15 murders, numerous robberies and lucky, but spectacular, escapes.

The body arrived at Mooresville, Ind., his boyhood home, shortly after 6 p. m. (C. S. T.). The basket in which the corpse of the slain desperado was carried from Chicago was taken at once to an undertaker's establishment where the body will be prepared for burial tomorrow.

The bronzed father of a swash-buckling yokel sat stoically beside the driver of the hearse, wondering how he would pay the funeral expenses of the desperado, from whose loot of thousands he never accepted one cent.

Chaco Peace Plan Drafted

Argentina Sends Concrete Proposal to Bolivian Capital.

La Paz, Bolivia, July 24 (AP).—A concrete proposal for the settlement of the Chaco Boreal war between Bolivia and Paraguay, it was stated on good authority, was brought here from Buenos Aires today by Juan Valenzuela, Argentine minister.

No official statement was made at the ministry of foreign affairs. There was intense activity, which was assumed to have resulted from the proposals.

One high official said the Bolivian attitude toward ending the four-year conflict which has taken thousands of lives involved suspension of hostilities, with a study of the controversy following immediately.

Neutral countries in South America have been greatly interested in recent weeks in bringing the war to an end and the world powers have been engaged in putting an arms embargo into effect.

The arms embargo, sponsored by the League of Nations, became almost unanimous today with the adhesion of Italy, France and Spain. These three nations notified the League of Nations that they are taking steps to put the embargo into force. Nations which already have shut off arms from the belligerents are Great Britain, the United States, Russia, Denmark, Argentina, Brazil and Switzerland.

"Sacred Wheat" Is Sent Arlington From France

In accordance with his custom he immediately dispatched packages of the wheat to Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., and cemeteries in Brittany and Corsica.

Byrd, Injured, Faces Weeks of Isolation

REAR ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD.

Little America, Antarctica, July 24 (U.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, with an injured arm, may have to spend several more weeks alone in his one-room hut at the advance weather base on Ross Barrier, it appeared tonight.

The last radio contact with Byrd was Friday, when he reported all was well. The tractor expedition of five men, led by his second in command, Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, left the same day—but Byrd has not yet been informed they were forced to turn back at 50-Mile Depot by blizzards which covered the

Hawaii Hails President in 21-Gun Salute

Governor Is Received by Roosevelt, Who Then Goes Fishing.

Kailua, Hawaii, July 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt, whose popularity in Hawaii was more than assured when it was learned he liked to fish, today became the first President of the United States to visit this Territory—and found the swordfish ready and waiting for him.

Veteran fishermen, such as Bob Leslie, of Kailua, declared the swordfish and the tuna were running today as well as any time in the past two years.

This kona, or leeward, coast of Hawaii, is noted for its game fishing, catches including tuna, ulua, dolphin, ono and the black marlin swordfish. The record catch so far is a black marlin weighing 568 pounds. It was brought in by F. A. S. Waldron, of Honolulu, last year.

The naval cruiser Houston, which left Panama Bay with the President July 12, but laid over at Cocos Island one day for fishing and relaxation, dropped anchor in the bay here some 900 yards offshore shortly after 5 a. m. today.

Gets 21-Gun Salute.

Followed by the cruiser New Orleans, the Houston nosed her way gently into the harbor between arching rainbows formed by the morning sun playing upon offshore showers. A 21-gun salute was fired from the Coast Guard cutter Itasca, which had brought Territorial Governor Joseph Poindexter here to greet the Chief Executive.

President Roosevelt had caught his first glimpse of the dusk-browned Laval Mountains from the Houston's decks by the light of the full Hawaiian moon last night before retiring. His first view of the bright islands was not that seen by the tourist, who instead watches

'Flying Brothers' Fly On.

Meridian, Miss., July 24 (AP).—The "flying brothers," Al and Fred Key, zoomed overhead today in their plane, the "Ole Miss," in their attempt to set a new endurance flight record. They went aloft last Thursday night. Tonight they had been up 97 hours.

Boy Terrorist Is Hanged as Dollfuss Foe

Vienna, July 24 (AP).—A 22-year-old Socialist, who said that "my ideals are more important than my life," was hanged in the Vienna district prison courtyard tonight as the Dollfuss government carried out for the first time in months its threat of death for terrorists.

Just before the youth, Josef Gerl, went to the gallows, a companion, Rudolf Anzboeck, who was sentenced along with him in connection with a bombing and the shooting of a policeman, received clemency from President Miklas, who reduced his punishment to life imprisonment.

While preparations for the hanging were under way, police arrested 300 Nazis and Socialists, bringing the total under arrest in a general roundup to 1,500.

The other 1,200 had been taken into custody earlier by political police, who claimed to have evidence that Socialists, Communsts and Nazis had merged into a common front against the government. Practically all of this group were Socialists.

Three days ago the two socialists bombed a railway on the bank of the Danube River. They tried to escape into Czecholslovakia, and a policeman who intercepted them was shot and seriously wounded.

While bombing—or even possession of explosives—calls for a death sentence under the new decrees of Chancellor Dollfuss, the President commuted the sentence of Anzboeck, but allowed Gerl to hang, on

Iceland Goes "Pink" As Progressives Rule

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 24 (U.P.).—Iceland went "pink" today when Socialists and Left Wing farmers formed a cabinet under Jonas Jonsson as premier. The previous government was a coalition under Premier Asgeir Asgeirsson, comprising the Progressives (of which both Jonsson and Asgeirsson are members) and the Home Rule party.

Nation's Heat Toll Now 700; D. C. Cooler, Sees More Relief

10 a. m.	80	2 p. m.	87
11 a. m.	83	3 p. m.	88
Noon	85	4 p. m.	89
1 p. m.	88	5 p. m.	87

Puffing its torrid breath through the Nation's granaries and live stock centers, the Middle Western and Great Plains States, the heat wave yesterday ran its total death toll to an estimated 700.

Meanwhile, Washington escaped with a mere maximum of 89 degrees at 4 p. m., with predictions of a slight rise in temperature today.

The Weather Bureau at Chicago reported a high-pressure area sweeping down from Alaska which will bring cooler weather possibly today to the Great Lakes region, according to the Associated Press. It may not reach the stricken lakes cities and their surrounding agricultural areas until tonight, however.

The Associated Press reported the temperature at Chicago jumped 30 degrees within five hours to establish a new all-time high record in the history of the Loop, with 103.2 degrees at noon. An hour later it had climbed to 104, and the Weather Bureau predicted the mercury would catapult to 106 in the absence of the usual breeze that sweeps over Lake Michigan. The previous all-time high was established July 23, 1901, when 103 was recorded.

Semi-mad, red-eyed cattle, crazed by thirst, faced death from starvation or lack of water on the great central plains. Desperate stockmen sought to market unusually large shipments, the Associated Press said, to save them from ruin, but the live stock centers were glutted and urged that additional shipments be withheld. In Chicago yards alone were 75,000 head of cattle, handling of which was threatened by a strike.

New Deal's Foes Control Rhode Island

Gerry, a Smith Diehard, Expected to Defeat Sen. Hebert.

Following is the second of a series of articles by Elliott Thurston of The Post's National News Bureau on the economic and political situations in New England. Later Mr. Thurston will write from Midwestern and Southern centers.

By Elliott Thurston.

Providence, R. I., July 24.—Rhode Island is seething with a political ferment in which erstwhile anti-Roosevelt forces are on top and the divided, demoralized Republicans a submerged tenth.

Former Senator Peter Goelet Gerry is staging a come-back, riding over the New Deal forces as readily as his former "Stop-Roosevelt" cohorts in neighboring Massachusetts are trampling upon the original FDR's. Unless there is an upset between now and election day, the Republican incumbent, Senator Felix Hebert, will lose his toga.

Yet, as in the Bay State, the prospective Democratic victory hardly can be construed as a triumph for the New Deal. Gerry held out to the end for Al Smith against Roosevelt in the Chicago convention. He has suffered the same pains and penalties that have been meted out by the New Deal patronage distributors to obdurate anti-Roosevelt ians in the Bay State. There is a curious parallel between Gerry in Rhode Island and Senator Walsh in Massachusetts. Both are due to win this fall. Both have been on the New Deal blacklist.

Old Parties in Fearful Row.

Rarely in its history has the smallest, but most densely populated, State in the Union developed so much political family trouble. Both old parties are in the midst of fearful hair-pulling and eye-gouging. The White House cue is to hold aloof—the more the better. Both in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, the Messrs. Farley and Howe have used the patronage power in vain so far as gaining control or producing harmony is concerned.

Gerry, like Walsh, has had no patronage. Gerry is Democratic National committeeman, but he might as well have been a Republican for all his word has counted at Washington. He sat in the Senate from 1917 to 1929. In 1930 Jesse H. Metcalf nosed him out by 2,515 votes. Since then Gerry has concentrated on getting back. And this looks like his year, thanks to a seemingly hopeless rift in the Republican ranks and despite terrific turmoil in his own camp.

At Outs With the Irish.

For Gerry is not a popular candidate. He is still an outlander, an importation from New York, in the eyes of the Rhode Island electorate. Like other wealthy New Yorkers who have found the Providence Plantations a happier hunting ground, Gerry is not of the local, clannish citizenry. His pocketbook and paper have overcome what would otherwise be insurmountable obstacles.

He has not only been at outs with the New Dealers, but the sons of the Emerald Isle who have generally

40-Mile Gale Hits Texas Coast City

Port Arthur, Tex., July 24 (U.P.).—A 40-mile wind buffeted Port Arthur tonight as a disturbance of mounting intensity was reported traveling across the Gulf of Mexico toward the Texas coast.

At Sabine Pass, east of here, the wind was blowing 50 miles an hour High tide was running.

Messages from Washington at 4 p. m. placed the center of the disturbance about 200 miles south of Morgan City, La. The report said it was moving 14 miles an hour in a northerly direction and slowly increasing in intensity, with winds of gale force near the center.

Head of Saar Police Is Assassins' Target

Saarbruecken, Germany, July 24 (AP).—Police Commissioner Machts narrowly escaped assassination today when two men, jumping from a street car, fired at him.

Machts ducked behind a bus and fired six shots in reply, wounding one assailant severely. Machts, who serves under the League of Nations mandate over the Saar region, is a German who fled from his country when Chancellor Hitler seized power.

Death Reveals Wealth Of "Poor" Heat Victim

Peoria, Ill., July 24 (U.P.)—Overcome by the heat in a hotel room today, George Ryno, 45-year-old chimney sweep, died a short time later in the charity ward at St. Francis Hospital.

"Here are some old papers he had in his pocket," hospital attendants told the coroner. The "old papers" proved to be $16,275 in bank deposit certificates.

Plane Crash Kills Builder In Delaware

Allen Lauritsen, 40, Hurled to Death While Stunting.

Sportsman, Aviator and Architect Did Work in D. C.

Rehoboth Beach, Del., July 24 (Spl.).—In full view of hundreds of horrified vacationists here, Allen Lauritsen, 40, Delaware's most prominent architect and builder, crashed to his death late today in his monoplane as the climax of a daring stunt flight over the resort.

Alone in the plane, which he had learned to fly about five years ago, Lauritsen fell to his death but 200 yards off shore directly in front of the Henlopen Hotel, whose porches and nearby beaches were crowded with persons who witnessed the crash.

Washed ashore a few minutes later by pounding surf, Lauritsen was dead of a broken neck and a fractured skull. Tangled wreckage of his plane was pulled to the beach soon afterward by the Lewes Coast Guard, which sent out a boat shortly after the plane crashed.

Barely Missed Home.

Prior to heading out to sea, Lauritsen had been stunting over the city and at one time barely missed the home of Dr. Frank Greer, prominent physician. Earlier he had taken up Robert Kennett, son-in-law of H. Rodney Sharp, official of the DuPont Company, and a recent bridegroom.

After leaving Kennett on the beach, Lauritsen headed seaward and for a quarter of an hour preceding the fatal crash zig-zagged his plane up and down the coast, skimming close to the water's surface at times and spiraling upward at others. The large beach crowd received a thrill from watching his maneuvers. None was alarmed for his safety, as he was known as a skillful pilot.

Many of Delaware's leading buildings were designed and built by Lauritsen, a University of Delaware graduate and a resident of Wilmington since youth. He is survived by a widow and three daughters.

At Height of Success.

Lauritsen had won a reputation as an athlete in college and throughout manhood had kept up his interest in the strenuous life. Five years ago he took up flying, buying his own plane, and became noted as one of the leading sportsman pilots of the East Coast.

The architect was at the height of his success. Only recently he completed an elaborate summer home for Mr. Sharp at Rehoboth. He was the builder of the Delaware legislative building at Dover, Del. Among the many homes for which he drafted plans was that of John Lewis Smith, prominent Washington lawyer, who lives at 2424 Tracy place northwest, in the Capital.

The body of the sportsman was taken to Wilmington tonight.

Iraq Flight Delayed.

Wasaga Beach, Ont., July 24 (AP).—Leonard Reid and J. R. Ayling, British fliers, because of sweeping winds today postponed until tomorrow the take-off on a projected 6,300-mile flight to Baghdad, Iraq, in quest of the long-distance flying record.

Cattle Perish in Pens As Chicago Stock Yard Strike Paralyzes Trade

U. S. Cattle Buying Is Halted by Strike

Congested Markets Also Blamed for Temporary Suspension; 700,000 Head Already Marked for Slaughter.

A strike in the Chicago stock yards and congestion in other livestock centers caused Farm Administration officials yesterday to suspend temporarily the relief cattle purchasing program in the Midwest drought area.

The suspension order was issued immediately following an announcement by Federal Emergency Relief officials that 400,000 families in the drought area have been added to their rolls. They said they had set aside $20,000,000 for relief for the needy in the area for this month alone.

The Farm Administration order will also seriously disrupt the relief cattle purchasing program. Officials said yesterday that through the Farm Credit Administration, the FERA has taken an average of 12 cattle each from 83,000 farms and ranches.

The movement of 500,000 head of cattle was reported under way from farms to processing plants to be canned. Another 200,000, according to relief officials, are en route to Southern pastures for fattening.

The cattle doomed for slaughter, according to a FERA estimate, contain enough meat to furnish a year's meat ration to 3,000,000 people.

Farm administration officials explained that they hoped to resume the program in a few days to meet the acute situation in the drought area. Much of the cattle purchased have been from farmers who have been forced to sell, it was said, rather than allow their herds to starve.

The Chicago strike, according to an official statement, has slowed down the handling of shipments there and the congestion elsewhere was reported officially to be due to the Government's purchases.

Victor A. Christgau, acting farm administrator, announced that a committee of representatives of the Farm Administration and the Relief Administration would be created to stimulate the processing of cattle by Union Balks Agreement to Permit Sales After Opening.

U. S. Order Halts Further Shipments

The huge Chicago stock yards was paralyzed by a strike when the 800 members of the Livestock Handlers' Union walked out.

Seventy-five thousand animals, most of them unfed since the handlers abandoned their posts, bleated and milled in their unprotected inclosures. An uncounted number of them dropped dead as the hottest weather the city ever experienced—104.8 degrees—transformed their habitat into a Death Valley.

All but 10,000 or 15,000 of the mammoth livestock herd were listed as distressed when the Government brought them here from parched prairies. Most of these were already gaunt and emaciated from months spent on the dusty plains with inadequate food and water.

Traders Tend Cattle.

A blazing sun beat down on the crazy-quilt of corrals. Commission men, although prevented by the union adherents from leading any of the suffering animals to a merciful death in the slaughtering houses, filled their drinking troughs and sprayed with hose those which seemed most likely to succumb.

Some of the animals, staggering from starvation and weakened by the heat, were shot down by Government inspectors and hauled away. Federal authorities were urged to withhold further consignments of drought-stricken kine. A major portion of the thousands of these cattle the Government bought had been sent here.

The Farm Administration in Washington answered the plea by ordering a temporary suspension of the buying of cattle in the arid areas because of the Chicago situation and because other markets are congested.

Appeal to Washington.

The National Livestock Marketing Association, representing some 300,000 livestock raisers and feeders, appealed to Washington authorities to bring about a settlement of the strike or to at least effect a 72-hour truce to enable a cleanup of the suffering stock already in

Allen Assails Relief Plans; Demands Jobs

Closes Out-of-Work Tour; Scores Employment Offices Run by U.S.

Fresh from a week passed in other cities, disguised as a job hunter in need of public aid, District Commissioner George E. Allen yesterday announced his purpose to reorganize District relief work with first emphasis put on getting jobs for those seeking them.

Elwood Street, director of public welfare; Miss Alice Hill, director of emergency relief, and Leroy A. Halbert, who has charge of relief statistics, have been summoned to a conference at 11 a. m. today to go over "the whole relief question" with the Commissioner.

"It's jobs people want and we haven't been going about providing them in the right way," Commissioner Allen said.

"I have just passed a week traveling through Milwaukee, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago. I studied our employment system at first hand and talked with hundreds of persons who were in the same fix they thought I was in.

"Our employment system is wrong from beginning to end. The snootiest people on God's green earth are to be found around the employment agencies run by the Federal Government. When a man asks them for a job they act as though they were doing you a favor just to let you make application.

"Many of the offices closed at noon. You'd think they'd stay open all day trying to get people off relief rolls and back into jobs.

"There is going to be a new kind of employment service in Washington. The Federal Government can go ahead and run its own employment agency, if it wants to, but if it doesn't run the kind of a one I know we should have I'll organize our own District service."

State Orders Minneapolis Strike End

Governor Warns Factions and Moves 1,000 More Guards to City.

Minneapolis, July 24 (AP).—State officials laid down the law to both sides in the truck drivers strike today and moved 1,000 more National Guardsmen into the city.

Settle amicably within 24 hours or the military will take absolute control—that was the edict given both drivers and employers as Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Mayor A. A. Bainbridge and two Federal mediators framed final terms for ending the eight-day strike.

Minor disturbances accompanied the walkout of laundry and dry cleaners union members, preceding funeral services for Henry Ness, a picket fatally wounded when 68 persons, all but a few of them shot by police shotguns, were injured last Friday in attempting to halt a truck of merchandise. Scores of union men "laid off" to attend the funeral.

Officials, determined to end the disorder, went ahead with what Gov. Olson said was "a confidential plan of procedure."

He refused to confirm or deny terms which an informant said were to be submitted to both sides.

If extreme measures must be taken, the informant said, "not a truck will move or a wheel turn in Minneapolis except by order of the military. No strikers' meetings will be allowed."

He has opposed continuance of police convoys for truck movements and has said that upon the answer of both sides to questions put them by the mediators depended the future of "police convoys or military intervention."

A few trucks moved under police convoy.

The Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, Federal mediators, await-

Father Admits Killing Baby For Insurance to Support Twin

Houston, Tex., July 24 (AP).—E. H. Stuart, 28, unemployed, confessed today, police said, that he killed one of his young twin daughters for her $400 insurance so he would be able to support the other.

Blue-eyed, flaxen-haired Dortha Stuart, 4, was found dead in Cypress Creek, 17 miles north of Houston, early today. Her father previously had told police she either had been kidnaped or strayed from his automobile while it was parked here last night. For six hours he held to his story, then broke down and signed a confession.

Detective Lieut. A. C. Thornton, chief of the police homicide squad, quoted Stuart as saying he held the little girl's head under water for three minutes with his hands around her throat so she couldn't swallow. He said he kept a tight grip on her neck while she kicked and thrashed.

Officers said Stuart told them he had "too many children"—that he conceived the idea of killing one of them for the insurance and that he intended to use part of the money to bury the dead child and the rest to support Dorth, the surviving twin.

Hour after hour, authorities accused Stuart, who came here three months ago from Henryetta, Okla., of killing Dortha. They pointed out they had discovered that a $400 insurance policy on the child's life had been delivered to him yesterday—that he had reported he took the girl to a picture show, but couldn't tell them anything about the picture.

Still the young father repeated, "I didn't do it—I didn't do it."

Finally he confessed, Lieut. Thornton said.

The child's body was found this morning under Cypress Creek Bridge, in a shallow pool of water. There were scratches on her body and her lips were bruised. Her face was scratched, as if it had been pressed roughly against gravel.

Dortha's mother died last December.

Duce Gives Relief Tips to Hopkins

Rome, July 24 (U.P.).—Premier Mussolini today received Harry L. Hopkins, United States relief administrator, in a cordial audience which lasted 15 minutes.

Hopkins, who came to Rome following a European visit of inspection of the relief administrations of the different governments, discussed Italian relief methods with Il Duce. He said later that he had received several good pointers from Mussolini.

Later Pope Pius gave an audience to both Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins and cordially discussed with them the United States recovery programs, expressing the hope of their final success.

Johnson to See Mother Before Returning East

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson was awaiting repairs to his plane in Coronado Beach, Calif., yesterday and officials have said he would hop off either today or tomorrow for Okmulgee, Okla., to spend several days with his mother before returning to Washington.

Lieut. Kilbourne Johnston, the general's son, and other NRA officials said they had not been advised by the administrator when he would reach this city.

$20,000 Cargo of Gold Is Stolen From Plane

London, July 24 (U.P.).—Between 600 and 700 ounces of gold, valued roughly at $20,000, was discovered to be missing at Cairo while en route by airplane from South Africa to London, Imperial Airways announced today.

It was believed to have been stolen while in transit from the airliner at Heliopolis Airport and taken away by seaplane.

Rhode Island's New Deal Foes Control State

had the loudest and last word in Providence, as they have in Boston, have found him no blood-brother. He does not speak their language, any more than does Gov. Theodore Francis Green, another—in their minds—blue stocking in the rough game of politics.

The prospect of having Gerry and Theodore Francis monopolize the State's prize plums in this hour of Democratic resurrection is too much for such veterans as Col. Patrick Henry Quinn, who was for 30 years a leader of Rhode Island's Democracy, for 16 years the Democratic National committeeman. Not that the colonel wants preferment for himself. But he feels, pardonably, that one of his own lads is entitled either to the Senate seat or the Governor's chair. Yet Gerry is demanding the Senate place, and Theodore Francis Green has announced his candidacy for reelection as Governor.

When Irish eyes should be smiling, especially at the discord in the Republican camp, they see the Gerry-Green monopolization of the best places and, worse yet, they perceive tariff heresy in Washington. For it so happens that Col. Quinn is a former president of the American Lace Manufacturers Association, president of the Phenix Lace Works and treasurer of the Warwick Lace Works. And it was Secretary of Agriculture Wallace who testified that the lace industry was a typical tariff-protected industry which should be eliminated. In fact, it was Secretary Wallace's one perfect example of the sort of industry which should and would be put out of business by the New Deal's scientific exercise of the recently-acquired reciprocal tariff-bargaining powers. Col. Quinn has fairly choked with rage ever since.

Young Mr. Quinn in Race.

Anyway, with his blessing, his nephew, Robert E. Quinn, 40, who was permitted to be Lieutenant Governor, is demanding the Governorship. And the colonel's cohorts are clamoring also to run Representative Francis B. Condon for the Senate in lieu of Gerry. Young Mr. Quinn is no namby-pamby. The Republicans of the State have not yet recovered from the shock of his strong-arm methods in railroading through to confirmation the nomination of Chief Edward J. Kelly of the Providence police force to be Superintendent of the State Police. Chief Kelly displaced one of Rhode Island's World War heroes, Col. Everitte St. J. Chaffee, once leader of famous Battery A.

By actual count there were 24 Republican votes against the ousting of Col. Chaffee. The highest possible combination of Democratic-Republican votes for Chief Kelly was 16. But young Mr. Quinn, presiding over the Senate, shouted, "All those - in-favor-say-aye-opposed-no-the-ayes-have-it" so fast and rapped his gavel so loudly that the opposition was both stunned and silenced. At least, their roars of angry dismay availed them nothing.

Then Mr. Quinn has been going about the State demanding income taxes "that will hit the big fellows." And he has wrung many a heart by his tales of how the industrialists used to work their employes from early dawn to late twilight at starvation wages. Also, Mr. Quinn has embraced the New Deal—save the anti-lace tariff ideas—with fervor and made promises in its name which make the Gerryites seem both chilly and unimaginative.

Green, the Adaptable Governor.

Just how this Democratic furore will come out remains to be seen. The odds are that Gerry will get the nomination as usual. And Theodore Francis Green has displayed such ardor for Col. Quinn and his boys that the Hilltop aristocrats scarcely recognize the Governor these days. It was the Governor's adaptability that led him to be photographed in his last campaign, stripped to the waist, swinging a hefty rock-crushing pick. And that, in turn, led the Republicans to display posters which read, "Keep Theodore Francis on the Rock Pile," and "Do You Want a Nudist in the State House?"

At the moment the Democratic squabbling centers on the State chairmanship, still occupied by J. Howard McGrath, who is also District attorney—a fact loudly cited by the Republicans when quoting the Roosevelt edict against Democratic duality of official and political job-holding.

Intense as the factional struggles are in the Democratic party they are not as yawning as the chasm in the Republican camp. Senator Metcalf and his industrially-potent brother, Stephen O. Metcalf, who are to Rhode Island almost what the du Ponts are to Delaware, sought to compose the differences some time back by introducing former Assistant Attorney General Charles P. Sisson as Republican chairman.

A Straight-Shooter Ousted.

The leading Republicans make no secret of their explanation that Sisson was too much of a straight-shooter for the job. He gave up. They installed, next, former Secretary of State (for Rhode Island) Ernest L. Sprague, another able, high-minded man. And he was forced out by a faction led by Republican National Committeeman Peck. And that faction put in George R. Lawton, now 76, who dates back to famous "Blind Boss" Gen. Charles R. Brayton. And this led Judge James E. Dooley, of the Metcalf crowd, to remark that Lawton is a "modern Rip Van Winkle."

The feud between the Peck faction and the Metcalf faction is only outrivalled in bitterness by the ancient hostility between the Irish Catholic and the French Catholic factions. And Senator Hebert is a French Catholic—the first to sit in the United States Senate. Metcalf had backed Ambrose Kennedy, Irish Catholic, for the Senate seat in 1928, but was overruled by the Hoover managers, headed by former Senator George Moses. That ended a beautiful friendship between Metcalf and Moses—and it did not cement any ties between Metcalf and Hebert.

As the leading Republicans put it, their party is now in a mess. They think Hebert's chances are too slim to be worth much this year. He barely beat Gerry in 1928.

Thus the Democrats probably will gain a Senate seat in Rhode Island this fall—but, as in the Bay State, who will say that it will be a New Deal victory to have an anti-New Dealer like Gerry win?

Allen, Back From Trip as Bum, Demands Relief Plan Changes

Almost Lost Baggage.

To cover his purpose he announced he was going on a vacation. Once off the train that took him from Washington he changed his clothes, assumed other names and kept his whereabouts secret from every one but his wife and Ross Haworth, his secretary. He sent them a telegram daily giving his address and temporary name. Once he almost lost his baggage when he forgot what name he had signed on the register.

The most he paid for a hotel room was $1.25. He spent $11 riding back and forth on one bus line to talk to the other riders. He ate in cheap restaurants, patronized by those whose pennies counted.

"There was one fellow I talked to who told me I ought to have a shave before I went to look for a job. He offered to lend me his razor. He said he always carried it in his pocket to help him in his job hunting. He gave me advice. He wore tennis shoes. He told me I ought to buy a cheap razor.

"'But,' he said, 'Don't let them sell you any of these. They are cheap, but they're hot.' And he pointed to his shoes. He said he had walked a good ways in them.

Got Queer Feeling.

"Once I went into a hotel looking for a job as a bell hop. It gave me a queer feeling right down here—" and when he said "here," he slapped his abdomen—"just the way the fellow in charge of that watch looked at me.

"I've been around hotels, been an executive or a manager and an important person in some of the largest in the country. Everybody was nice to me and I associated with big shots and the best people. But this watch captain looked at me and asked whether I had any experience.

"'Oh, sure,' I told him. 'I worked in the Hotel Stevens.'

"'Did you know Bill Terry there?' he asked.

"'Why I knew him well. I used to work on the same watch with him.'

"'You're a damned liar. There isn't any Bill Terry there,' he told me.

"'Well,' I told him, 'I needed a job so bad I thought I might get away with a lie.'

"'We don't want any liars around here,' he said."

Escapes Discovery.

His idetnity was almost discovered once by a newspaper reporter in Cleveland. Still disguised, Commissioner Allen visited the Cleveland relief station at which occurred the recent shooting. It was reported the place was to be blown up by Communists. The waiting reporter was the only person there. He charged the Commissioner with being a Federal investigator soon after they had struck up a conversation.

"That whole Cleveland trouble could have been avoided by a little intelligence on the part of the relief people," Commissioner Allen said. "There was a woman on relief. Her daughter was going to get married. She wanted them to give her a stove to bake a cake for the wedding. They couldn't do that. After a few days some Communists offered to accompany her to the relief station and ask for the stove again. When they got there some one grabbed a gun from a policeman and the trouble was on.

"When the reporter and I were leaving the station later on a policeman came up. He fell into conversation with us. He waved his stick and pounded it into his hand, all the time telling what the police would do to the Communists and the radicals if they were let alone. Crack their skulls with their clubs was his remedy.

Know Where Communists Are.

"One of the Washington newspapers said police estimate there are 3,000 communists in the District. Well, if there are, it's a good thing. We know where they all are and they won't be making trouble elsewhere.

"If the relief organizations function properly we won't have to watch the Communists. The reason why they gather a following is because they are the only ones who will listen to a man's story and try to do something about it. They're sympathetic. A crowd will gather around while one of them talks but just let a rumor get around that jobs can be had at some other place and pretty soon the crowd will be gone.

"Ninety-eight per cent of the people out of work and on relief want jobs. They don't want relief. The relief people should take the same attitude the Communists do. Most of them don't seem even to want to listen to you at all much less give you any help."

Division of those on District relief rolls into two groups—those employable—is to be one of the first things done to improve the local situation, Commissioner Allen said.

Treatment of Unemployable.

"Put those who are unemployable to one side and give them a dole or whatever you want to call it and forget about the cost of that relief," he said.

Material increase in the number of social welfare case workers is another art of the program, Commissioner Allen said he would insist on employment of high-grade, sympathic persons for that work. Their major task would be to find jobs which those seeking relief could fill.

"They will be father confessors, advisers, and individual employment agencies," he said.

The entire activities of the District Rehabilitation Corporation, the proposed new low cost housing corporation, and other local relief activities are to be worked into a coordinated job finding and placing organization, Commissioner Allen said. The battle also is to be carried to local business houses, professional men and other residents. Committees are to be formed to increase the number of jobs available.

"One thing I found among the job hunters was the effect of a cigarette on their morale," Commissioner Allen said. "The first request we shall make for funds for the Rehabilitation Corporation will be for a cigarette making plant. The sewing room will come next."

Army Bombers At Fairbanks

4,000-Mile Flight From Capital Is Completed Without Mishap.

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 24 (AP). Completing a training flight of almost 4,000 miles across the United States and Canada from Washington, D. C., ten bombers of the United States Army Air Corps landed at Weeks Field at 12:15 Pacific standard time.

The planes left Washington July 19, in command of Lieut. Col. Henry H. Arnold, commanding officer at March Field, Riverside, Calif.

Perfect coordination between the Air Corps and the Signal Corps was demonstrated, with stations of the Signal Corps' extensive chain in Alaska in constant communication during the latter stages of the flight.

After a rest here and possible exploratory flights as far westward as Nome, the expedition is to return to the States by way of the Pacific coast.

Oil Code's Wage Provision Revised

A new interpretation of the oil code permitting wages and hours sections of other codes to apply when an employe devotes more time to work other than dealing with oil and oil products, was announced yesterday by the Petroleum Administrative Board.

The ruling applies particularly to service stations and garages, where workers not only handle oil but also motor accessories, regular garage service, and the like.

Details of the interpretation were worked out in conference between the petroleum board, the petroleum labor policy board, the NRA and the marketing and labor committees of the planning and coordinating committee.

Sea Bather Dies Despite Rescuers

Ocean City, Md., July 24 (Spl.). Despite valiant efforts on the part of three would-be rescuers, "Bud" Kramme, 48, of Baltimore, was drowned in the Atlantic Ocean here this afternoon.

Kramme was swimming beyond the ocean pier, when he called for help. Robert Moore, Philadelphia; Edward Dennis, Salisbury, and Henry Parker, Ocean City, battled high waves to reach the stricken man, whose unconscious body they lashed to the pier piling.

The would-be rescuers, exhausted, were in turn taken from the water by Ocean City coast guards. Kramme was dead when his body was examined by a Berlin physician.

meat packers when the ban on purchases is lifted.

Christgau explained that this committee will make a survey to determine what facilities, in addition to those already in use, may be contracted for in processing and storing of beer for future relief use.

He said the appraisal and inspection of cattle for future purchase will continue and purchases of cattle condemned as unfit for human food will continue. Such cattle will be disposed of on farms where they are purchased.

At the same time, relief officials said they had inaugurated a water conservation program throughout the drought area, ordering hundreds of wells sunk and farm ponds constructed.

The wells are to be community affairs, the landowners agreeing to public usage before each project is undertaken.

Wells Being Constructed.

Fifty such wells are under construction in Wyoming, approximately 100 in the Dakotas and a similar program is being carried out in other range States.

Officials said farm wells were sunk and farm ponds are being built in Kansas, and this type of project is to be started immediately in other effected States.

Soil erosion projects are also being carried out in Kansas, to prevent these ponds from filling up with silt, and to hold moisture in the field.

In the mountain States, where water levels or lakes have fallen so low that flow through normal outlets had ceased, it was explained that relief projects have lowered the outlets, and restored the flow of irrigation canals, saving crops as well as live stock.

Officials said the July total of $20,000,000 did not include the program for the purchase of cattle and for the care of herds.

McAdoo Bomb Hoa Vexes Coast Police

Infernal Machine Made of Shaving Accesories.

A suspicious package received in the San Francisco mail brought police running. They gingerly handled the heavy parcel, ducked it in water.

When opened, it was found to be a clever imitation of an infernal machine fashioned from a hone, a strop and some razors, with a substance believed to be liquid soap, in imitation of nitro-glycerine.

The package purportedly came from G. R. Sullivan, San Francisco. Associates of the Senator were unable to explain the hoax.

The President did not hurry ashore, however, but waited for Governor Poindexter to call and pay his respects. Arrangements then were complete for the fishing excursion. Henry Palakiko, specially appointed to the job by the Governor, was waiting with live bait, taken last night, to guide the President to the Makalawena banks, nine miles north of here, where the swordfish have been disporting themselves for several days.

Four planes from the cruisers made a flight of exploration in that direction shortly after the cruisers dropped anchor here, and the President's fishing boat was to be accompanied by seven patrol boats, each flying the Coast Guard flag.

Officers and men were granted shore leave for the duration of the President's fishing. Arrangements were made to sail for Hilo, on the windward side of the island, at 4 p. m., arriving in the crescent-shaped bay tomorrow morning.

After receiving Gov. Poindexter, President Roosevelt shoved off about 10 a. m. in his own small fishing boat, without coming to land. The boat whisked away from the Houston at a fast clip and disappeared around the point to the north toward the swordfish banks.

The President was dressed in his old fishing clothes and was said to appear well rested.

the grounds that he was the one who shot the policeman.

The hanging brought to ten the number of Socialists executed since the beginning of Dollfuss' campaign to crush the Nazi movement in Austria. No Nazi has been given the death penalty, although many have been arrested in connection with terrorism.

Dies Soon After Trial.

The hanging came within three hours of the conviction of the two men by a court martial at which both were defiant toward the Dollfus regime and accused the police of mistreating them.

The two young men—Anzboeck is 21—were poorly dressed and appeared to be suffering from the effects of undernourishment and rough handling.

A deathlike silence fell upon the courtroom as the presiding judge pronounced sentence, and Gerl's fiancee, a pretty 17-year-old Jewish girl, fainted.

Steel-helmeted soldiers rushed the two men to prison, and a gallows was erected in a gloomy angle of the courtyard. The hangman was notified that he had a double job to perform, but by the hour set for the execution, 8:10 p. m., his work had been reduced by half.

The hanging took place 15 minutes later than the hour set, with only the court, the hangman and his assistant present. Gerl said nothing whatever as he was taken to the gallows. A large, but orderly crowd gathered outside the high wall.

Defiant to Dollfuss.

Both Socialists during their trial declared that they knew they were risking death, but declared "ideals are more important than life."

Gerl epitomized the Socialist hatred of the Dollfus regime since the civil war by saying "I would rather see the Nazis than this government."

Both men testified that they are Catholics. Numerous recent bombings have been directed against Catholic churches and the homes of priests.

Gerl gave his occupation as goldsmith and Anzboeck said he was a hatter. Gerl said he had joined the Socialist Republican guard in 1929.

The presiding judge reminded the prisoner that he had confessed to obtaining a revolver during the Civil War.

"That is incorrect," Gerl said. "We were tortured by the police and had to answer their way."

The prisoner said that the bombing was "my own idea" and that he and his companion wanted to strike a blow against a Government "which is enslaving the people."

2 Women Held As Police Push Dillinger Quiz

escape from the Crown Point Jail and covered many miles of road that the thug had burned up in escaping from bank robberies and murders.

Search for Hideouts.

But this time, Dillinger was bundled in a basket, covered with black oil cloth, his brief crime career closed forever, many of his companions dead or sentenced to death or prison, his loot lost or hidden and apparently betrayed by the last woman he wooed. Other women of his life were in prison, for the most part. And his father, riding there in the front seat, pondering over the funeral expenses, was the last friend in an ignominous finish to a life of shame.

While his body was bound for a resting spot in an Indianapolis cemetery, Federal agents and policemen worked feverishly to find the hideouts and possible money caches of the slain desperado.

New claimants were advanced for the honor of having shot down the Nation's public enemy No. 1, while new and conflicting stories arose to plunge deeper into mystery the circumstances surrounding his trapping.

Slayers Named.

Detective Frank Slattery, of the Sheffield Avenue Police Station, who was at the scene when Dillinger was slain as he left a theater Sunday night, said he was positive that at least one of the East Chicago, Ind., police officers shot and killed the desperado. The Indianans accompanied Federal agents in the attack.

One of the East Chicago policemen was quoted as naming the actual slayers of Dillinger as his companion officers, Sergt. Martin Zarkovich and Officer Glyn Stretch.

A previous assertion that Dillinger was shot by Samuel O. Cowley, first assistant to Melvin H. Purvis, head of the Federal Investigation Bureau, was branded untrue by Purvis.

Belief that Dillinger may have had a part of the immense loot of his many bank raid hidden away spurred the search for his hideouts. Purvis asserted that he put little stock in the theories that Dillinger was "broke."

Cortege Unnoticed.

John Dillinger, sr., 70-year-old father of the outlaw, rode beside the hearse driver. Next to him was Hubert Dillinger, the desperado's half-brother.

The story of how Dillinger was trapped, as interpreted by the Daily News, follows:

East Chicago police several weeks ago learned that there was a girl for whom Dillinger had taken a fancy, but who did not reciprocate, preferring a former convict. Through the former convict, the girl agreed to trap the outlaw for a price. A second girl played a minor role.

Women Met Dillinger.

The two women moved from Indiana to the North Side of Chicago and through the former convict met Dillinger.

Three East Chicago policemen knew virtually every move Dillinger made and planned to kidnap him from in front of the Biograph Theater, which Dillinger attended habitually. The two girls, told of the plot, wanted to back out of their bargain, but were assured they would be amply protected.

The Indiana officers engaged a room in a Loop hotel, to which they planned to take Dillinger. For a week preceding last Sunday, Capt. Timothy O'Neil and Sergt. Martin Zarkovitch watched nightly from a parked car in front of the theater and watched Dillinger buy tickets for each change of program. Sometimes he was accompanied by the former convict's sweetheart, and sometimes by both women.

The trap was set, but was upset by a policeman's aroused suspicions. On Sunday night Dillinger emerged with the two trembling women. As they neared the alley Officer Glen Stretch of East Chicago, Zarkovich and Purvis were only a few feet behind him. Across the street was comimng Sergt. William Conroy.

Policeman Upsets Trap.

A Chicago policeman, assigned to the theater by the Sheffield Avenue Police Station, was suspicious of the Purvis-O'Neil men's actions. He started after them, calling:

"Hey, you! Who are you? You have to show your credentials."

As stretch was about to seize Dillinger by the shoulder, an agent retorted to the policeman: "We're Government men."

The fugitive heard the commotion and reached for his pistol. Then came the shooting.

The News said Capt. O'Neil insisted that he did not know the identity of the two women, only that of the former convict.

Capt. O'Neil said Lester Gillis alias George (Baby Face) Nelson, and John Hamilton, two of Dillinger's chief henchmen, frequented the neighborhood around the Biograph Theater.

Governmetn officials said they meant to seize any persons harboring or aiding criminals, and it was indicated that the physician who performed the surgery on Dillinger's face soon might be arrested.

Hagerstown Slayer To Be Sentenced Today

Hagerstown, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Allen L. Hollar, convicted by a jury last week of murder in the second degree for the fatal shooting of George Saum, escort of his daughter, Jane Hollar, on a week-end trip to Washington, will be sentenced tomorrow morning.

Under the verdict, the court may sentence him to from 10 to 18 years in the penitentiary.

the yards here or en route. The plea was wired to Dr. J. S. Mohler, chief of the packer stockyards division of the United States Department of Agriculture.

No restriction were placed on the handling of the distressed cattle, but the packing plants found their facilities already overtaxed by the glut of animals on hand.

Two commission houses provided fodder for some of the stock and the Union Stock yards & transit Co., which operates the yards, announced it would attempt to get sustenance to the Government-puchased animals.

Trucks were used to convey animals that expired to rendering works.

Non-Union Labor Row.

Although the union men were out in full force, picketing the pens with "this place unfair to organized labor" signs upon their backs, only one instance of violence was reported. A non-union laborer wsa struck on the head by an iron water plug as he stood on a hay dock. His assailant was not known.

A brief interlude of activity was injected into the otherwise idle day when in mid-afternoon the strikers agreed not to interfere with the marketing of the live stock in the inclosures. After a few were traded the union issued an ultimatum that the trading must cease.

They based their ukase on the claim that the yards company had brought in 1,000 strike breakers to handle the animals whereas they had stipulated the work must be done entirely by the white-collar executives of the commission houses who act as agents for producers scattered over the central West. The trading lasted 20 minutes. No quotations were announced, but the market was described as steady.

Closed to Shipments.

Immediately, the center was again locked in a stalemate. The nonunion men were called off but O. T. Hinkle, general manager of the yards, said they would be employed in feeding the live stock tonight.

Earlier in the day directors had closed the yards to all incoming shipments when they found they could not process the run of receipts. They announced they would receive no more until the walkout had been settled. No efforts were made to molest truckers bringing in their cargoes and some railroads deposited their animals at outlying pens. It was understood, also, that the rail lines had placed an unofficial embargo on shipments. The Union Stock Yards & Transit Co., dispatched messages to loading points in various sections of the Middle West requesting that shipments be withheld for the time being.

Receipts today were: 2,000 cattle, 2,000 calves, 4,000 hogs and 1,000 sheep. Under normal conditions these would approximate 30,000 hogs, 7,000 cattle, 4,000 calves and 7,000 sheep.

Ask 48-hour Week.

The 800 strikers, members of the Live Stock Handlers Union, Local No. 517, demand that a 48-hour week be instituted by the Union Stock Yards & Transit Co., and that the men be given a week's vacation with pay.

They charge that the firm failed to live up to an agreement promulgated by Federal Judge Philip Sullivan, acting as mediator, on June 1. The arbiter, called in after the handlers had deserted their posts for two days last November, ruled that the men should receive a 10 per cent increase in wages and that the boost should also be made up in back pay for the preceding 13 weeks. John Gorman, president of the union, claimed the back pay had not been received by 80 of the handlers and that their work week had been reduced to 38 to 42 hours, nullifying the raise. He also declared that the customary week's vacation had been cut down to three days for men with five years' of service.

Aviation Unit Plans Probe To End Probes

President's Desire for Stable Policy Led to Board's Creation.

A probe to end probes is the purpose of the new Federal Aviation Commission, its chairman, Clark Howell, announced yesterday.

The desire of President Roosevelt that a stable air policy for the Nation be decided upon led to creation of the board, Howell said.

The many investigations—15 in the past decade have thrown the aviation industry into constant confusion, in the President's opinion, and his instructions to Howell were to bring in plans for a policy which would be as permanent as possible.

President Roosevelt feels that development of this most important industry has been seriously retarded by uncertainty as to what the Government might be going to do next. Capital has been frightened away, and the morale of Army and Navy airman handicapped.

"This is the sixteenth commission, board or committee that has investigated one phase or another of aviation activities in their relation to the Government," Howell said.

"But in no instance has any of these investigations been of as broad and sweeping character as Congress has directed this commission to undertake.

"We are to report on every phase of aviation in relation to the Government and make recommendations to Congress by February 1.

"Impressed with the importance of a stabilized policy, so that both the Government and the industry may know where they stand, the President has directed this commission to make a careful study of the problem, in the hope that there may be no further necessity for constantly recurring investigations, which retard the development of aviation in all its phases, create loss of confidence and interfere with the public business.

"To this end, this commission will devote its full energy to dealing with the future and not the past.

"Mereley on Threshold."

This great industry is merely on the threshold of its ultimate usefulness. If put on a firm foundation, and if uncertainty is replaced by confidence, we may expect developments in the next few years that will surpass the dreams of transportation achievement."

The Howell board's investigation gets under way Friday when four members, headed by Vice Chairman Edward P. Warner, take off in a Department of Commerce trimotored Ford for a 12,000-mile aerial inspection tour of the United States and Caribbean outposts.

While President Roosevelt, in requesting Howell, publisher of an Atlanta newspaper, to serve as chairman of the board, expressed desire for a "business man" report, a maority of the new commission is made up of men thoroughly versed in the science of aviation.

Dr. Warner was an Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics; Franklin K. Lane, jr., son of the former Secretary of the Interior, was a World War flier, and Jerome C. Hunsaker, who joins the board Thursday upon his return from Europe, is a retired naval officer who has specialized in lighter-than-air craft. Col. Carroll Cone, executive secretary, is another veteran airman, who may pilot the commission's plane during part of the 12,000-mile flight.

Strike-Ridden Rayon Factory To Shut Doors

Washington Parleys Called as Labor Leaders Call It Coercion.

Hopewell, Va., July 24 (AP).—Employes of the strike-closed Tubize Chatillion plant here tonight received an unqualified plant announcement that the manufacture of nitrocellulose artificial silk yarn will be discontinued at the Hopewell plant, and again turned to Washington for a solution to their troubles.

President J. E. Bassill, of New York in a communication to Miss Anna Weinstock, Federal labor conciliation commissioner, stated that strike damage to materials and equipment and business conditions made continuance of the nitrocellulose process here unfavorable.

Miss Weinstock, who has been working on the Hopewell case since the strike was called June 29, immediately hastened to Washington with the terse announcement that the situation here would be the subject of further conference with the President's new labor board Thursday.

Coercion, Says Labor Leader.

Meanwhile, William F. Kelley, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, said the plant management's action "apparently is an attempt to starve into submission" the nearly 2,000 employes who have been out of employment under strike conditions more than three weeks, "and intimidate the entire community."

George E. Moorhouse, union organizer, said Kelley would attend the Thursday conference, and Moorhouse may too.

The announcement was made in a conference at the plant offices attended by Raymond S. Burrows, plant manager, Miss Weinstock, Kelly, Moorhouse, Virginia Commissioner of Labor Job Hopkins Hall, and two representatives of the Hopewell local, B. A. Hawley and L. P. Lemon. It came as a surprise to the workers.

The action brought from Fred Jeter, business manager of the local, the statement that "the executive board of our local has faith in the leadership we have and the entire membership of our local union will support whatever stand our organization may decide to take."

Moorhouse Hits Action.

"I feel that the United Textile Workers of America will stand behind the local union in Hopewell," said Moorhouse, "and I earnestly urge every worker of Virginia, whether organized or unorganized, to resent the action of this company or any other company that may decide to take this step in order to refuse to accept the decision of any agency set up by the Federal Government."

The strike was called after the company refused to reemploy discharged employes. Union officials said they had been fired because of union affiliation. The company denied this.

President Bassill in ihs communication today referred to the strike as a "force out," which he said resulted "from a raid sponsored by union sympathizers."

"In review of the situation which confronts us with respect to manufacture of nitrocellulose yarn, and taking into consideration the manner in which the plant was closed, the expense of reopening it, the time involved before a satisfactory quality production can be reached, the stock of yarn on hand, present low selling prices and the relatively high cost of production brought about largely by increased labor and raw materials costs, we have reluctantly concluded that our stockholders' interests would not permit the reopening of the plant for the manufacture of yarn," the communication said.

Conferences Are Awaited.

Striking union members were informed by developments at an open meeting tonight, and Moorhouse said he expected no further developments until after the Washington conferences.

Although the Bassill statement was emphatic in its announcement of the abandonment of the manufacture of nitrocellulose yarn here, it said also that the company was prepared to give serious consideration to resumption of the knitting, dyeing and finishing plant at Hopewell "as soon as business conditions permit."

This section of the plant's operations here employed about 250 workers.

Bassill said the Tubize Corporation was the third largest producer of rayon yarn in America, and the Hopewell plant was the only one of its kind in the country. The factory was built at a cost of $5,000,000.

Regret Expressed at Closing.

"Having maintained continuous operation in our Hopewell plant since May of 1921, and feeling a just pride in the caliber of the organization which we were successful in developing over a period of the organization which we were successful in developing over a period of the past 13 years, it is a matter of deep and sincere regret that we announce our decision not to reopen our yarn plant," the communication said.

State Commissioner Hall said "the State naturally deplores the fact that so many are out of employment, and if there is any solution or aid that can be given, the State will cooperate."

Today's announcement followed a conference in New York yesterday in which Miss Weinstock, Bassill and Plant Manager Burrows participated. Previously the management had asked time for a survey of costs involved in reopening the plant.

Bridge Funds Plea Planned

Eoutheast Will Ask D. C. Heads to Speed Avenue Project.

The fight for a new bridge on southeast Pennsylvania avenue will be carried to the District Commissioners Friday, when a committee of representative Southeast business men will ask for an immediate appropriation to begin planning the bridge.

The committee, headed by Clarence F. Donohoe, president of the Southeast Business Men's Association, will request the Commissioners to take $15,000 for the purpose from a $35,000 fund allotted the District bridge maintenance department in the 1934 District bill.

Under present conditions the $15,000 would not be available for at least a year. The Commissioners have promised to ask for the money in the 1935 bill, and later to seek $1,000,000 for bridge construction in the 1937 appropriation bill. The Southeast Business Men's Association, with the active support of the Washington Board of Trade, argues that the delay will be offset if the Commissioners make use of funds already available.

In a resolution recently adopted by the association it was recommended that the new bridge have not less than a 60-foot roadway and two 12-foot sidewalks, and that plans for its construction bt ready for submission to Congress next winter.

BUY COAL NOW
At Low July Prices

FOR years it has been the custom in the Spring or early Summer for the mines to make substantial reductions in the prices of Anthracite and prepared coals for the home.

The purpose of these price reductions is to encourage home owners to fill their bins during the Summer months and thereby relieve congestion at the mines during the Fall and Winter.

Prices are periodically increased during the Summer until the Winter price level is again restored, usually around October 1st. The price advances during the Summer are, therefore, a gradual elimination of Summer reductions and not an increase in the basic or Winter price of coal.

You not only save money by ordering your coal now, but Summer coal is mined and delivered under the most favorable conditions and is, therefore, cleaner and better coal.

Paris Premier Saves Cabinet With 'Big Stick'

Doumergue Keeps Control by Quieting Tardieu Party Row.

Paris, July 24 (AP).—"Papa" Gaston Doumergue saved the "Truce Cabinet," of which he is premier, today by compelling quarreling ministers to put aside their political hatreds for at least three months.

The veteran premier waved the big stick freely, bringing to terms former Premier Andre Tardieu, whose accusations against radical Socialists, the party of his fellow cabinet member Edouard Herriot, started the row last week.

Doumergue, returning to Paris from a vacation, justified Tardieu's defense "against calumnies" in connection with a check stub of the late Serge Stavicky marked "A. Tardi," but reproved him for using strong language.

Peace Plan Accepted.

Tardieu had attacked Camille Chautemps, former radical Socialist premier, but in a new statement said he had not mentioned the party while contending that the stub was a forgery.

The radical Socialists, Herriot said after today's meeting, will accept Doumergue's peace plan, calling for both men to remain in the cabinet, and refer the controversy to the party for settlement in October.

The cabinet thus is assured of at least three more months of life, although some quarters expressed the view that "the real truce is ended."

Tardieu offered to resign at today's session, but Doumergue replied that if either Tardieu or Herriot—both ministers without portofolio—resigns, he would not remain at the head of the government, since the truce would be ended.

Election Is Threatened.

The Doumergue government came into being last February after riots and bloodshed followed attacks on past governments in connection with the failure of the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop, headed by Stavisky.

Doumergue today threatened to summon Parliament, dissolve the Chamber of Deputies, call an election and tell the people who was responsible for the wreck of the "truce government."

He pictured the seriousness of stirring up a political fight at this time, and asked the ministers to put the welfare of the country, as represented by the financial rehabilitation program of the government, above party politics.

Virginia Milk Prices Fixed

Commission Gives Rules for Control of Lynchburg Area.

Richmond, July 24 (AP).—The Virginia Milk Commission today issued regulations for the control of the fluid milk business in the Lynchburg area, fixing retail and wholesale prices on various grades of milk and cream, and also announced that a public hearing on the establishment of its authority in the Charlottesville area would be held Friday.

The Charlottesville hearing will be at the commission's rooms in the State Capitol here at 10 a. m.

As in previous rules issued by the commission, the Lynchburg regulations define the area in which they shall be operative, define the terms used and fix minimum and maximum price scales.

Producers shall receive $2.75 per hundredweight for class 1 milk, the commission says.

Prices in quart lots, wholesale an dretail, were fixed as follows: Milk, 3.25 to 4.25 per cent butterfat, 12 cents per quart retail, 11 cents per quart wholesale. Milk, 4.26 to 5.25 per cent butterfat, 13 cents per quart retail, 12 cents per quart wholesale.

For cream of 20 per cent butterfat the prices are 45 cents per quart retail and 40 cents per quart wholesale. Cream testing 40 per cent shall be sold at 85 cents per quart retail and 80 cents per quart wholesale.

Acreage permitted to be planted for 1935 has been set at not less than that planted for the harvest of this year, or 85 per cent of the average seeded acreage of the base period of three years. and garden truck, which were burned and brown in the fields.

On the two coasts and in Minnesota rain fell, in some places to the depth of an inch and a quarter. Readings of 100 degrees and more were so numerous that 90-degree temperatures were passed without notice.

From the Pacific Coast and the New England States came reports of least uncomfortable weather. Forecasts of cooler spells today were received from Nebraska, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, South Dakota, Missouri, Wyoming and Minnesota. Oklahoma may be swept by light showers.

The Weather Bureau here late yesterday warned that a disturbance attended by "strong and shifting winds" is moving approximately 200 miles south of Morgan City, La., at about 14 miles an hour, with slowly increasing intensity. The direction of the storm was said to be slightly south of west.

More than 1,500 striking employes in Chicago found the weather an ally in their attempt to close the stock yards. Pens were so congested by heavy receipts of live stock, due to drought conditions, and the walkout of yardmen over a dispute of wages, that the pens were closed for further shipments.

Grain prices on the Chicago Board of Trade were lower, despite the heat and drought conditions, due, principally, to the lack of buyers and the promises of moisture, relief today.

Down in the Ohio Valley, Cincinnati sweltered at 104 at 2 p. m. A total of 44 persons has died at the river city in the past five days.

A few other high marks were Keokuk, Iowa, 108; Nashville, 101; Memphis, 95; Birmingham, 91; Fon du Lac, Wis., 107, and Des Moines, 100.

Cities where overcoats comparatively were in order were New York, with a temperature of 80; Atlanta, 88; Rochester, 77, and Boston, 73.

Humdiity here yesterday averaged about 50. The winds will shift to southwest today. No heat prostrations were reported to police or District hospitals.

Justice Bureau Head Going to Chicago to Push Plans.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Justice Department's Division of Investigation, whose agents ended John Dillinger's career, will go to Chicago soon to help lay plans for rounding up the dead bandit's henchmen.

At large still are George "Baby Face" Nelson, Homer Van Meter and John Hamilton, public enemies, whom the department is determined to round up. Hoover will talk with Melvin Purvis, head of the Chicago Bureau of the Division of Investigation, who sprang the trap into which Dillinger walked.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the "crime museum" collection, which soon will be on display at the department's new building at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, will be enriched by Dillinger's pistol and other effects. They will take their places alongside disguises, guns and miscellaneous possessions of other bad men who lived to regret the day they ever ran afoul of Hoover's young lawyer-investigators. These bad men include Harvey Bailey, George "Machine Gun" Kelly, Albert Bates, Frank Nash and the Barrow brothers.

The Division of Investigation men are always on the lookout for souvenirs to add to this "crime museum." They would be especially happy to obtain a trinket from "Baby Face" Nelson, who is charged with the murder of one of their colleagues, W. Carter Baum, of Washington, who died in a raid on a Dillinger hideout last March.

Charleston, W. Va., July 24 (Spl.). A report just compiled by the State tax department shows the value of all taxable property in West Virginia gained $113,888,329 in 1933 over the preceding year.

Valuations on real estate, personal property and public utilities, and changes in them are:

Real estate—Valued at $340,180,156 in 1933 for a decrease of $34,605,334 under 1932. Personal property—Valued at $340,958,443 for 1933 for an increase of $109,091,163 over the preceding year. Public utilities—Valued at $602,026,100 for an increase of $39,492,500.

Tax officials view as especially significant the 47.05 per cent gain in personal property valuations. They traced it directly to the reporting of intangible properties.

The report carries a tabulation of property assessed in each of the four classifications of the new State tax amendment. Class 1 (intangibles and live stock) totaled $239,505,968; class 2 (home and farm property) aggregated $320,863,196; class 3 (business property outside of municipalities) $736,301,001, and class 4 (business property in municipalities) $488,494,214.

Details Keep Secret as U. S. Builds Prosecution.

Roanoke, Va., July 24 (AP).—Still under cover of secrecy because the case is considered important in view of the law involved, the Lindbergh kidnaping law, the Federal Government today went about the task of attempting to bring to trial Maj. Robert C. Kent, jr., held in the city jail on a warrant sworn under the law by J. E. Schoales, Department of Justice agent.

The commissioner also had issued summonses for witnesses to appear, but how many and who they are he said he could not relate.

New Game Laws for Virginia Set for Hearing August 13

Richmond, July 24 (Spl.).—Carl H. Nolting, chairman of the State commission of game and inland fisheries, announced today that the new game law proposals of the commission will be acted on at a hearing in Richmond, August 13.

Many local regulations are to be considered then. The main proposals of a more or less general nature are:

That there be a continuous closed season on hunting, trapping or taking beaver until otherwise provided.

That the trapping of raccoons be prohibited for a period of three years.

That the open season for hunting sora be from September 15, instead of September 1, to November 30, inclusive.

That the open season for trapping muskrat in the counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains, except in the counties of Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Franklin, Loudoun, Orange, Prince William and Rappahannock be from January 1 to March 15, inclusive.

That it shall be unlawful for any person to have in his or her possession any shotgun or rifle in the salt water marshes, rivers, bays, sounds or shores of the State, or on the waters of Princess Anne County, during the closed season on migratory game birds, except as otherwise provided by law. For the purpose of this regulation the word "possession" would include having a gun in one's boat or other conveyance.

Fire Union Issue To Va. High Court

Richmond, July 24 (AP).—Norfolk firemen today were promised a State Supreme Court review of their contested claim to the right to join a union.

The Supreme Court of Appeals agreed to review the decision of the judge of the Norfolk City Circuit Court who denied the fire fighters' plea for an injunction to restrain Thomas P. Thompson, city manager; Claude B. Borland, public safety director, and R. S. Baughan, fire chief, from prohibiting their joining outside fire associations. The city had ruled that local firemen would lose their jobs if they joined an organization other than the Norfolk Firemen's Relief and Social Association.

The petitioning firemen, members of a Norfolk unit of the International Association of Fire Fighters, contended they were civil service employes and that city officials had no right to restrict them as to membership in organizations.

Leesburg Acts To Speed Work On Building Job

Erection of Addition to Clerk's Office to Be Finished.

Leesburg, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Work on the addition to the clerk's office in Leesburg, which was begun under the CWA regime, will be rushed to early completion following a meeting of the Board of Supervisors held here yesterday.

Victor Jackson, of Leesburg, was awarded the contract for wiring for lights; Harry S. Cooksey, of Ashburn, was given the plastering contract for $125 and the contract for the installation of radiators was awarded to E. L. Poston, local plumber, for $310.

The new addition, which includes two offices for the treasurer, two for Commonwealth's attorney, and a storage room, as well as an enlarged vault below, was left unfinished last spring when the CWA disbanded. The county, aided by employes of the FERA, are completing the work.

The board ordered the rent paid for an additional three months on the building used by the Welfare Workers in cooperation with the Federal Government.

E. O. Russell, clerk of the court, warned the board that if expenses during the coming fiscal year are the same as last year, $4,500 more than allowed in the budget for the coming fiscal year will be spent.

The treasurer reported personal property delinquents this year amount to $4,500 as against $8,900 last year.

Gas-Auto Tax Cut Effect Studied

Roanoke Chamber Fights Reduction in State.

Roanoke, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—The Roanoke Chamber of Commerce is conducting a survey of 14 or more States throughout the country in an effort to determine whether revenues are appreciably affected by reduced gasoline and automobile license taxes.

The survey seeks to ascertain the gasoline tax income, and the number of passenger car registrations for the first six months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1933. The local Chamber is opposing reductions in automobile license and gasoline taxes in Virginia, contending a reduction of either tax is not compensated for by increased revenues from registrations or gasoline consumption.

B. F. Moomaw, secretary, says the attitude is that the revenue is essential for continuation of the road building program, and that until the Southwestern part of the State has well-built roads, the chamber believes the tax should remain unchanged.

Electricity Fails, Chatham Protests As Dinners Spoil

Chatham, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—The State corporation commission is to hear all about why the Sunday dinners of the local townspeople failed of accomplishment.

Users of power furnished by the Virginia Public Service have addressed formal complaint to the State body alleging that the company violated its agreement by failing to maintain its stand-by plant.

A storm burned out a transformer and deadened the current. The trouble was repaired, but after a few hours the current again was deadened and remained so for nearly half a day. Electric stoves and mechanical refrigerators failed to function and food spoiled.

The assurances of company representatives that the stand-by plant would be kept ready and that a spare transformer would be set up failed to result in the withdrawal of the complaint to the State corporation commission at an indignation meeting.

Carter was arrested in Richmond early today and returned to jail here by State Traffic Officer L. J. Cosby.

A search had been under way for Carter since the night of the Afton robbery, when Cosby had seen him on the highway near that place. Several pawn tickets were found in Carter's pockets.

Jocko Catches a Steel Trap.

You remember that Uncle Joe gave up hunting for Blackie after the calf butted him into the fig tree and Aunt Judy laughed at him so much. But he just couldn't believe that Blackie was dead, and so he was willing to try anything that looked like a way to catch him, if it didn't take too much trouble to do it. So one day when was in town he heard some men talking about catching a lot of coons and possums and minks and other animals with steel traps, and he thought that would be a good way to get Blackie. He wouldn't have to sit up all night, and he wouldn't have to be butted into any fig tree. He could just set the trap and put a little chicken in it, and when Blackie came to get the chicken he would step in the trap and push the spring so it would turn the great steel jaws loose, and they would bite and hold Blackie's foot. That's what the store keeper told him, and it looked mighty plain to Uncle Joe, so he bought the biggest trap in the store, and went on home feeling mightly pleased because he was going to catch Blackie so easily.

When Uncle Joe got home he told Aunt Judy all about the trap, and showed her how it worked, and just what it was going to do when Blackie stepped on it to get the chicken. Aunt Judy thought it looked pretty good, and so she caught a nice young white chicken for Uncle Joe to bait the trap with. She got a white one because she said it would be easier for Blackie to see it at night. They talked a lot about where was the best place to put the trap, and it took them a long time to decide it. But Uncle Joe remembered that Blackie had gotten two or three chickens out of the old walnut tree, and so they decided to put the trap near the tree. And now what about the dog? Certainly Blackie would never go to the trap if the dog woke up and chased him as soon as he got in the yard. Well, they decided to let the dog sleep in the kitchen that night, and they fixed him a nice bed of straw. Do you reckon a dog is going to wake up and scratch on the door to get you to let him go out and fight a bear? This dog didn't. He went right off to sleep, and he slept all night, but Blackie Bear and Jocko Monkey and Who-Who Owl didn't. Jay Bird had been around all the time Uncle Joe was setting the trap, and he hurried over to tell Blackie where his supper had been put. Blackie sent for Jocko and he got his big knife that he had cut Ram Sheep's head off with, and away along about midnight Blackie and Jocko and Who-Who Owl started out for Uncle Joe's house. Jay Bird can't see very well at night, and so he stayed at Blackie's house, but he told them all about where the trap was set.

When they found the trap, Jocko dropped a brick down where Uncle Joe thought Blackie's foot would step and the trap snapped together. Jocko took the knife and cut off the chicken's feet and handed him to Blackie. Who-Who was busy getting a chicken of his own out of an apple tree, where the chicken was roosting. "Well," whispered Jocko to Blackie, "we may want to catch something some time, and so I believe I will take the trap along," and so he unhooked it from the tree and threw the chain over his shoulder, and they all hiked out for Blackie's house.

New Salisbury Library Ready

Formal Opening Planned About August 1; Fund Drive Goes On.

Salisbury, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—The Wicomico County Free Library Association announced today that its new $14,000 building here would be formerly opened about August 1.

A campaign is now on to obtain a small amount in outstanding pledges to finance the institution.

The building project was first begun with the assistance of the CWA, which agreed to furnish $8,000 in material and labor for remodeling property acquired by the library trustees. The CWA, however, furnished practically none of the labor and fell about $4,000 short of its money pledges, Walter S. Sheppard, library board chairman, said. The difference was made up by popular subscription.

Only the first floor will be devoted to library work at present. An upper floor, though furnished, will not be used until an assistant librarian can be employed.

Mrs. S. King White, librarian, said the Camden street library would be closed August 1, when the work of transferring 9,000 volumes will begin.

Danville Cannery Opens This Week

Approval by FERA Clears Way for Project.

Danville, July 24 (Spl.).—Danville's municipal cannery project was approved by FERA authorities in Richmond today. It is believed the first such project in Virginia.

Equipment, including 12,000 cans, ovens and retorts, have been ordered and the plant to be set up in the old armory will be functioning before the week is out. Twelve unemployed will get jobs running it. Depression gardeners will have their surplus products preserved and surplus products from the two large municipal gardens will be canned. The food is to be distributed this winter. Other persons may have garden produce canned for a small charge.

Sidney Beck, garden supervisor, today said he was inclined to doubt the expedience of the cannery, declaring the heat has so ravaged all gardens that considerable surplus is unlikely.

Harrisonburg Going Musical; 100 Girls Enlisted for Band

Harrisonburg, Va., July 24 (Spl.). With 100 members already enrolled, Harrisonburg soon may have one of the largest girls' bands in the country.

Mrs. Ethel Irwin Lineweaver, Harrisonburg's only woman attorney, is directing the band. Capt. Will H. Ruebush, of Dayton, director of the famed 116th Infantry Band during the World War, has been named business manager, with E. L. Klingstein, local business man, as his assistant.

Appeals Clerk Post Beckons To Mitchell

Maryland Senate Chief Wants to Retire, but May Reconsider.

Baltimore, July 24 (Spl.).—The president of Maryland's State Senate, Walter J. Mitchell of Charles County, today announced he will not be a candidate for reelection, declaring he wants to retire from public office.

Political observers, however, believe Senator Mitchell is considering running for the Democratic nomination as clerk of the Court of Appeals. Reports were current here over the week-end that he was the choice of the Ritchie faction for the clerkship.

Discussing these reports, Senator Mitchell said he had read about them and was planning to investigate them during the next ten days, before deciding on his plans for permanent retirement. He asserted he has not been consulted by party leaders as to the possibility of being a candidate.

As his successor as senator from Charles County, W. Bruce Matthews, youthful member of the House of Delegates from that area, is reported to have the backing of southern Maryland leaders. Mr. Matthews will face strong opposition in the county, as the registration is two-thirds Republican, and it is well known that only the force of Senator Mitchell's personality has resulted in Democratic victories there in recent years. Mr. Matthews will be opposed by a well-organized G. O. P. machine, according to reports.

If Senator Mitchell decides to run for the clerkship, he probably will be opposed by James A. Young, who has held the office for three terms. Mr. Young, a native of western Maryland, has strong backing in that section, and leader of the Ritchie clique are reported under strong pressure to indorse him for renomination. He already has announced he is in the race, but so far he has not been formally admitted to the Ritchie ticket.

Gunter, Republican, Files for Congress

Annapolis, July 24 (Spl.).—William A. Gunter, Cumberland Republican, today filed with the Secretary of State certificate of his candidacy for Congress from the Sixth Maryland District.

David J. Lewis, also of Allegany County, is the Democratic candidate to succeed himself. Thus far there is no indication of a primary contest in either party, so that Messrs. Lewis and Gunter will battle it out in the November election.

Salisbury, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Prominent ministers of the Church of God in Maryland and Virginia have addressed the annual convention of that denomination here. Morning, afternoon and evening services were held. The meeting ended today.

Among the clergymen officiating were the Rev. A. J. Tomlinson, general overseer, of Cleveland, Tenn.; the Rev. John Pitcher, of Baltimore; the Rev. Richard L. Jackson, of Baltimore; the Rev. Homer A. Tomlinson, of Jamaica, N. Y.; the Rev. J. L. Williamston, of Richmond; the Rev. Vernon H. Smith, of Newport News; the Rev. T. P. Catnom, and the Rev. Earl McKenny, of East Texas; the Rev. Norman Taylor and the Rev. Philip White, of Chance, Md., and the Rev. C. M. Musselman, of Whaleyville Md.

A street parade and a display of flags and banners were held yesterday afternoon and later an open air service was conducted in front of the John B. Parsons Home for the Infirm.

The Rev. Thomas Pentecost, pastor of the local church and overseer of Maryland, was the host cleric.

Move to Stabilize Ship Work Starts

Norfolk and Portsmouth Citizens Plan Drive.

Norfolk, Va., July 24 (AP).—Citizens of Norfolk and Portsmouth, meeting here today, inaugurated a movement which they hope to spread along the Atlantic Seaboard in the interest of stabilizing employment at Navy shore stations.

It was recognized that Navy strategy and National policy must govern ship movements, but speakers pointed out the effect on a community when a large number of civilian employes engaged in Navy work is laid off and it was voted to name a committee which would present this problem to the President and Navy Department.

In the Norfolk Navy Yard almost 5,000 civilians are employed but most of these face a lay-off unless additional work is secured when the battleship Idaho and aircraft carrier Ranger are placed in active service this fall.

Va. Schools Get $5,483,932 in Federal Funds

Most of Grants Have Gone to County Institutions, Says Superintendent.

Richmond, July, 24 (Spl.).—Virginia public schools have been aided by the Federal Government this year to the extent of $5,483,932, Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, stated today.

Of this total, $4,129,143 has come from the CWA for repainting and repairing buildings; $498,140 has been in the form of direct grants from the PWA, supplementing funds secured by literary fund loans which have been used in construction, and $149,328 from the fund for carrying on the emergency education program, which has given employment to many teachers.

A total of $707,322.39 in Federal funds went to the counties to enable schools to complete their normal terms, in no case less than eight months.

The counties received $3,342,194.17 in CWA funds for repairing school buildings; $416,840 in PWA grants for construction and $102,233.06 for emergency education, making a grand total for the counties of $4,568,590.82.

The cities did not fare so well, receiving a grand total of only $915,341.96, of which $786,949.24 was CWA money for repairs; $81,300 was PWA money, and $47,092.72 represented emergency education funds.

Dr. Hall said that by reason of the Federal funds all the schools in the State had a minimum eight-month term last session, and all teachers were paid in full.

Rum Sales Hit Grocery Trade

Dry Leader Charges Food Business Slumped When Liquor Flow Began.

Richmond, July 24 (Spl.).—Richmonders are spending less money for groceries and more for wisky since the legal sale of liquor at State stores here, believes the Rev. Ed J. Richardson, superintendent of the Virginia Antisaloon League.

"I have been reliably informed," Mr. Richardson said today, "that when in the first week of operation of the ABC stores in Richmond about $40,000 sales of liquors were made, the grocers experienced a great failing off in business."

"It is not surprising," Mr. Richardson adds, "that the sale of hard liquors leads here, for voluminous and steady advertising of such liquors, especially on or about pay days, is made in the city dailies."

"Although it is said the bootlegger is being put out of business," Mr. Richardson continues, "speakeasies, it is announsed have greatly increased, and are largely operating with liquor bought from ABC stores. This is just what happened under the dispensary in South Carolina, and it finally became impossible to wipe them out."

Policeman's Widow Gives Church Fund

Legacy Goes to Build Edifice at Ridge.

Baltimore, July 24 (Spl.).—Funds for the erection of the Church of St. Peter Clavers at Ridge, St. Mary's County, are bequeathed in the will of Mrs. Grace E. Lastner, widow of Capt. Charles C. Lastner, of the Baltimore Police Department. Mrs. Lastner died July 13.

Her will, filed for probate today, left small sums to relatives, and named Dr. John M. Cooper, of Catholic University, Washington, to receive money she had on deposit in three banks here. She left the residue of her estate to the Catholic clergymen of Maryland to build the St. Mary's County church.

Mrs. Lastner's personal estate was valued at about $18,000, with the value of real estate not given. Court officials said they could not tell exactly how much would go toward erection of the church. Capt. Lastner died last spring and Mrs. Lastner's death was believed to have been hastened by her bereavement.

Tangier and Chincoteague Islands Ready For Home-Coming and Pony Rodeo Tomorrow

All-Day Church Services to Be Conducted by Rev. C. Ralph.

Tangier, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—All preparations are complete for the biggest day of the year, Thursday, on this little Chesapeake Bay island colony and the nearby Chincoteague Island.

Friendly residents of this island Thursday will welcome hundreds of former inhabitants of Tangier Island who will be on hand for the annual "home-coming day."

Those from big cities will have a real change on their visit here from the environment of city life. For this island has only one street, no corners, no automobiles, no horses or wagons and no telephones.

In keeping with their reputation of being steady churchgoers, the principal events of the home-coming observance will be held in the Swain Methodist Episcopal Church, where the Rev. C. Ralph will conduct all-day services.

Island's Fame Spreading.

Tangier's fame as an unspoiled island paradise has spread to such an extent that this summer more persons have visited the people than in any other year. Two University of Illinois professors recently spent their vacations here and went away singing its praises.

Hospitality of the 1,500 residents of Tangier is proclaimed by all who have visited the island. The island was discovered in 1608 by Capt. John Smith. It is only 12 miles from the docks of Crisfield, Md., noted fishing center.

Nearby Chincoteague is equally famed, but for a different reason.

Each summer the round-up of wild ponies there affords eastern United States its only counterpart of a genuine rodeo. Ponies have roamed the marsh lands of the Eastern Shore for 200 years, since the first ponies were shipwrecked from a Spanish merchantman.

Only One Street, and no Automobiles or Phones Are Found There.

Many of the ponies are new to civilization—having never before seen human form—to say nothing of merry-go-rounds and other carnival features which accompany the occasion.

Accomplished horsemen round up the ponies into a funnel-shaped affair which spouts them into the water, where they are driven to the market-place by men in power-boats.

The ponies are shaggy and small, but powerful, and the Chincoteague folk say lightning is slow in comparison with them. They live in a salt water marsh wilderness, subsisting mostly on marsh grass.

Utility Buys Property of Virginia Firm

Companies Serving 6,463 Persons Acquired by Potomac Edison.

Frederick, Md., July 24 (AP).—Announcing of the purchase of additional properties was made at the quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the Potomac Edison Co. here today.

The President, R. Paul Smith, reported that the properties were secured from the Virginia Public Service Co. interests and were continguous to the territory of the Potomac Edison system.

The new properties are: Potomac Valley Power Corporation serving Romney, Moorefield and ePtersburg, W. Va.; the property of the Harpers Ferry Electric Co. in Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and Brunswick; the property of the Maryland Light & Power Co. in Boonsboro, Keedysville, Sharpsburg, Lonaconing, Barton, Midland and Emmitsburg, and property in Strasburg, Va.

At the same time the Loudoun Light & Power Co., formerly operated by the Potomac Edison Co., was transferred to the Virginia Public Service Co.

The acquired properties were serving 6,463 persons.

The president reported that while the system revenues for six months showed substantial increases over the corresponding six months of last year, the real problem facing the company was the necessity of meeting new items of increased expense which are rapidly mounting.

The major items are the increase in the cost of materials, especially coal, and labor, which, under adoption of the code, has added both to the number of persons employed and the total payroll expenses. Fifty persons have been added, Smith said, and increases in pay made to more than 300.

The largest item of increased expense, Smith said, is in taxes, which have risen to the point where they constitute a major operation. But for this increased burden of taxes, he added, it would have been possible to have given substantial rate reductions to all the company's customers.

Favorable progress was reported in the company's bus operations, eight more pieces of equipment having been purchased.

Cambridge, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Mrs. Helen Trice, 26, is being held in Cambridge Jail, after she wrecked her home, attempted suicide, and abused attaches at the Cambrige-Maryland Hospital who restored her to life.

After demolishing all the furniture and breaking all the dishes in the house, she ran to Cambridge Creek, where she was rescued by Benjamin Sammons and Augustus Bell. At the hospital she became so unruly the officials requested that she be placed in jail.

She shot Charles Trice, 28, her husband on one of the busiest corners of Cambridge, about two months ago.

Hospital Bids Will Be Opened

Seven-Story Hagerstown Building to Cost $400,000.

Hagerstown, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Bids for the new Washington County fireproof hospital, which will cost approximately $400,000, will be opened August 7. No bids were advertised for, but plans have been given to an invitation list of contractors.

The building, which will be seven stories high, will be erected in the rear of the present hospital. The old hospital will be renovated and used for executive offices, while a new wing will be constructed.

Hospital and health authorities are looking on the concentration of all health agencies, including the county and city health departments, at the hospital, with considerable interest, as it is believed that it is the first time in medical history the two agencies will have been combined.

The actual construction is expected to get under way early in September and will provide work for at least 100 skilled workers and scores of laborers most of the winter.

Driver's Curiosity Nets Injury to 5

Fredericksburg, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Crash of an unloaded passenger bus and resultant plunging over the highway embankment of a passenger car caused minor injuries to a mother and four children on the Richmond-Washington road near Massaponax this morning.

The bus, of the Great Eastern line, was forced off the road by an oncoming truck, the driver, J. A. Jolly, alone in the vehicle, escaping uninjured.

Three hours later W. J. Hall, traveling with his wife and children, plunged over the embankment in his automobile when a truck struck it from behind after Hall had paused to look at the overturned passenger bus. The truck which struck Hall's car was operated by William L. George, of Salisbury, Md.

$100,000 Fire Suspect Bares Guilt to Police

Headache and Toothache Is Sole Motive Furnished by Delaware Youth.

Laurel, Del., July 24 (Spl.—Charles O'Neal, 20, confessed today after a severe grilling by police to two charges of arson, and cleared up the mystery of the $100,000 blaze that destroyed seven warehouses of the Marvel Packing Co. Thursday morning, filled with fruit, vegetable crates and baskets.

Chief of Police Harley Hickman and Constable Oscar James made the arrest after an all-night vigil, after O'Neal was seen running from a burning automobile he had allegedly set on fire in a shed at the North Laurel plant of the Marvel Packing Co. The arrest was made at the young man's home, about 4 miles from Laurel.

In his confession, O'Neal said he was on his way home Thursday about 2 a. m. when the idea of firing the building came to him. After setting the match, he said he stayed long enough to be sure the fire would keep burning.

When questioned as to motive, he replied:

"I was suffering with a headache and a toothache and just became angry and wanted to do something. I have no ill feelings toward the Marvel Co. or any of its officials."

When questioned regarding the firing of the automobile, O'Neal replied: "I wanted to see another fire."

O'Neal was placed under $3,000 bond for appearance at the October term of court, in default of which he was committed to the county jail at Georgetown.

Frederick May Cut Recreation Season

Operating Fund Short of Goal, Officials Say.

Frederick, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Probability that the playground season will be cut two weeks loomed today when it was revealed that the operating fund is considerably short of the goal.

Unless public contributions come to the rescue the playgrounds commission will end its program August 11 instead of August 25, officials state. Mayor Lloyd C. Culler, chairman of the commission, today consulted A. Leroy McCardell, the commission's treasurer, and verified the hope that the playground would continue to operate for the first two weeks in August. However, unless the public loosens its purse strings, two weeks of the program will be abandoned.

Of the goal of $750 set by the playgrounds commission in accord with its annual budget $452.50 has been received. The budget makes provision for ten weeks of supervised recreation on three equipped grounds.

Cleaner Movie Drive Starts At Winchester

By C. B. Carr.

Winchester, Va., July 24.—Purporting to have the written backing of one-tenth of Winchester's citizenry, a plan to form a Legion of Decency for the avowed purpose of cleaning up motion pictures here, was adopted at a mass meeting of citizens today.

At the session, held in Handley Library and attended by Protestant and Catholic clergy, the Rev. Edward T. Clark, pastor of First Baptist Church, was elected president of the Legion of Decency, Mrs. Frank B. Crawford was named vice president and the Rev. Father Paul Heller, assistant pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, secretary. A committee on public education was named, and includes Mrs. Louisa M. Green, Eugene B. Cooper, and the Rev. R. B. Campbell. An executive committee of nine will plan the campaign against alleged indecent pictures.

A resolution declaring that many motion pictures "nullify years of careful training in the church, home and school" was adopted. At the same time a resolution for the formation of the Legion of Decency added there "seemed to be no hope of reform from within the movie organization."

Resolutions indicated the Winchester Ministerial Association and Federated Council of Churches here are in favor of the move.

Although the consensus of opinion was against local censorship of motion pictures, a committee was named to select competent persons to attend Winchester theaters next month to "analyze" pictures.

Resolutions demanding that Congress pass a law prohibiting "block" and "blind" booking and that "political censors" be abolished were passed. Congress also was urged to appoint a National board of review.

Relief Chiefs Get Free Hand

Officials in Maryland Counties May Use Money as They See Fit.

Baltimore, July 24 (Spl.).—Relief officials in Maryland counties will be permitted to dispose of relief funds in any manner they see fit, without interference from the State relief administration, on condition that they do not violate orders of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, county chairmen were told today.

Officials of 21 counties met at the Southern Hotel and heard talks by State officials, among them Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator, who assured them they would be allowed to operate without interference from his office. He pointed out, however, that "mandates that the Maryland relief administration sends out come direct from Washington, and it would be suicidal for us to ignore those gentle orders, because they might be turned into harsh ones."

Only two counties—Carroll and Harford—are not affiliated with the FERA. Representatives of all other counties were present. Speakers included Miss Ruth Blakeslee, assistant to Greenstein; Francis H. Dryden, relief engineer for Maryland, and Howard Bruce, chairman of the Governor's relief survey board.

Farmers in Washington County Accept 365.

Hagerstown, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Washington County farmers have agreed to take 365 steers to be shipped to Maryland from the drought-stricken areas of the Middle West, County Agent Milt D. Moore announced.

Moore expects several hundred more will be taken before the end of the week, although pastures in this county have been hard hit by a six weeks' drought. The first allotment of the Midwestern cattle are scheduled to arrive this week and will be about 20 carloads, T. B. Symons, director of the State Extension Service, announced. Maryland's capacity is estimated at 4,000 head.

Self-Help Campaign to Give 275 Virginia U. Students Jobs

University Is to Receive $37,000 From U. S. Agency.

Charlottesville, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—The continuation of the National program of part-time employment for needy college students, made possible by a recent additional appropriation of FERA funds, will provide 275 University of Virginia students with jobs during the 1934-35 session.

The university will receive approximately $37,000 for the self-help relief work. Under the supervision of Charles H. Kauffmann, director of the student self-help bureau, a list of projects has been devised which includes the employment of old and new students in all departments of the university.

Under provisions outlined by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, students may earn $20 a month for useful work not exceeding 30 hours a week. The Federal program has been amended to require 50 per cent of the jobs be made available to new students.

Mr. Kauffmann tentatively plans to reserve final action on new applicants until fall.

The customary jobs undertaken by students to work their way through school will be enlarged upon and additional ones provided. Most of the student employes will be assigned to clerical and library work in the various departments. Trained students will be installed as research and technical assistants.

The general library will be assigned 50 student assistants, the gymnasium will have 25 and the medical school will employ 21. Smaller numbers will be given work in other branches of the university.

In addition to the FERA jobs, it is planned to continue the normal operation of the self-help bureau.

Virginia U. Biological Station At Mountain Lake Dedicated

Charlottesville, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Dr. Ivey F. Lewis, Miller, professor of biology and agriculture and dean of the University of Virginia, has returned here from Mountain Lake, in southwest Virginia, where he attended the dedication of the University of Virginia's biological station. The principal address was delivered by Dean H. L. Price, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Lewis, director of the station, was in charge of the ceremonies. He thanked individuals and groups for their part in making the station possible, especially citing the general education board's donation of $25,000 and John B. Laing's gift of 100 acres of land on which the buildings are erected.

The work of the station since it was founded ten years ago was described by Prof. Bruce D. Reynolds, associate professor of zoology at the University of Virginia, who said attendance declined during the depression, but this year rose to 21 students, 6 being engaged in research.

Dean Price declared the site was ideal not only for a biological laboratory, but also for a station for the State department of game and inland fisheries and expressed the hope it might be put to such use.

Preceding the dedication the board of advisors of the biological station made an official inspection of the buildings. Board members present were Dr. Donald W. Davis, Dr. Lewis, Dr. A. B. Massey, Prof. Reynolds and Dr. S. A. Wingard.

Magistrate Moves Court After Tilt

Will Abandon Building in North Danville.

Danville, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—The little frame building in North Danville where justice has been dispensed by county magistrates for years will no longer serve that purpose for Magistrate Charles R. Warren has decided to set up his court at New Design, in Pittsylvania territory.

This was done following the episode of a week ago when Constable W. A. Brown, after exchanging words with the magistrate about a fee, was cited for contempt of court.

Brown fought the charge, contending he was in the city and that no county officer had the right to arrest him.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-Mark Applied For)

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

CHARGES of indolence and clock-watching at Interior and Public Works Administration and subsequent comments on spoilsmanship as the cause in the latter agency have rolled up a big wave of resentment among those employes.

BAKER

Overtime, insufficient lunch periods and irregular pay days are cited by PWA personnel to critics.

Miss Esther Penn, National secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Government Employes declared that the charges made by Secretary Ickes were "not surprising in view of the political complexion of PWA." Miss Penn's statement was part of a plea for extension of civil service (the merit system) to the emergency agencies, holding that "there are in the Government service many employes whose retention and promotion depend largely or entirely on their political backer. They have little incentive to give the best that is in them to the job and unfortunately, in many cases, are inclined to 'soldier' on the job."

While PWA employes admit that the calling to task of some of the men for eating breakfast on Government time was justified, it is pointed out that many of the employes put in many hours of overtime for which no reimbursement in either time or money is made.

The opening hour of 8 a. m. is for most of the PWA employes just one more hour of overtime work. The attorneys particularly and their aids are reported on a daily schedule of overtime, going home for dinner and coming back at 8 p. m. to work until 11 or midnight.

"Do you know," one of the PWA employes asked yesterday, "that when 'pay day' came around June 30, the PWA checks were held up until after July 4? And that the force was informed that they would be paid between 4:30 and 5 p. m. on July 3, despite the fact that the offices are supposed to close at 3:30?"

"The personnel remained at the office and was then informed that they would not be paid until July 5, although the checks were in the office at 1 p. m. on July 3."

On the July 15 "pay day" the procedure was repeated, the employes receiving their checks five days late.

Other employes point out that they had to qualify for their jobs by taking tests, wholly apart from political influence. In the case of stenographers, 120 words per minute were required.

"Critics should investigate the situation before jumping to conclusions and berating the employes," is the opinion of the PWA workers as they perspire over their desks each evening, long after the other departments have turned out and gone home.

Salute the Hero!

"Shame on the women for not giving a brave fellow a chance!" is the vociferous comment of the men in Commerce Building on the case of William J. Woolston (*), NRA employe who came to work in sensible clothes.

The hostile attitude of the women is mystifying.

"They (women) and infants," the sweltering men declare, "are the only people who wear sensible clothing these scorching days. It's the man 'who pays' in this hot weather. Nine out of 10 heat prostrations are men, while the women in their sleeveless, collarless, sheer dresses breeze through Washington's torrid summers cool and comfortable."

Mr. Woolston (*) is a martyr. The day is near when men will go to work, to church, to dine, to dance, to the theater on hot days in neat cravatless shirts with short sleeves, either shorts or very light-weight trousers.

For the sake of common sense, health, efficiency at work and enjoyment at play, let's hope that day will soon arrive! Executives in the Government and private industry and society matrons would do well to lead the way.

Sympathy is extended to Arthur P. Douglas, Public Relations Division, Internal Revenue, upon the sudden death of his brother, William C. Douglas, who retired from Geological Survey last December.

PICKETS, protesting the dismissal of John L. Donovan, former NRA employe and president of the NRA Lodge, No. 19, American Federation of Government Employes, yesterday were urged to halt their vigil at Commerce Building by E. Claude Babcock, president of AFGE.

"Inasmuch as the Donovan case has now been submitted to the National Labor Relations Board with a request for a hearing in the near future," Mr. Babcock said, "any further activity in the way of picketing may tend to prejudice Mr. Donovan's case before the board."

Mr. Babcock declared that the AFGE has not sanctioned and is in no way responsible for the picketing. However, the AFGE, he said, on one occasion did thank the pickets for their sympathy in the Donovan case.

Lost In The Antarctic.

Retreat of Dr. Poulter's expedition before the biting cold, the howling blizzards and the winter darkness of the Antarctic does not necessarily mean that Admiral Byrd is in danger. He remains completely isolated from Little America by 123 miles of treacherous ice barrier. At present the trail leading to his hideaway is obliterated. But as soon as the Antarctic night lifts and the weather moderates, tractors doubtless will make connections with this extreme outpost and return the explorer to his headquarters at Little America.

Admiral Byrd's isolation at the Bolling advance base, to make weather observations and apparently to test his own fortitude alone in the most hostile environment in the world, seems to have been one of the chief objectives of this second sojourn in Antarctica. He might have chosen to remain at Little America, where there is plenty of food, shelter, medical aid and companionship. But he deliberately assigned himself the task of keeping vigil in a lonely retreat which can not be reached during the long Antarctic night.

There have been a number of indications recently that Admiral Byrd is tired of his isolation. By radio he has told some rather pathetic stories of how he varied his daily routine to avoid the crushing monotony of his hibernation. The last message from his base reported that he had a "bad arm," without giving any details. Now his radio set seems to be out of order.

It does not appear that any trip between Little America and the advance base was contemplated during the winter season in the original plan. The perilous journey doubtless was undertaken because of Admiral Byrd's condition. But it could not be completed. When blizzards add to the natural darkness of sunless days and send the temperature lower than 70 degrees below zero, man's challenge to Nature is feeble indeed. Sick or well, discouraged or imperturbable, Admiral Byrd will have to remain at his post and wait for more propitious weather. The result may be distressing, it may be painful or even tragic, but in any event this courageous explorer, who has so frequently defied danger, will probably be ready to meet it.

"Pettifogging Tactics."

In upholding a temporary order restraining the NRA from depriving a clothing company of its Blue Eagle, Federal Judge Coleman charged counsel for the Government with pettifogging tactics. His anger was aroused apparently by the obstructionist methods adopted to prevent a hearing of the case on its merits at a later date. Judge Coleman is not concerned with the constitutionality of the Recovery Act, nor does he express an opinion concerning the disputed sections of the law. His object in sustaining the temporary order is to assure a legal decision on the important issues involved.

As the judge says, the Government should welcome an opportunity to test its authority under the Recovery Act instead of trying to avoid a showdown. Evasive or pettifogging tactics create a suspicion that the executive agencies of Government are not concerned about the legality of their practices, provided they attain the desired ends. Bureaucratic organizations are often tempted to exceed their powers in this way. Tendencies thus inimical to individual rights and liberties are not to be tolerated under a democratic government.

Legislative grants of power under the Recovery Act are so poorly defined and vaguely understood that executive rulings and regulations are in great need of clarification by judicial review. If constitutionally guaranteed rights are to be adequately safeguarded, the courts must be given an opportunity to determine the questions at issue in this and other cases that lead to conflicts between the recovery administration and industry.

Effective Police Work.

Final dissolution of the criminal gang which was operating in Washington and vicinity until recent weeks is overshadowed by excessive ballyhoo over the Dillinger slaying. But the excellent detective work which has been manifested in this case is far more important to the citizens of this community than the much-publicized manhunt which ended in Chicago.

The so-called "Tri-State Gang" was discovered operating in this area several months ago. Its alleged depredations include major cases of robbery, hijacking and murder. Baltimore and Richmond as well as Washington citizens were victimized. Local detectives, in cooperation with officers of several States, concentrated upon the case with the avowed purpose of completely exterminating the gang. Apparently that has now been accomplished.

In a fight with police last April the alleged leader of the gang was slain. Two other members were later captured in Baltimore. Another was arrested in Tennessee. Last week a fifth partner in this ring was fatally wounded in New York when he resisted arrest. Now the last-known participant has been taken into custody at San Francisco.

The police might have rested on their laurels when they had apparently broken up the gang and driven out of this region the members who eluded capture. It is a tribute to their persistence and effectiveness that they trailed the last of these alleged gangsters across the continent to hale him before the bar of justice. Organized crime will find it virtually impossible to obtain a foothold in Washington if this record can be upheld and if the courts function as well as the Police Department appears to have done.

Contingent Liabilities.

Bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation to the amount of $100,000,000 have been offered for sale by the Treasury, acting as agent of the corporation. The transaction is notable because it is the first public sale by the Treasury of the issues of the new Federal emergency agencies. Since the bonds are guaranteed by the Government, both as to principal and interest, they are from the point of view of the investor as good as direct Federal obligations. Recognition of that fact is reflected in the terms of the offering which call for a rate of interest not to exceed 3 per cent. As the 3 per cent bonds of the corporation now outstanding are quoted above par, it is anticipated that the new offering will be placed at the lowest rate carried by any Government issue since the war.

Farm mortgage bonds as well as home loan bonds and insured bonds to be issued under the housing act are classified as contingent liabilities, not as a direct charge against the public debt. However, as known contingent liabilities of this sort authorized by the Seventy-third Congress amount to an estimated $8,000,000,000, it is extremely important to know the extent and character of these advances—all of which constitute a potential burden upon the taxpayers.

Refinancing of farm and home loan mortgages, it is true, do not require heavy cash disbursements to borrowers, since bonds carrying Government guarantees are usually exchanged for outstanding obligations. If farm and homeowners meet payments on the advances made to them, the burdens of the taxpayer will not be increased. Nevertheless, to obtain a true picture of the state of Federal finances, the potential as well as the existing liabilities of the Government have to be considered. That is especially necessary when the Government underwrites the promises to pay of hard-pressed farmers and homeowners. The mere fact that it has been found essential to guarantee principal as well as interest in case of farm and home loan bonds shows the extent of the risk incurred in making such advances.

For purposes of clarification and analysis, it is, of course, desirable to segregate contingent liabilities from direct obligations of the Government, on which interest has to be met out of current revenues. From the point of view of the investor, however, fully guaranteed obligations belong in the same category as Government bonds. Certainly, if the public is to obtain any fair idea of the extent to which Government credit is being employed to finance current capital requirements, contingent liabilities must be included.

Nobody, of course, knows what the actual costs of the emergency program will be, since that will depend, in large measure, upon the extent of the losses incurred in underwriting private debts.

The Farmer's Special Tax.

Processing taxes on cotton, wheat, tobacco and other commodities included in the agricultural adjustment program amounted to over $371,000,000 during the last fiscal year. Chester C. Davis, administrator for the AAA, reports that benefit and rental payments to farmers totaled approximately $277,300,000 to June 29. Hence the processing taxes have to date more than offset the AAA disbursements which they were designed to cover, without allowance for obligations incurred but not yet discharged.

The processing taxes are unique in character. Indeed it is doubtful whether they ought to be carried in the regular revenue statements of the Government, since they are special levies upon certain processors of farm products imposed for the benefit of farmers who are cooperating in the adjustment plans of the AAA.

The benefits, as shown by the record, are not adjusted with exact reference to the amounts collected, nor could they be under the system which has been followed. Nevertheless, the amounts collected from the processors have been responsible for substantial increases in the income of cooperating farmers. For instance, wheat averaged 79 cents per bushel on June 15 and benefit payments amounted to 29 cents per bushel, making a total return of $1.08. In this case more than 25 per cent of the return to the cooperating farmer is represented by the benefit payments collected through the processing tax. The Agricultural Adjustment Administrator estimates that the benefit payments for all participating farmers average about 30 per cent of their income from basic crops.

These taxes are collected in large part from a few centers of processing activity. Thus about one-fifth of the wheat processing tax has been obtained from Minnesota, while Chicago has paid a large percentage of the corn-hog tax. To the extent that the levies are shifted to consumers in the form of higher prices or shifted back to farmers by depressing farm prices, the processor is relieved of the tax burden. Nevertheless, heavy and highly concentrated levies create difficult financing problems for the processing industries, decrease the volume of their business (if prices are raised to cover the taxes) and reduce profits to the extent that the taxes are absorbed.

As is the case with all forms of indirect taxation, the economic effects of the processing taxes are impossible to trace. Since the public is expected to pay the costs of farm adjustment program, however, in the form of higher prices, it would seem better to levy taxes directly upon the consumer in preference to following present methods.

Relief Plus Welfare.

Community Chest authorities throughout the country are much concerned over their 1934 campaigns for funds. A meeting of 34 National welfare agencies at the White House on September 28 to inaugurate a "mobilization for human needs" was called three weeks ago by Newton D. Baker, chairman of the group. But, according to John Stewart Bryan, president of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., the objective of this drive has been widely misunderstood. It is overshadowed by the extensive relief activities of the Government.

In spite of the vast expenditures of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, there is an urgent need for community welfare activities. The FERA is primarily concerned with the provision of food, clothing and shelter for unemployed families. Such community service as hospitalization, nursing, child and family welfare, recreation and guidance of youth are still largely financed through voluntary contributions. Mr. Bryan points out, for example, that 68 per cent of all hospital facilities are privately maintained. Free care for patients in these institutions has increased 46 per cent during the depression, while free care in Government hospitals has increased only 19 per cent. Obviously such service is a charge against the community in which it is rendered. It must be paid through voluntary contributions.

With the Government pouring out such large sums for direct relief, it is perhaps natural for the taxpayer to view requests for private charity with skepticism. But the problem should be regarded from its broader aspects. Welfare service as well as relief for the unemployed is essential under our modern social system. Mere bread and butter relief can not take the place of nursing service, neighborhood houses, boy scouts organizations, &c. Failure to support these institutions through private contributions would lead to a powerful demand for a Federal appropriation to finance them. Relief thus would tend to become more complicated and extravagant than it is now.

Support of community welfare activities is essentially a responsibility of local groups financed by citizens in accordance with their ability to contribute. It is of the utmost importance that this function should not be confused with the relief activities of the Government, which means that a liberal response to the forthcoming campaign for funds will be necessary.

Pittsburgh's Diogenes.

Declaring himself poor and glad of it, a first cousin of one of the country's richest men has been discovered "amid a scene of tenement debris" in Pittsburgh. "I wouldn't," he is quoted as saying, "trade this place for the best suite in the best hotel." Nor did he intend that comment as a reflection on Pittsburgh hostelries in particular, but upon luxury in general. "Here," he explained, "I can read, study and think."

He is right, but he is rare. Although plain living does induce high thinking, the philosopher voluntarily in his tub and the poet preferring his garret are more admirable than common. Outside the religious orders, few men choose poverty; most have it thrust upon them. In ordinary life, what is more encouraging than an isolated thinker in a squalid environment is the vast number of men and women who—without any show of austerity, and often amid surroundings of comfort, even of luxury—adopt and follow privately strict rules of life, observing abstinence in many things, "temperance in all."

Most of us are too dependent upon our material surroundings for that tranquillity of spirit which makes life worth living. We are too eager to forsake the severe for the easy. Even William A. Mellon, in that Pittsburgh tenement, ends by admitting "an interest in a Colorado mine which he hopes to develop," but apparently his equanimity is not tied up in it.

According to a psychologist, since the World War the average mental age of Americans has increased from 12 to 17 years. This is only mildly encouraging if you've listened to a 17-year-old girl talk to her sweeheart over the telephone.

Gen. Johnson, in a figure of speech, speaks of the futility of picking fleas out of a sand pile with boxing gloves. Even so, that might be as feasible as blasting them out with dynamite.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS between Austria-Hungary and Serbia were broken off. War appeared imminent. In Vienna the army was mobilizing and the nation was placed under martial law; St. Petersburg was the scene of the mobilization of five Russian army corps; in Belgrade the Serbian army, under King Peter, was mobilizing; the Kaiser ordered the German fleet mobilized and left Bergen for Berlin, and London saw statesmen working frantically to keep England out of the conflict.

Law and Order.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the average citizen notes that in the recent poll to determine the sentiment of labor as to strikes in the steel industry, 90 per cent of the men indicated that they wanted to continue to work; that most of our difficulties have been fomented by foreign-born radicals having the avowed purpose of destroying the American Government; that the business destroyed by these strikes and lost to the American people is being snatched by foreign countries, he has a feeling of being sold out by the Government.

A Government that can not or will not maintain law and order to such an extent that men who want to work will not be prevented from doing so by a handful of malcontents is not worthy of the name of government. In these labor difficulties, the Government should take the position that its first duty is to the great mass of law-abiding citizens, and that it will not permit extremists upon either side of these questions to imperil the welfare of the whole community.

An impartial tribunal should settle these questions, taking into consideration not only the rights of the owners of businesses, and of the professional laborites, but also the rights of the great mass of unorganized workers who do not desire to be represented by extreme leftists. F. G. CAMPBELL.

True Leaders.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every time I read The Post, and I read it regularly, it makes me more and more interested in everything within its perfect fold. Besides the high journalistic swing in which all the news is daily gathered and written, the editorial page appeals to me most. It is the soul of the paper. Literally it is a page where every reader can gather paramount materials for thought and reflection. My enthusiasm in it makes me feel like voicing my opinion on leadership.

I wonder if there are really leaders who are worth following! Nearly everybody wants to be the leader of an endless parade. This being a machine era, observe how the drivers race their cars to get in front! Fliers soar their airplanes to get somewhere, maybe to win the trophy and cash money. The result sometimes turns out a horrible tragedy. Terrible accidents, unreasonable deaths! The cost is beyond estimation.

In politics, watch how the ones engaged in it aspire for leadership. They are all giving their best, so it seems, to win that coveted name, which is often inspired by Mammon. The competition being keen, the would-be leaders work themselves to exhaustion to reach the top.

There are men and women whose hearts burn with the desire to lead us toward unselfish ends. They are the leaders whose minds sparkle with brilliance shining the path to sublime ideals. They understand our needs and know how to solve our problems, not only in the questions of food, shelter and clothing, but, above all, in the necessity of harmony, cooperation and spiritual unity. Watch for these true leaders; give them the power or chance to guide us. Then we shall no longer worry.

SYLVESTER SATURDAY.

Washington, July 20.

Parties of Both Parts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The publication of film salaries by the Democratic Administration, upon the investigation of Mr. Sol Rosenblatt, NRA division administrator, is pure socialism. The matter of the salary paid an employe by an employer is, morally, something that concerns only the two parties involved. Its publication by the Government, even if the names are withheld, is intended merely to stir up resentment on the part of voters against the social organization that permits one individual to earn more than another.

Manifestly, the salary received by one who entertains millions through the possession of special talents, is of no concern to the man who mines three or four tons of coal a day. He could not emulate the film star's example unless he became a second Harry Lauder. Yet we can not imagine a thousand or ten thousand Harry Lauders filling the music halls nightly. They would become a drug on the market. People would run from them. It is their rarity that entices.

The Socialists polled 884,781 votes for President in 1932. If the Democratic Administration continues along this road to a hybrid form of socialism, it is easy to see where it will end up in 1936. But continue it will, since it is in the present leader's blood. To borrow from Mr. Beck: God save the United States from a union of socialized States.

Putting on Side.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the three decades that automobiles have been supplanting horse-drawn vehicles I have observed a queer type of men, each always meticulously running round his woman companion at each sidewalk corner turned in an obvious effort to keep on the outside.

That position was justifiable and necessary in my boyhood days when numerous saddle horses, buggy horses and delivery-wagon horses were hitched along the curb and occasionally nipped at a sidewalk passerby and regularly stamped to free their legs from pestering flies and in doing so not infrequently splashed liquid gutter filth onto the nearest passerby. Then women wore long trailing skirts, there were no dry-cleaning processes, and a man's position on the outside was somewhat protective, especially so when a runaway came careening wildly down the dusty or muddy street.

But nowadays, with no such gutter or street menaces and with much of the way protectively barricaded on the street side by a wall of parked and vacant automobiles, the practical danger is chiefly from the inside, where sudden egress from building doorways or from service alleys constitutes the buffeting or dirtying menace requiring male protection to be walking on the inside.

Often I have observed that men so intent on repeatedly going through the ceremonial of the outside shift are much less personally concerned as to whether or not their finger-nails are habitually and disgustingly dirty.

A Serious Operation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under date of July 17 you published on the front page of The Post an article entitled "Husband's Thyroid Removed, Wife Hopes for Domestic Bliss." If you remove the thyroid gland a person could not live. The removal of a goiter means that the enlarged growth around the thyroid gland is cut away and removed; the gland is not removed.

This is a very common error made by newspapers, and I am surprised that The Post should make such a simple mistake. B. H.

Washington, July 17.

Health Menaces.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to express my hearty approval of the letter of Alice Chadwick of July 21 under the caption "Put 'Em to Work." It is deserving of repeating and should be widely circulated. I agree with her in every particular.

Under date of July 22 I am sending a letter to Mr. George E. Allen, Commissioner of the District of Columbia, who has supervision over the Health Department, inviting his attention to the letter of Alice Chadwick and urging some additional service in the department mentioned above; also, that the Health Department dispense with the practice now in effect of issuing permits to outsiders to collect garbage in certain sections of the city, thus losing the revenue derived from the disposal of the garbage.

I am at a loss to understand why such arrangements were ever put into effect. I have advocated to the Commissioners that more garbage trucks be purchased if there is a shortage of same, also that more men be employed, and that a daily service be inaugurated as soon as possible. I made mention of the fact that some of these outside garbage collectors do not have sanitary receptacles or vehicles to transport the garbage through the streets of the District.

It is a menace to the health of our citizens to allow such practices to continue. I also agree with Alice Chadwick that there is plenty of cause for the complaints spoken of relative to the littering of the streets with trash and paper.

If there is a shortage of funds or men to do the work, let the facts be made known and remedies found toward correcting them. Cleanliness is not only essential, but is imperative. Let the good work along the lines mentioned be speeded up as rapidly as possible.

HENRY F. ASH.

Washington, July 22.

On Hobby Horses.

The great issue of what to do with leisure time, that won the earnest study of philosophers in recent months, seems to have dissolved somewhat. Those out of work, or working only part time, do not seem to need the ministrations of experts as to what to do with spare time. Yet is true that the wise man makes his leisure time add to his knowledge, or his happiness, or his health.

Ernest Elmo Calkins, who, because of deafness, spends more time alone than the average successful executive, has written a sage little book on "The Care and Feeding of Hobby Horses." He looks ahead to the time when the 30-hour week will be the rule for most workers, and he wants to help them get more joy out of life by the more pleasant employment of their nonproductive hours. He points out that no one can call us to account of the time, outside of shop or office, that we waste; the difficulty is, that we are often ignorant as to how best to waste it. He suggests the hobby.

There's a double reward in cultivating a hobby. It makes for greater happiness for oneself, and it makes one more interesting to others. There's an infinite variety of hobbies available for hard riding, and no field is overcrowded. There are things that one may play, things one may do, things one may make, things one may collect, things one may learn, all of which may add to the richness and variety of life, and which may be adapted to the impulses, the natural inclinations, and the purse of the individual.

One caution should be observed. The best hobby is something followed for the sheer pleasure and fun of it, not because one "ought" to do it. When "ought" comes in, with its compulsions, the hobby horse ceases to offer a pleasure ride; it becomes the stern taskmaster.

Music in the (Native) Air.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

WE need remind none of our regular readers how abhorrent to this Column is the slightest hint of controversy. So we need describe to none of them the pain we have endured in discovering a tendency toward controversy in one of our irregular readers. We merely publish typical bubbles from his ebullition and add a few soothing explanations.

It is Mr. Frank Baer who is ebullient. We do not know Mr. Baer, and if he knew us better—— However——

* * *

You remember our reprint from Mr. W. J. Henderson's article in a recent American Mercury. Mr. H. is rather well thought of by some musical sages. What we think of him we didn't say then—and certainly won't say now. What he thought of American music was the point in question. Well, we merely quoted—quoted without comment—that simple thought, which was that he didn't think much of American music.

"The eminent Mr. W. J. Henderson, of whom you wrote recently," says Mr. Baer, "is a near-sighted gentleman who has stayed too long in New York—or if he travels, it is to Europe, where it is impossible to hear American music. He deplores the lack of American music and from his technical pedestal asks: 'Where is it?'

"Mr. Henderson, just look around, look sharply and you'll find it.

"It has been coming from sources that are unknown to you—from people of whom, I suspect, you have never heard. It is coming from such men as Lamar Stringfield, Jerome David Kern, John Powell, Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Howard Hanson and a dozen other men, more or less of the popular school of music. These men are important to their era as Bach and Beethoven were important to the German period of music—if there is such a thing as the German period."

* * *

That is exactly the way Mr. Baer starts out. We haven't added a name to his catalogue or a phrase to his comparison.

"You say we have no folk-music," he continues. (At first we thought that we were the antecedent to this "you," but we are willing to believe that it is Mr. Henderson.) "In that statement you overlook a wealth of materials that are coming to the front and being used. Our varied and constrasted communities are singing ones. Take a tramp through the Appalachian hills or into the Southwest, where the Spanish influence remains, and you will see. Of course, these folk materials have been transplanted, but they have taken root in American soil—and if anything can be called American, they can.

"The fact that the American Indian music—revived and classified by some of the best research experts—has not captured popular fancy is no proof that that background is a myth. Aren't you a little put out with matters American, Mr. Henderson, and aren't you just a trifle prejudiced in favor of anything European? Aren't you prone to stand by the classic school with such a Nazi determination that you refuse to admit that a lot of classical music is rubbish and, worse, than that, dull and characteristic of nothing?

"I maintain that it is fair and authentic to accept the transplanted musical materials as American, inasmuch as they have merged with the life and manners and spirit of the new lands to which they were taken, and have come, with the passing of centuries, to express a meaning that is American—a meaning that has no relation to Europe or the rhythm of European life.

"The younger American composers are learning to use the materials at hand. Kern did 'Show Boat,' a work that is truly American. Don't tell me he borrowed Beethoven or Bach or Schumann or the bombastic Liszt to achieve 'Ol' Man River.' And though you deplore Gershwin's 'shop-worn Rhapsody in Blue,' that energetic composer is writing 'Porgy' and living with the Negroes, about whom the play is written, while he works out his score.

"Though we in American life may lack classicists, Mr. Henderson, we do have youth—daring, experimental, laughing young-bloods who are digging into our National consciousness and finding the elements that compose our natures, our dreams, our destinies. And these men, who are writing what is ineptly called 'light music,' are the men who are creating American music."

* * *

So there you are! The field of American consciousness is just one mass of excavations—and Mr. Henderson, according to Mr. Baer, knew nothing about it!

"Get away," cries Mr. Baer—"get away from the legends and auras that cling to the heads of Mozart and Bach and see the situation clearly, not through a fog that is filled with the faces, in mirage, of the 'old gentlemen' . . . And knock off a day and go to the Ozarks, or the Kentucky-Tennessee country, or into the backwoods of Georgia, or out to the pueblo lands and see the Indians dance. There you will find freshness of ideas, and let technique go hang!"

Well, we should like to knock off and go somewhere, too; though, in this weather, we should probably trend in a northerly direction.

But before we went we should again insist that we were only quoting Mr. Henderson. Neither he nor Mr. Baer is going to get us to take sides in this matter

All of which is respectfully referred to Mr. Henderson.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

Where Caesar Bled.

WORKING with half-sharp, half-tender brush strokes on the wide panorama of the deep South of '61-'64, Stark Young gives us his monumental "So Red the Rose" (Scribner, $2.50). Like most monuments, it commemorates something infinitely tenuous and fragile—in this case, a distillate of flowers and tears, of grave manners and gentle talk, of the lovely, stately life which bloomed once in the old South and is now gone forever. How, why, there is still no telling. Historians may point to the evolution of democracy; economists know that Southern aristocracy could not pay for itself; statisticians remember that long before the War of the States the institution of slavery was waning. All that may be so. Or it may be (and Mr. Young's novel suggests this powerfully) no more and no less, than the poetic truth that loveliness must of its own nature fade. For there flows all through his pages that primary and boundless pathos of things and men. Straight from Omar Khayyam comes his spirit as well as his title. "I sometimes think that never blows so red

THEO. HALL

* * * *

The redness of these roses and the bitter bleeding of these Caesars reach us, as poetic truth should, in overtones. That is, the novel is story, story, and then more story. So many characters and lives have seldom been bound up in one volume, even though it be 431 pages long.

If the scene stays close to Natchez, that proud city on the yellow bluffs high over the scum and turmoil of Natchez-under-the-Hill, and the acts, revolve chiefly around the McGehees and the Bedfords in their great plantation mansions of Montrose and Portobello, yet the arm of the story reaches out. The tenacious relationships of the South are the means. There is a son to talk with old-school, Jefferson Davis, quoting Latin among his melons. There is a cousin to report Lee and Grant at Appomattox, in the house of that man who had moved discomfitedly from Manassas only to have the war end in his parlor. There is the death of a son to bring Tecumseh Sherman, one-time superintendent of cadets in Louisiana, over the threshhold of Montrose—the conqueror but very far from joy. And the relationships reach out farther and farther, until all the quintessential South is brought onto these pages.

Yet for all his cherishing of these bright, brave scenes, Mr. Young can have a character say: "And I tell you one thing—Sir Walter Scott will be the ruin of the South, so much so I'd take my oath on it." There had come news from Shiloh that Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston had stopped to let his own surgeon attend a Federal petty officer. Then a minie ball had struck Johnston's leg. In an hour or two Johnston was dead, and what might have been victory for the South was not. "Chivalry's dead," cries some one, "and we'll have to learn that fact in the South or we won't stand a dog's chance!" Mark Twain was to point out later that same heritage from the author of "Kennilworth." Meanwhile, though beautiful, it is pure pathos.

* * * *

It is hard to include here all the excellences of "So Red the Rose." The scope of understanding is tremendous, and the little touches no less keen and telling. Let me jot down a few at random.

The habit of Malcolm Bradford, when a young man is calling on a young lady of the house, of sending down his watch on a silver tray, lid open, at 10:30.

A remark: "A Natchez child is born into a perfect academy of memories. I won't say all sacred."

A descriptive note: "Everybody talked, as only a Southern family can, talking to each other for the love of all; whatever subjects of conversation there might be were knocked down like a feather."

Duncan Bradford writing home on Jeb Stuart's fancy imported notepaper. The general had noticed him scrawling on the edge of a newspaper, and had made him take his own. "I do this because your buttons are so bright," laughed the Dixie dandy, greatest of cavalry commanders.

At the burning of Montrose by the Negro Federals, the white officer who took down Hugh McGehee's beloved books, glanced at them, crumpled the pages, and tossed them into the flames—"More than any of the rest this angered Hugh; his wife laid her hand on his arm." Later, of this same officer—"On one sleeve some falling cinders from Montrose had burnt a large hole in the blue cloth; he kept looking at that."

William Veal, the mulatto butler at Montrose, who hid the silver in the woods and brought it out later. The McGehees gave him a black tailed coat, and a gold watch inscribed: "Fidus Achates of the McGehees family."

Miss Mary Cherry, tart spinster, an "Amazonian in buckram," who told of her encounter with Sherman; "But I never cussed him, never said 'You damned abomination.' I said, 'You damned abomination, so to speak.'"

Uncle Pindar, the old slave, crying out: "Bully for Lincoln! Bully for Jesus! One freed de body, one freed de soul. Can y'all gimme two bits, Marse?"

* * * *

And over all the incidents and characterizations, the broad humor and the choking drama, perfectly seen and perfectly wrought, broods the nostalgic tenderness of a man who loves the Old South none the less for the reason that it had to go.

Revamp NRA to Curb Monopolies, Nye Asks

North Dakota Senator Wants Anti-Trust Laws Restored, But Would Save Labor Features of Present Program.

By Robert C. Albright.

A major operation on the NRA, salvaging wage, hour and child labor features, puncturing "monopoly rule," and substituting Federal Trade Commission control of business agreements, yesterday was forecast by Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Progressive.

Just back from the sizzling West, the traditional advocate of anti-trust laws proposed their return in full force to check the growth of monopolies. He reported "dissatisfaction" everywhere with NRA, west of the Mississippi.

Pausing to pay brief but frigid respects to the G. O. P., which he said hasn't a chance of winning the 1936 Presidential election, the North Dakotan nevertheless proclaimed the New Deal under Roosevelt not "liberal" enough. In the same breath, he declared he would join a third party movement rather than return to "Hoover conservatism."

Sitting shirtsleeved at his desk in the Senate Office Building—talking so rapidly that newsmen with racing pencils had to struggle to keep up with him—Nye assailed the regime of deposed Gov. William Langer of North Dakota, and eulogized his successor, Ole Olseon.

Willing to Aid Probe In North Dakota.

NO subpena, he said, will be necessary to take him back to North Dakota, if the present special session of the State's legislature is legally constituted, and wants information he has.

Senator Nye left the tempestuous North Dakota political arena and returned to Washington yesterday to see how his special committee investigation of the munitions industry is progressing.

But he made it clear he will go back West in a week or two in time to meet the President's party on its inspection of the Devil's Lake, N. Dak., irrigation project. He will be available then if the Langer investigators want him, he said.

Renewing the assault on NRA "small business" policies he launched last winter with Senator William E. Borah, the North Dakota Progressive declared the NRA, under Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, "has failed as a recovery stimulus."

Opposed to Extension Of Present NRA Set-Up.

NYE served notice he will vigorously oppose any attempt to extend the life of the agency in its present form, when its present legal span expires next June. He outlined two bills he will offer when Congress returns, proposing wholesale revision of present blue eagle procedure.

Briefly, his program proposes:

With the consent of the Federal Trade Commission, business would be authorized to enter into fair trade practice agreements, without any price-fixing implications.

"Fair trade boards," modeled somewhat along lines of existing code authorities, and representing every business element, would hear complaints and serve to bridge the gap between Government and business.

A new system of eight Federal courts would be set up, dealing exclusively with industrial and business relations and handling all judicial questions growing out of trade practice agreements.

The Senator's renewed attack on NRA coincided with a new spurt of activity by the National recovery agency. Administration officials announced 144 small industrial groups have been brought under basic codes in the last two weeks, ranging from "fly swatter" to "hog nose ring" manufacturers. The goal set July 12 was 262 small codes in 30 days.

Prohibitions on child labor would be retained, along with minimum wage and maximum hour agreements, but administration of these and other remaining vestiges of the NRA would be shifted to Federal Trade Commission.

Sherman antitrust legislation would be invoked again in all of its former stringency.

Says Democrats Avoid Talk on NRA Flaws.

DISCUSSING the fall campaign, Senator Nye said Democrats recognize flaws in the NRA and "are ducking that issue." He was more lenient in his criticism of the farm relief program under the AAA, although he said there seemed to be "a sort of religious fervor against crop reduction efforts."

"There is the feeling, among some at least, that old Dame Nature grew jealous at man's efforts, and proceeded to do the job in her own fashion," he said.

"But the only income farmers in some drought-stricken sections of my State are drawing comes in AAA benefit payments."

Nevertheless, he insisted, there is growing resentment against processing taxes, with some farmers complaining they are bearing the brunt of the levy.

"Yet the Republicans are badly fooled if they think they can return to 1932," he added.

He predicted the Republican party would nominate an Eastern conservative for President in 1936, and get badly beaten. He said the choice would probably lie between Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, or Representative James Wadsworth, of New York.

Not to Cooperate With G. O. P. Regulars in November.

Nye clearly indicated he had no intention of cooperating with Republican regulars in the November campaign, implying he was never consulted about his appointment to the Republican campaign committee.

He said he has campaign plans of his own which include stumping Minnesota for Senator Henrik Shipstead, Wisconsin for Senator Robert La Follette, and New Mexico for Senator Bronson Cutting. All three members of the Senate Progressive bloc are up for reelection.

While Nye said the New Deal Administration "has not reflected the measure of liberality Progressive desire," he said establishment of a central banking system, divorcing Government financing from the banks and making for "cheaper money," would do much to win their favor.

Referring to North Dakota's political upheaval over ousting of former Gov. Langer, Nye indorsed as "marvelously fine and sane, the course pursued by the present Governor, Ole Olseon, since his induction into office."

During the trial of Langer, Nye charged testimony showed the former Governor made assessments against State employes, "diverted the money to his personal account, and invested it in grain, and then moved to place grain embargoes to force grain prices upward."

Answering Langer charges that Nye was responsible for his so-called "persecution," the North Dakota Senator commented:

"I could hardly be expected to admit that I caused departments of the Federal Government to ask indictment of Langer, that I appointed the grand jury which indicted him, or that I fixed the judge and jury which tried and convicted the Governor."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Yellow Hat's Return.

("Tammany Hall has welcomed Al Smith back into its councils."—News item).

Let the war whoops rise and echo
And the drums be smote forthwith!
Tammany's gone Democratic—
It has let in Alfred Smith!

Beat the tom-toms with great gusto,
Let the firewater flow,
For the Wigwam has decided
Al's a man it ought to know.

Five long years had Al been missing
When the braves had smoked the pipe,
But the new chief, Jih-mee Doo-ling
Has decided he's the type.

Long had Alfred (Yellow Derby)
Sat outside the feathered fold
With his blanket drawn about him
To protect him from the cold.

To his pleas for better Injuns
There had come the answer, "No!"—
To his talk of much reforming
They had barked, "He's crazy, bo!"

When Heap Yellow Derby told 'em
That the tribe was getting sour,
They just ordered more fine feathers
And talked wampum by the hour.

Al had once been quite a red man,
But they showed him to the gate,
For he talked too much, and loudly,
Of the path that's hard and straight.

Then the lean days fell upon them
And the pickings, they were few;
Many braves sat in the Wigwam
Crying loudly, "What to do?"

Then they saw that times were changing—
That the good old days were dead,
And they picked a lean and young brave
And they put him at their head.

Oh, the young chief he had wisdom,
Oh, his head it was not fat;
He said, "Brothers, let's quit fooling—
How we need that Derby Hat!"

Some braves grunted disapproval,
Others kept their mouths shut tight,
But they knew, despite their gruntings,
That the new boy-chief was right.

So the Warrior Brown Derby
Now is back with that old hat,
And it seems to be conceded
Alfred Smith's a Democrat!

Anyway, Uncle Sam Still Has His First War to Lose.

Well, the war between John Dillinger and the United States of America has ended.

Dillinger was shot as he came out of a moving picture house. In other words, he was practically asleep

It was one case, judging from stories of the slaying, where a movie patron found the sign "Twenty Degrees Cooler Inside" more than true.

The surprising thing about the Dillinger case is that this time it was the girls who escaped.

Ozzie Nelson says a Scotch friend of his sings that new ditty, "I'll String Along On You."

Others, however, are uncertain about the future and expect to be told tomorrow whether they will be released or transferred. The consolidation is explained here as an economic move.

Fairies.

"Do you believe in fairies?" was the tremendous question asked in the play "Peter Pan," and although it was asked of hundreds and hundreds of different audiences, it always received the same answer.

Fairies and fairyland are of all countries and of all ages in the world's history, although there is no better place to look for these creatures than in Ireland. And I will add that if they exist anywhere, I am certain they exist there. The fairies have had a long and prodigious influence on Irish literature and on the Irish people, and they have been seen by many. Where would be the Irish without fairies?

There have been good fairies and evil fairies; some of them had the disconcerting habit of changing babies in the cradle, and indeed of doing many other things beyond the power and often beyond the will of mere human beings.

Some individuals, of course, had a particular fairy as a companion, or guardian, or lover; and others were unfortunate enough to have a following-fairy, who meant no good.

The greatest two plays in the theater on fairies are "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Peter Pan"—worthy to stand together. But the best poem I have ever seen on the fairies is by a woman now living in London. Her name is Rose Flyeman. She is of Jewish parentage, has had a university education, is a professional musician and singer, a regular contributor to Punch, and author of many books. She has lectured in America—although I have never seen her. When I read the following poem aloud to a university professor and asked him if he knew who had written it, he replied, "Well, it was certainly written by a man, for no woman would be able to write a thing of such perfection." It is a masterpiece, and if the fairies can read English, how they must enjoy it!

The fairies have never a penny to spend,
They haven't a thing to put by,
But theirs is a dower of bird and flower
And theirs is the earth and sky.
And though you should live in a palace of gold
Or sleep in a dried-up ditch,
You could never be poor as the fairies are,
And never as rich.

Since ever and ever the world began
They have danced like a ribbon of flame,
They have sung their songs through the centuries long
And yet it is never the same.
And though you be foolish or though you be wise,
With hair of silver or gold,
You can never be young as the fairies are,
And never as old.

It Isn't Slavery to Wear Yoke You Accept Willingly

By Robert Quillen

Anybody who fears the destruction of liberty in America is seeing things in the dark. It simply isn't happening and can't happen unless some miracle changes the mental attitude of our people.

When the NRA was newly established, there was some official effort to convince the public that any criticisms of the plan was similar to treason.

That attitude was understandable, for the captain was making a desperate effort to save a foundering ship and any interference seemed a gross disloyalty.

But the NRA was nothing more nor less than the law of the land. To obey its provisions was to be law-abiding; to disobey was to be an outlaw.

As a matter of fact, numerous concerns great and small did disobey, and their disobedience prompted serious discussion of their "right" to disobey.

Well, one law is no more binding than another. Have citizens the right to ignore any law that displeases them? That is the question.

When an obscure dry-cleaner was punished for disobeying NRA rules, the general public felt sorry for him and thought his punishment unfair. When great corporations refused to obey and were not punished, the people said: "They are not above the law; they should be forced to obey."

It was the story of Prohibition repeated. Those who disapproved the law ignored it if they dared. And they did it with the conviction that they were right and the law wrong.

That could happen only in a free country.

When the will of the king was the will of God, no man had the right to question the law. The very fact that it existed made it right.

But under a government by the people, law must be the will of the people. It can't be anything else.

If a law represents the will of the people, it is obeyed. If it doesn't represent their will, they don't obey it. And it becomes a dead letter or is repealed.

That may be wrong. You may argue that law is sacred and should be obeyed, whether approved or disapproved.

But the people simply don't function that way. If they accept a curtailment of their liberties, it is because they like it. And so long as they feel that way and act that way, the spirit and fact of liberty remain secure.

Drive on Cattle Disease Starts

Indemnities Will Be Paid Owners of Herds for Killing Animals.

The Department of Agriculture has begun its new campaign against cattle diseases in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, it was announced yesterday. The work will be extended soon to other States, according to the Associated Press.

The campaign is being carried on in cooperation with State officials under the Jones-Connally act, passed at the last session, which permits the payment of indemnities for diseased cattle slaughtered.

The testing is voluntary on the part of herd owners, but once it is begun, the herd owner must continue blood-testing his cattle in accordance with regulations until his herd is eligible for accreditation.

The maximum indemnity paid for slaughtered grade females more than 6 months old is $20 per head, and for pure-bred cows and bulls over 6 months, $50. The present object of the campaign is to combat Bang's disease.

Early Virginia River Development Scouted

Various Government officials and Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, disclaimed any knowledge yesterday of "immediate plans to undertake an extensive power and navigation development on the New and James Rivers in Virginia, costing millions of dollars, the Associated Press reported.

Such an undertaking was rumored as under consideration several days ago, but at the Federal Power Commission, Army Engineers Office, Public Works and National Planning Board it was said nothing was known of any such plans.

Police Guard Stabbing Trial

Precautions Taken as Man Testifies in Killing of Officer.

Cambridge, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Howard McClendon, colored, went on trial today in the Circuit Court of Dorchester County charged with the fatal stabbing, April 28, of Harry Daugherty, Crisfield night officer.

The trial was removed to this county after it was deemed advisable to use every protective measure to safeguard the life of the accused, who asked a trial by the court. Chief Judge John R. Pattison, of Cambridge, and Associated Judges Joseph L. Bailey, of Salisbury, and Robert F. Duer, of Princess Anne, were on the bench. About 35 witnesses were called, most of them relating lurid stories which showed a terrific struggle between the 170-pound policeman and the 120-pound Negro.

According to the testimony, McClendon returned to a house in a colored settlement of Crisfield in a drunken condition the night of the tragedy, and threatened to shoot his common-law wife, Emma Thomas, who ran out and called Daugherty.

Ruth Taylor, colored, told of hearing Daugherty reason with McClendon, but when refused entrance the patrolman forced his way into the house, which was assailed by the defense as an unlawful procedure, since no writ was in the hands of the officer. Upon this point the defense, represented by Harry Dashiell and Gordon Tull, of Princess Anne, based their entire argument.

The accused took the stand in his own behalf, making emphatic denial to the charges.

Late this afternoon court recessed until 9 a. m. tomorrow. McClendon was brought here this morning in a car from the Baltimore Jail, where he has been ever since his capture.

High Proof Beer Sale Nabs Grocer

Fredericksburg, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Charges against Hassan Slyman, grocer, of selling high proof beer without a grocer license will be heard Saturday morning, police said today after Slyman, arrested this morning, was released on $500 bond.

Slyman admitted not having a on charges of illegal sale of intoxicants, since repeal of State prohibition. A warrant was served on him by S. B. Perry, chief of police, upon information from C. R. Coleman, State revenue inspector, that Slyman had been selling beer of more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content.

Slyman admited not having a license for the sale of high proof beer, but maintained that if such beer had been sold in his store, it was through a mistake. He displayed a letter written sometime ago to wholesale distributors asking them to leave only 3.2 beer on his shelves.

Pulaski Expenses Under Estimates

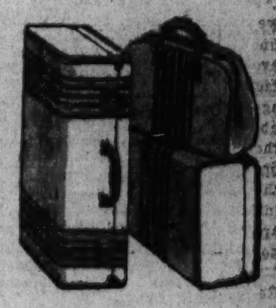

Pulaski, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Pulaski County affairs have been administered financially at less than the budget proposal, with a substantial balance in each fund, with no floating indebtedness, and every warrant issued paid.

This was reflected in the annual settlement between J. F. Wysor, county treasurer, and the board of supervisors, for the year ended June 30. In addition, requisite additions have been made to all sinking funds in connection with bond issues of the county.

The report shows the county expended $2,862.73 less than the budget proposal. Schools were operated eight and a half months last session, but it is hoped they can be continued nine months the approaching term.

Radio Waves and Ripples

BOLD, brave "meller drammer" of the old school may chill the air waves tomorrow night if N. B. C. gets enough telephone poles set up leading to the Roadside Theater, near Bethesda, Md.

Known for their entertaining renditions of such pieces as "The Sailor's Revenge" and "Murder in the Red Barn," this local group of drama enthusiasts have been offered two hours and a half on WMAL at 8:30 p. m.

If some one pays the telephone line charges and those poles are set up in time, Jim McGrath, N. B. C.'s master of drollery, will make remarks during intermissions in the five-act piece set for the boards tomorrow.

Productions of the Roadside Theater are noted for the fact that the entire cast suspends operations when the train passes by their theater barn each night at 8:45 p. m. Audiences, too, have learned to clap and hiss at the proper moments.

IT took Art Godfrey, WJSV's record-busting maestro, a goodly while to save up $50, the requisite fee for membership in the Musicians Protective Union.

Yesterday he walked into the local office, signed the papers, took the oath, and was duly registered as "Brother Godfrey."

"You folks get us jobs?" questioned Art.

"Oh! No! You go to the contractor," was the answer.

Later in the day the union wired him:

"Congratulations! Brother Godfrey. Can use you soon as piccolo or flute double. Advise."

No help at all! For Art and the minds late Monday night decided his talents might be better employed as master of ceremonies at the Club Michel, where he begins an engagement tonight with a 10-piece band. Now each night until 12:30 a. m. he can wave a stick at the musicians and tell the customers all about it over WJSV from 10 to 10:30 p. m.

Little Miss Helen Ault, winner of Columbia's local "Hollywood Hotel" audition, will be present tonight as guest artist.

Ferde Grofe (director of Columbia's "Americana" program)—"What I have wanted to do since childhood was to set the American scene to music."

Carson Robison (singer and writer of hill-billy tunes)—"There is something about a hunch . . . the subconscious result of logical reasoning."

Kate Smith (deserted moons for oceans)—"How deep is the ocean? It's a lot deeper when I go swimming."

Fred Waring (now touring with his band)—"Responses of visible audiences are refreshing. They serve as a barometer of invisible audiences' musical tastes."

Your Announcer Is. . . .

FRED SHAWN: Though N. B. C. customers know him as assistant manager of WRC, his intimates (they are many) will cheer you for hours with the "success story" of this handsome, wavy-haired bass singer with the hazel eyes who has found a natural flowering of his talents in radio. Even at Pomona College, which is within walking distance of Hollywood, they took note of his powerful but pleasing bass voice which started him off to a tortuous road of fame via stage, screen and radio in a unit known as "Cheer Leaders Quartet." When the bass notes got stuck Fred sold papers, silk hosiery, apples, farmed a bit and passed his velvety fingers over checks in a bank. Followed bits in pictures and a notable engagement with Ziegfeld's "Follies," the last edition before that producer's death. Then he soloed with Cincinnati's WLW until N. B. C. minds here sought his talents. Fred has covered special "Hill" jobs. Betimes he sticks to his desk, but not too close to know the latest in radio developments. Ambition: "To stick with radio." Dislikes people who get by on bluff. Favorite song (which the Shawn voice does up brown) is "Ol' Man River." Nix on the "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" stuff for Fred. Today when they want to know things, it's "ask Fred Shawn."

This is Frank Buck, intrepid animal hunter who has regaled you with tales of his narrow escapes from writhing boas and cunning cobras. You may hear him in dramatizations of his thrilling experiences daily except Saturday and Sunday at 6:45 p. m. over N. B. C. networks.

FLASH! Maxie Baer, leading light of fisticuffs, will be interviewed today at 6 p. m. over WMAL by Billy Coyle, N. B. C. sports announcer.

Herr Maxie will speak about the Carnera fracas and dwell somewhat on his meeting with Max Schmeling. Billy McCardy, manager for Natie Brown and also for Schmeling, will give his version of what happened.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Lena Madesin Phillips, president, National Council of Women, reporting on accomplishments of women's conferences, 2:30 p. m.; Mrs. Mabelle Honour, speaking on "Opportunities and Requirements in the Beauty Culture Field," 4:30 p. m.; Fred Allen and James Melton, tenor, on Town Hall Tonight spot, 8 p. m.; Harllee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General, speaking on "The New Air Mail Set-up," 10:30 p. m.

WMAL—Dr. Mary Dabney Davis, specialist in nursery problems, reporting on forthcoming school problems in the United States, 5 p. m.; second episode and conclusion of "Cop Killer," murder mystery on crime clues, 7 p. m.; Goldman Band featuring Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and the 'Magic Flute," 8 p. m.; Maxie Baer, heavyweight champ, refereeing legion bouts at Florida avenue arena, 10:15 p. m.

WJSV—Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, explaining the purposes of the new securities act, from Press Club, 1:30 p. m.; discussion of plight of America's 200,000 homeless boys and girls by Manafred Lilliefors, director, Federal Transient Bureau, New York, 2:30 p. m.; Marie Byrd Carbone, aged 6 months, and Joseph Byrd Pelter, aged 8 months, howling from crib-side microphones for benefit of their fathers with the Byrd expedition in Little America, 9 p. m.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The Resolute was one of the many relief ships that sailed in vain attempts to rescue Sir John Franklin, famed arctic explorer who was lost in an ill-fated exploration trip. The Franklin expedition was last sighted in July of 1845 in Baffin Bay, and none of its members was ever seen again alive.

The relief party which included the Resolute sailed from England in 1852 in charge of Sir Edward Belcher, with Capt. Kellett in command of the Resolute. The relief expedition ran into trouble and the Resolute had to be abandoned in May 1854, icebound off Melville Island. The crew transferred to another ship.

Late the following year Capt. Buddington, of the United States whaler George Henry, sighted the crewless ship in the vicinity of Davis Strait, 40 miles from Cape Mercy. She was headed homeward, little damaged, although there was some water in her hold.

The Resolute had freed herself from the ice, then sailed without a soul on board through the treacherous waters of the arctic for 1,000 miles through Barrow Strait, Lancaster Sound and Baffin Bay.

The U. S. Government appropriated $40,000 to buy her from her salvagers, then refitted her, and sailed her back to England with an American crew and there presented her to Queen Victoria. Later the Resolute—in the name of economy—was stripped of her fittings and scrapped.

Debutantes Today Plan Serious Life

Parties, Frocks, Beaux Only Small Part of Their World.

Several Are Expected to Be Presented Here This Season.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Don't let anybody tell you that the modern debutante is a pretty creature without a thought in her head except of parties and more parties, fluffy frocks and loads of beaux. The debutante of today has a small corner of her mind open to these things just as all girls have had since time began, but she also has many other thoughts of far greater importance, and she is an able and well balanced young creature.

This season several of the Capital debutantes will be presented during their holidays from college, where they are equipping themselves to cope with the many problems of life in the most philosophical way.

Camping in Wyoming.

Right now Miss McKenna is in Sheridan, Wyo., where, with 15 of her sister students and several instructors, she has been for several weeks. Miss McKenna signed up with the geological department of Vassar for a camping trip and a course in that interesting science. The party has been camping on Big Horn Mountain near the Yellowstone National Park.

When the camp breaks up in a few days Miss McKenna will start East, making several visits en route. The first will be in Chicago, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Horatio Hackett. From there she will go to Detroit to spend some time with Mrs. Frederick J. Fisher, and later will visit college friends in Cleveland.

Miss McKenna will return to Washington about September 10, in time to make final arrangements for her debut, and then be off to Vassar on September 21 to be away and absorbed in her studies until the Thanksgiving holiday. On Friday, November 23, Mr. and Mrs. McKenna will entertain at a large dance at the Mayflower for their daughter, when the guests will be principally members of the younger set.

Plans Dinner This Fall.

Several weeks ago, before Miss McKenna left for the West, her aunt, Mrs. E. D. Edmonston, of Baltimore, entertained at a dinner dance for more than 100 young people at the clubhouse at Gibson Island, Md. Mrs. Edmonston is a sister of Mrs. McKenna, and will give a large dinner for Miss McKenna before the first Bachelors Cotillion in Baltimore this fall, at which she will make her bow to the delightful society of that city.

Miss Patty Edmonston, cousin of Miss McKenna, who was presented to society both here and in Baltimore two seasons ago, is at present in England. With Miss Douglas Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Freeman, also of Baltimore, Miss Edmonston has been visiting in Europe for several weeks with Mme. von Matsch, the former Miss Lillian Hendrick, of Washington, another sister of Mrs. McKenna.

Mme. von Matsch makes her home in Vienna, but since her return to Europe in the late winter, after a visit in Washington and a trip to the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo, she has been attending the sessions of the League of Nations at Geneva. The young girls have been attending a series of house parties near London and are now in Cambridge. They will return to this country about September 1.

Miss Davies to Be Presented.

Another young collegian who will make her bow to society this winter is Miss Emlen Knight Davies, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies. Miss Davies is also a student at Vassar, and will be presented at a large tea to be given by her parents in their home on Massachusetts avenue on Thankskiving Day. On December 26, Mr. and Mrs. Davies will entertain at a ball for their daughter.

Miss Davies is following the footsteps of her elder sister, Mrs. Thomas Patton Cheeseborough, jr., of Greenwich, Conn., who several years ago, as Miss Eleanor Davies, made her debut in Washington while still a student at Vassar. Mrs. Cheeseborough was one of the most popular debutantes the Capital has known in many a day, and Miss Davies bids fair to be a rival for that place.

Miss Davies is spending the summer at Watch Hill, R. I., where her parents have a summer home. Mrs. Aldace Walker, the former Miss Rahel Davies, is also spending some time there from her home in New York, and Mrs. Cheeseborough is frequently with them from Greenwich.

Miss Marlatt to Make Debut.

Miss Dorothy Marlatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Marlatt, also a Vassar student, will make her debut during the coming season. At present Miss Marlatt is spending the summer at the country home of her family in Seal Harbor, Me.

Miss Dorothy Haney Letts, niece of Justice and Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts, will be presented to society at a tea to be given by Justice and Mrs. Letts at their home during the Thanksgiving holidays. Miss Letts is attending the Connecticut College for Girls at New London, Conn. Recently Miss Letts returned from a two weeks' stay at Rehoboth Beach, Del., and next month will accompany her uncle and aunt to New England, where they will spend the remainder of the summer.

Charming Capital Matron to Visit West Coast

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. W. FORBES MORGAN,
who with Mr. Morgan has returned to Washington after spending the week-end in New York. They will remain in the Capital through the summer, taking long week-end trips, and in September will go to California for a longer stay.

Alfaros Plan Motor Trips This Summer

To Spend Several Days With the Gibsons at Vineyard Haven.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro will leave today by motor for Vineyard Haven, Mass., to spend several days. They will visit with Col. and Mrs. William Gibson, with whom their young son, Ivan Alfaro, is spending several weeks.

The Minister and Senora de Alfaro will return to Washington the first of next week. The following week-end they will motor to Abingdon, Va., to see their two young daughters, Amelita and Yolanda, who are at the Glenrochie Girls' Camp for the summer months.

Before returning to the Capital the Minister and Senora de Alfaro will go to Linville, N. C., to visit their other son, Rogelio, who is a counselor at a boys' camp near there.

In August the minister and his wife will take a longer motor trip, returning to the Capital early in September.

Mrs. Whitford to Spend Month at Atlantc City

This affair, which will benefit the homeless children of Virginia, is attracting much attention and a large crowd from Virginia, Maryland and Washington is expected to be present.

The treasure hunt will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, with the tables for bridge placed in the large drawing rooms and halls of the mansion house.

Miss Anne Lee Guest at Edgemoor Home on Sunday.

Miss Lee went to Baltimore yesterday to spend some time visiting relatives of her father, the late Mr. Lee, who made his home in Baltimore before going to California.

Mrs. Lee was, before her marriage, Miss Anne McCauley, of Washington, one of the prominent and popular belles of her day. She is remaining in California while her daughter spends the summer in the East making a series of visits.

Mrs. John H. Coxhead was hostess at a small luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday, having as her guest of honor her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles B. Coxhead, of New York City, who is visiting her in Washington.

Mrs. Patterson Weds Mr. Dickey

Bridegroom Consular Agent at Pau, France.

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Evelyn Huffman Patterson, of Dayton, Ohio, former wife of Mr. Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., and Mr. Robert Russell Dickey, jr., United States Consular Agent at Pau, France, which took place on Sunday in Dayton.

Mr. Dickey and his bride will sail later in the summer for Pau, where the former will resume his duties.

Countess of Granard Returning to London

The Countess of Granard, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. Ogden L. Mills, the former Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Mills during her brief stay in this country, sailed last night aboard the Europa to return to England. She was accompanied by her son, Viscount Forbes.

Lady Furness, who has been with her sister, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, for a short visit, and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin also sailed for England on the Bremen last night.

Miss Graham Is Betrothed

A Suggestion Of Fall Makes Itself Apparent

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE first suggestion of fall this year comes not with the falling of leaves but with the advent of satin. The stores are already displaying a wide variety of satin gloves, berets, bags, and dresses. Strange as it seems and hot as it is, customers are pulling forth their eyeglasses to view just this or that satin accessory more closely. Traveling cases are packed not alone with bathing suits, beach pajamas, and pique sports dresses but lovely tea and cocktail gowns in gleaming silky satin.

One downtown store has an attractive assemblage of satin bags for unusually low prices. These are all a small hand-purse size, dressy enough for cocktails, but tailored enough for ordinary afternoon wear. Most of these bags are black, but there are a few in dark blue and brown.

The simplest sort of a dress trimmed in a satin collar takes on a new verve, a new flair. Take last year's dark crepes for instance, the touch of satin collars and cuffs to match will turn them into new dresses, at least new in appearance.

Perfume Butterflies.

Strange little butterflies, those resting on the aisle table of a downtown store. Gaudy wings cut from paper and painted blue, and gold, and green, and rose, and red; long tube-like bodies are bottles, filled with perfumes from real flowers on which hundreds of butterflies have rested and feasted in their time.

The bottle bodies contain just enough perfume to last the summer. They will sweeten the hours with the scent of roses, lilies, jasmine, violets and other flowers. The price is 25 cents.

Special Slip.

Summer months threaten with such discomfort as sunburn, stinging nettles, freckles, footburn, but none of them are more irksome than excessive perspiration.

One rides down town smoothly groomed to find on arrival one's dress is covered with perspiration spots in the back. That's one of those "it may be a comedy to some folks but it is a tragedy to me" situations that is best remedied by wearing one of the slips featured in a local shop. These look like any nice slip except for the inner panel in the back instead of the front. The material of the panel has been specially processed to withstand perspiration, and is an efficient guard for summer months.

The Swedish Shampoo.

The "crowning glory" will gleam like gold or shine like the plumage of a raven's wing if it is properly washed. A proper shampoo means more than a soapy massage that cleanses hair and scalp. It means more than half a dozen rinses.

It means all these things and more—the careful application of a good soap, one that will actually tear down dust and dirt and do the clean-up job in a Dutch way. Or Swedish, as one of the best shampoos on the market is a Swedish one made of fine, clean smelling grains of soap. When these are rubbed over the damp hair they lather freely and turn the head into a mass of suds. They cut excess oil and normalize the hair. After the final rinsing and drying the hair is light and fluffy as it can be, and glowing with thousands of soft lights.

Sale in Good Style.

This is the last day to buy a $30 beer set for $15 and a $17.50 cocktail table for $8.75.

A Connecticutt avenue shop has been conducting a sale in real sale style. From top to bottom things have been reduced, from top prices to bottom ones. The all-inclusive reductions fell on an attractive wicker cocktail table with a folding top. When it isn't in use it can be pushed against the wall, where it stands, its wide, plain top turned demurely down. But when it's active that same top, wicker bound, makes an ideal place to rest anything from cocktails to highballs.

As for the beer set, where is there such another? The folding stand, made of wood and looking like the serving stands in hotel dining rooms, is topped off with a tray which holds a beer pitcher pieced together with oak staves and fastened with brass bindings and six barrel-like steins matching the pitcher.

Most impressive of all are the groups of notables who have fallen victims to the lure of this set. The proprietor can if he chooses rattle off one headline name after another, all people who have within the last few weeks purchased similar sets.

Summer Savings.

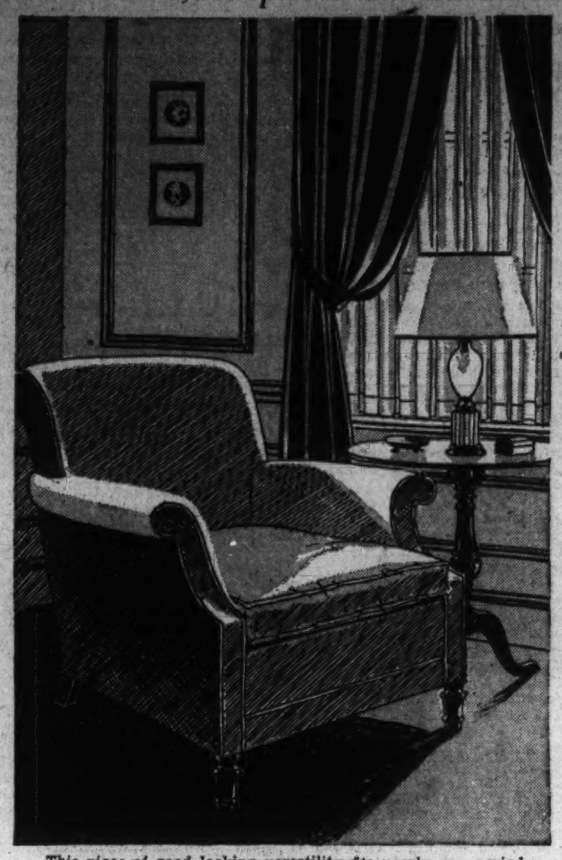

Paper napkins are another summer saving. And paper plates are no less a picnic necessity than a convenience for cold suppers on hot days.

Today, tomorrow, and for the next few days it will be possible to buy four packages of paper napkins for 25 cents, packages which ordinarily sell for 10 cents a piece. It will also be possible to buy packages of paper plates for the same price. These, too, are usually 10 cents each.

The napkins come in several different styles and the plates in a variety of colors and designs.

Comfortable, Adaptable and Handsome

Lounge Chair, Is Fashionable English Kind,

It's Not New but It Has Proved Its Merit for Many Years.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 24. — Of course you may have, for a particular reason, a desire for a particular period chair. But if it's comfort you're after, if it's good looks you want, if it's adaptability to environment which is your idea, you can't find more of all three than is in the type chair illustrated.

It's the so-called English lounge type, which is right up at the top of the list of fashionable chairs found in the living rooms of fashionable homes.

No, it is not new. But it's better than new. For it has been in fashion long enough to have proved its merit. And having proved it, it has no intention of going out of fashion.

Points of Comfort.

Take it from the point of view of comfort. Men like it because it is roomy. Women like it because it is low enough to the floor. Both of them like its deep softness. Yet it is not so deep and soft that it requires a distinct effort to raise yourself out of it.

Then from the viewpoint of good looks. No one could deny it has plenty of that. Substantial without being massive. Well-proportioned. Its curves graceful ones. Its contours simple. Nothing ornate or gimcracky about it.

And it certainly is adaptable to almost any kind of room. Because those simple contours can't possibly clash with anything.

In Many Rooms.

It's big enough to go in with massive furniture in a large room. But it is not so big that it would look out of proportion with graceful eighteenth century chairs and sofas.

It is simple enough to fit in with modern furniture. And unpretentious enough to go into an American colonial interior.

You probably wouldn't care for it in a room full of delicate French pieces. But with that exception any of today's living rooms would be proud to include it.

Of course, not every lounge chair you look at is going to be exactly like the one illustrated, down to the last detail.

But as long as their lines and proportions are essentially similar to this, they are still just about the most fashionable living room chair today.

Four American Women To Fly in London Race

The London-to-Melbourne air race in October will attract at least four American women pilots. They are Miss Laura Ingalls, Miss Jackie Cockran, Miss Ruth Nichols and Miss Louise Thaden. Twenty-two American planes are entered in the race, which will see 63 in competition. The first prize is $50,000. Jungle, swamp, mountains and desert will make hazardous the flight of the pilots on this flight of more than 12,000 miles.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Peptic Ulcer.

The condition known as peptic ulcer has always been with us and, in all probability, will be present in the human family for generations to come. Human beings are particularly prone to the development of ulcers in the stomach and duedenum, due to a highly organized nervous system, to the stress and strain of modern life, and to numerous unhygienic tendencies, such as dietary fads, rapid eating, too much food, insufficient regular exercise, habitual constipation and the use of very hot and very cold liquids and foods. Some authorities believe that any interference with the nerve supply to the stomach predisposes to peptic ulcer. This is borne out by the rather high incidence of ulcer cases in nervous, high strung individuals.

There are many tests for the presence of peptic ulcer. A careful X-ray examination will nearly always detect an ulcer and the progress of healing may be watched from time to time by means of this prpcedure. Through examination of the stomach contents the presence of blood may be ascertained. Ulcer pain is characteristic and is usually felt when the stomach is empty. Relief follows the administration of food.

Two important dangers incident to peptic ulcer must be pointed out. First, a chronic ulcer may be located in the vicinity of a blood vessel, hence, in the course of the disease, bleeding may result. Second, the ulcer, if of long standing, may actually destroy not only the mucous lining of the stomach, but the stomach wall as well. This results in perforation, with an escape of the stomach contents into the abdominal cavity, causing peritonits and endangering life.

The ulcer patient requires careful and wise professional guidance. On the other hand, his own mental attitude and his full cooperation are more than half the battle. At least 50 per cent of all peptic ulcers heal with any type of treatment or with no treatment at all. The prime requisites for the healing of peptic ulcers may be stated:

Second—Use nonirritating food at approximately two-hour intervals.

Third—Direct as much attention to the mental attitude of the patient as to the ulcer itself.

There is no one best way of treating peptic ulcer. Medical management should take precedence over surgical care, and the majority of cases will respond with complete healing. It must be said, however, that the individual with a peptic ulcer has an ulcer tendency, and the same factors that caused the original ulcer may bring on a recurrence or a new ulcer in a new location.

Most ulcer cases may be managed while the patient is carrying on his routine work. As a rule, only cases showing hemorrhage or a tendency to perforate need to be hospitalized. If the ambulatory treatment has been tried for several weeks without improvement, the patient should be hospitalized in order to secure complete control over the factors of diet and rest.

Because of the tendency to chronic invalidism and the necessary prolonged convalescence peptic ulcer presents one of the most baffling conditions faced by modern medicine. We must recognize the inherent inclination of the ulcers to heal if given a fair chance. We must also remember, as Hugo Muller puts it, that "ulcers are to a large extent self-inflicted and, therefore, preventable."

May Be Poison.

Miss F. writes:

1. For the last two months I have been bothered with a severe itching in the corner of my right eye. Soon after it starts to itch it will swell almost shut. My eye is quite sore and has a red, inflamed appearance. What causes it, and what can be done to relieve it?

2. I am 17 years old and 5 feet tall. I weigh 140 pounds. I realize I am considerably over weight and have tried many reducing fads, but nothing seems to do any good. It is not natural for me to be fat and I have been told that I will lose this baby fat as I get older. I stopped growing four years ago. Do you think I will lose this fat later on?

Reply.

1. This suggests that your eyelid is being poisoned by some cosmetic. What is it? The quickest route for relief is avoidance of the cause.

2. You are much more liable to lose your excess baggage if you will go to work on the job of reducing.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Imprisoned by the Soviets, Tatiana Tchernavin was released after months of hardship and rejoined her son. With him she journeyed to Kem to see her exiled husband and found him aged from the sufferings he had endured. As today's installment of this fact story opens, they have gone to the house where mother and son found lodging.

WE went into the kitchen, but my husband stopped irresolutely by the door. He certainly did look peculiar: his huge boots of coarse leather clattered as though they were made of stone; his once excellent leather coat was stained, the pockets were torn, the buttons broken or missing; his fur cap was worn and shabby. Holding it in his hands, he shyly bid good morning to our landlady.

"Good morning, you are welcome," said the woman. "Come into the inner room."

"I am very dirty, look at my boots. . . ." He could not bring himself to walk on the freshly-washed floor and the clean bright-colored runners.

"Oh, that's nothing; it's easily washed off. I haven't yet cleaned the place this morning. Look at the mess the hens have made, a perfect disgrace; excuse me!"

She started catching the hens and the cock who was proudly strutting about the kitchen.

"Wipe your boots with the broom," said the old woman, coming to my husband's rescue.

His Manner Changed.

Sitting down on the narrow bench, he carefully wiped his boots and walked cautiously to the inner room.

His movements were different from what they used to be—slow and awkward; perhaps because he found it so unusual to be in a house.

In our room he quietly shut the door behind him and held out his hands to us. That was how we stood when he said good-by to us before going to prison. The bitter sorrow of all we had been through during that awful year suddenly rose up within me. . . . I wanted to be glad—and could not.

Pathetic Reunion.

"Daddy, darling, don't cry," the boy whispered, stroking his hand. "You see, we have come to you, and we will come again, poor darling daddy."

We kissed each other and sat down.

"Daddy, would you like something to eat? We've brought all sorts of nice things for you. Will you?"

"No, thank you, dear," his father answered affectionately, gradually recovering his self-control. "It's time I was going."

"When is your dinner hour?" I asked.

"At 4."

"And you begin work at 8?"

"Yes."

"Have you nothing to eat till 4?"

"No. Yes. We sometimes have something to eat before beginning work."

"What do you have?"

Food Was Meager.

"Oh, something out of our parcels from home—those who get parcels."

"And those who don't?"

"They have bread."

"How much?"

"A pound."

He was looking at me affectionately as he answered, and was obviously not thinking of the dreadful conditions in which he lived.

"Is the dinner worse than in prison?" I persisted.

"What do you get?"

"Oh, for dinner. . . . Well, we don't return to dinner. They give you a mug of soup, worse than any slops; smelly bits of sauted horse or camel flesh or rotten cabbage in muddy-looking water. Disgusting. The prison dinner is a luxury by comparison."

"But how do you manage, then?"

"As a great favor we've been allowed to receive dry rations. We do our own cooking."

"What do you cook?"

"Oh, anything. Millet porridge."

"There's scurvy in the camps, isn't there?"

"Yes, scurvy, too. Onions and bacon are badly needed. But I expect its costs a lot?"

"No, not much. I've brought you some and will send some more when we get back."

"I don't need any for myself. I have some left from your other parcels. I've been saving it."

"Why? How silly!" I said, angrily.

Work Better Than Leisure.

"Don't be angry," he said, gently, taking my hand. "You see, I don't know what you are living on, how you manage. It will be many years before I can do anything for you."

"Well, go on. Do you return to the barracks at 4?"

"Some of us have now been allowed not to return, but to remain at work."

"I suppose that's a favor, too?" I asked, unable to control my irritation.

"Of course, it is. The work rooms are also crowded, but it is warmer and cleaner there. The barracks are rather awful; a thousand people herded together, and two rows of wide shelves, one above the other, to sleep on."

"When do you rest?"

"We eat at 4 o'clock and have a little sleep."

"Where?"

"On the floor, sometimes on the table."

"When do you stop work?"

Forest Work Worse.

"At 11 at night. Then we go into the barracks. At midnight we are checked. Those who work in the forest or dig the canal are much worse off," he added, in the same calm, gentle voice. "They have to begin work at 6 in the morning and go on without any break till dark. I was there first, carrying timber, but afterward they put me in the fisheries, because I am a specialist. And my health gave way, too."

"What was the matter with you?"

"Myocarditis and . . . my lungs," he answered, rather shyly.

A nice state they've reduced him to! I thought indignantly. And he had once been so strong. This was after one year. How much longer would he last? A year? Two years? No, certainly not two.

"But I am afraid I must go," he said, apologetically. "I don't want to get into trouble just now. Perhaps they'll let me off early. I will soon be back."

"Come along, daddy, I'll walk with you," said the boy, who had been holding his father's hand all the time and hanging on his every word.

They went away; I remained sitting where I was.

"Excuse me for troubling you," said the landlady, coming in quietly, "but would you mind going and registering yourself? It's not far to go. If you don't the OGPU is sure to turn up here in the night. There's nothing they like better—that's their living."

"I'm so sorry; I'll go at once."

"Mind you don't tell them that you have a room; say you put up in the kitchen."

"Yes, certainly."

I came out into the street again. There were no passersby except an occasional OGPU agent, sleek and well groomed, in a smart long coat of military pattern. A queue was standing outside the vodka shop. An old woman going past grumbled at them:

"Glad of the nasty stuff, aren't you?"

Queue Grew Lively.

"Take your turn in the queue, granny."

"No ration cards needed, it isn't bread."

"We've been fasting long enough, only the OGPU shop has had vodka to sell."

"The OGPU are sure to have all they want, they are the Soviet gentry!"

"In the old days we hadn't any gentry in these parts, and now they've sent us the new sort."

The queue grew more lively.

A tall OGPU agent who stood on point duty in the street took a few steps toward the queue. There was instant silence. When he was out of earshot one of the men muttered:

"He's got sharp ears, the cur! Spying on the prisoners isn't enough for him!"

I went into the militia station; the doors were open, the dirty staircase was littered with cigarette ends. The corridor, equally dirty, was dark. There was nothing to direct one anywhere. It was a familiar scene. A yellow-faced official sat at the table. I laid my permit before him; my passport had been taken from me, so that I was a kind of hostage for my husband.

"Register me, please."

"Have you a permit?"

"What other permit do you want?" I was angry and behaved in the Soviet style.

"To hire a room?"

"I haven't hired a room. I put up at a friend's house in the kitchen."

"Bring me the permit."

Trouble Encountered.

"Where from?"

"Table number five."

"Number five, indeed! I can't find another room in your place."

"It's next door, come this way," said the official more politely, taken aback by my defiant tone. Everyone comes here as an humble supplicant.

In the next room there was a young man of communistic appearance in a leather jacket.

"Give me a permit for registration," I said in the same tone.

"We do not allow visitors to hire rooms in the town. There is a hotel for the purpose."

"Twelve roubles a day? I earn 120 roubles a month and have a child to keep. I have put up in the kitchen of someone I know."

"I won't give you a permit, citizen."

I was exasperated and did not care any more. The communist probably did not want to have an explanation with his superiors, so he gave me the permit and I was registered.

"They behave like scoundrels about every little thing," I thought. "They are used to people kotowing to them. Well I shan't."

CAPITAL KITCHEN

With Blueberries Coming in Housewives Need New Recipes.

By Susan Mills.

BLUEBERRIES, fat and firm, are coming in. They are always delicious, fresh with powdered sugar and cream, but a few recipes for cooking them might be added to your collection.

Quick Blueberry Pudding.

1 quart blueberries
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice, if desired.

Pick over the berries, wash, drain, mix with the sugar, water and salt, and simmer for 5 minutes. Combine the bread crumbs and butter, add to the hot fruit, stir until well-mixed, and let stand on the back of the stove for about 30 minutes, but do not let the pudding cook. Add the lemon juice and serve the pudding while still warm, with cream (plain or whipped) or top milk.

Blueberry Roly Poly.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons combination baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
2-3 cup milk
Melted butter
1¼ cups fresh blueberries
6 tablespoons sugar

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl.

Turn out immediately on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll ¼ inch thick. Brush with melted butter, cover with blueberries and sprinkle with sugar. Roll as for jelly roll. Moisten edge and press against roll. Place in greased loaf pan with edge of roll on under side, brush with melted butter and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot with blueberry sauce. Serves 8.

Blueberry Sauce.

1 cup fresh blueberries
1 cup water
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of clove
2 teaspoons butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Bring blueberries and water to a boil and cook 3 minutes. Combine flour, sugar, salt and clove; add to hot fruit and cook uptil thickened, stirring frequently. Add butter and lemon juice. Makes 1½ cups sauce. (One-fourth cup brown sugar, firmly packed, may be used instead of ½ cup sugar, for added flavor.)

Scouts' Garden Gets Rock From Florida

A coquina rock, made from fragments of marine shell and sand cemented together by the action of sea water, was added yesterday. These rocks are found along the coast of Florida, this one came from near Daytona Beach.

As neighbors this coquano rock will have: A century-old granite paving stone, a gift from New Orleans Girl Scouts; a copper rock from the Anaconda mines, presented by the Girl Scouts of Butte, Mont.; a stone from the foundation of the Mary Todd Lincoln home in Lexington, Ky.; a gift from the Lexington Scouts; a stone from the Rapidan Camp, Va., the gift of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, an enthusiastic Girl Scout, who planned the memory garden.

A Strict Milk Diet Becomes Old-Fashioned

Babies Need Other Foods Very Young, Says Home Economist.

CHILDREN are no longer kept on a strict milk diet for one or two years, Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpenter, associate specialist in child nutrition, Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, points out.

The milk diet is now supplemented at a very early age by a variety of wholesome foods simply prepared. The diet of the very young child now differs from that of the older one chiefly in the way the food is prepared and in the amounts served at various ages.

Mistaken ideas passed along in families and communities have kept many good foods out of the young child's menu. This is most unfortunate because good nutrition is more easily attained on a well chosen variety than a limited diet.

And the child who has the right kinds of food grows normally and is contented and well developed. However the food he eats must furnish the material for his growth and development and must meet the demands made by his ceaseless activity.

Every child should have at least a pint of milk a day. And many child specialists recommend a quart to insure sufficient calcium during the years of rapid growth. Every child needs a whole egg or some meat every day. An older child may have both frequently. Liver has taken an important place among meats because it is rich in several vitamins and contains a large amount of iron.

Cereals, bread and potatoes are important energy foods because of the large amount of starch they contain. Therefore if potatoes are not included in at least one meal a day it is desirable to increase the amount of fresh vegetables or fruit used.

Vegetables and fruits are essential because they supply minerals and vitamins. Every child should have two servings of vegetables a day in addition to potatoes. Raw and quickly cooked vegetables are important for good nutrition. Two fruits a day, at least one raw if possible, aid good nutrition, and simplify the dessert problem throughout childhood. Sweets should be eaten only as desserts or directly after a meal, and in limited quantities. Children should have only the simpliest desserts, such as raisins, fruits, custards, ice cream and sherbets

Lamp Shades To Be White

Cellophane Shades, Very Shimmery, Will Be Popular.

THE woman who wishes to keep her home up to date will choose white for her lamp shades this fall.

For displays of new lamps prove white will be more popular than ever before. White silk shades are used over white alabaster or pottery bases. Swag trimmings are often used. Sometimes they are simple loops of cord or silk rope. Some of the most attractive shades are of cellophane in a shimmering knitted version.

One company has put out a line of period lamps for six periods—Early English, early American, Georgian, Empire, Federal and classic modern.

Not only in shape and feeling are these lamps definitely related to one period; even the ornaments and colors are characteristic.

Perhaps the most charming are the lamps designed to go in the early American homes. These are simple, purposeful and charmingly domestic. For instance, the model called the "flying dolphin" is copied from a Cape Cod whale oil lamp and finished in antique pewter. The Danforth is a copy of a lamp designed by a famous pewterer of that name.

Most elegant are the Georgian lamps. These show the influence of French and Chinese forms, of Hepplewhite and Sheraton, and reflect the general feeling of affluence and taste that characterized the period. Urns, Wedgwood plaques, leaves and drapery swags and fretwork are some of the ornaments used.

What Today Means

"LEO."

If July 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:10 a. m. to 12:10 p. m., from 3:10 to 5:10 p. m. and from 7:10 to 9:10 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:10 to 8:10 a. m., from 12:10 to 2:10 p. m. and from 9:10 to 11:10 p. m.

On this July 25 business may prove rather erratic. Money will be made, and lost. There is a possibility of valuable new business connections being formed which will result in future good business. Do not allow a busybody to prejudice you through adverse comments against one with whom you are now on a very friendly footing. Rudeness might cause a breach in intimate relationship, if indulged in. You may receive a message, the ignoring of which might possibly cause a monetary loss, so be careful. It might be advisable to seek advice of one in whom you have a great deal of confidence, should a complicated problem come up, for in this case two heads may prove better than one. It may prove wise to use discrimination in the acceptance of any invitation of a social nature that might be extended to you. If the person issuing it is not the type you wish to cultivate as a friend, then you should not place yourself under social obligations. The evening of July 25 should prove an ideal one for the sentimentally inclined, as the moon may shed sufficient light to make it a romantic evening.

If a woman and July 25 is your birthday, you have been endowed with many virtues, not the least of which is a placid and lovable disposition. You may eventually have a great deal more money than you have any anticipation of now. It might be advisable to cultivate a taste for both good literature as well as music, for both may later on prove of value. Do not be too readily swayed by love or sentiment when it comes to a matter of business, but protect your own interest by using common sense. You should find happiness in a venture in matrimony, which should terminate successfully if you will remember marriage is a game of give and take.

Children born on July 25, as a rule, grow up to be sturdy, self-reliant youngsters, capable of expressing themselves in no uncertain manner and holding their own throughout the contest of life. Proper guidance is the most important thing during their formative years.

The man born on July 25 is generally of rather a judicious mind and instinctively religious, though frequently not a regular church attendant. Kind and charitable, he accomplishes a great deal of good. If born on this date you should, under normal conditions, prosper greatly and find great happiness through marriage.

A Bird Battle Rages Through English Country

What threatens to be a bird Armageddon is under way in England. Hostilities have broken out between swallows and sparrows over a wide front—from Cumberland and Durham Counties in the north, to Somerset and Kent in the south. In Cambridge the battle is raging fiercest.

Battles usually get under way when the swallows attempt to build nests. The sparrows attempt to intimidate them and, in revenge, the swallows raise armies and swoop down on the sparrows.

What Should Men Be? Women Offer Opinions

A French Countess Says Her Countrywomen Are Unanimous on the Ideal Man, but Finds Americans Can't Agree.

The Countess de Lormay, a French woman born in America, has lectured the last two years in France on American life. She has traveled extensively in Africa, the Orient, Canada and Europe.

By the Countess de Lormay.

I HAVE recently come from France and it has been most interesting to observe the differenc in the American and French women's ideas of what qualities they admire in men. Whereas most of the French women have about the same idea, there is a diversity of opinion among the Americans. As my friend, the Marquise de Chalonge, once said to me: "From the highest strata of society to the most humble, a French woman's ideal of a man is the same. Read the advertisements for marriage in the daily papers and you can see what we look for."

Here is a typical advertisement:

Feminine type young girl, not too modern, physically well-made, perfect health, desires marriage, inclination favors engineer or business man, 30-35 years old, religious, distinguished, rather tall, intelligent, very good, very loyal, serious, affectionate, good worker having steady job, refined nature. Widowers and divorcés do not apply.

Another which appeared recently in Chasseur Francais asks for practically the same qualities:

Without the necessary contacts, parents wish to marry their daughter, a young girl, 26, 5 feet 6 inches, blonde, pretty, perfect bringing up, refined, playful, sentimental, loving home, 12,400 dowry, luxurious furniture, with a young man 30-36, religious, healthy, high moral qualities, tall, handsome, cultured, serious, sober, having a steady job, liberal profession preferred.

American Opinion.

But what does the American woman admire and like in men?

Mrs. Alexander Gregg, jr., one of the most popular young matrons in the Capital, the former Dorothy Mondell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, believes it is not any specific quality that makes a man admired by women. What is important is that he have a definite mentality. Asked whether she thought it was character or personality that won out, she said, "Well, I think a mixture is necessary, the sterling qualities of character and a good personality."

She said such attributes as a good voice, handsome appearance, clever conversation were not greatly important, but that a generally pleasing aspect and a cultured voice were a great help. "However," she concluded, "if a man has real worth, the other things frequently follow."

Catherine Randolph Cranford and her maids were knee-deep in bandboxes, trunks and suitcases in preparation for her fifth around-the-world cruise when I talked with her in her hotel suite. This beautiful young heiress could have her choice of many eligibles.

The Plug-Ugly.

"I rather like a plug-ugly type of man, strange as it may seem!" she said. "In the first place he's safer. He doesn't have any of that 'come - up - and - see-me-some-time-and-fight-for-your-honor-appeal. He can be sat off in a corner and trusted. In other words, he's the type you could pair with Greta Garbo and know that he was coming back to you unscathed. I just couldn't be content with a too handsome man. I would be abysmally unhappy wondering who was trying to vamp him next. Charlie, that's my brother, you know, is just the type of bachelor I avoid—blond, 6 feet, handsome, only 33 and God's gift to women. Pulses quicken when he comes on the scene, lashes flutter and the young women scarcely know why. Imagine being married to a man like that!"

For a minute Miss Cranford was serious. "There are five other attributes this dear homely chap of mine must have," she said and counted them off on her graceful fingers. "Brains, a cultured voice, ambition, a sporting sense and sympathetic understanding. Never must I be caught pining to another man, 'my husband doesn't understand me!' And you know, the veddy, veddy handsome men are so busy preening themselves and watching others admire them they don't have time to be understanding.

Phyllis Moore Gallagher, sucessful short-story writer, who has analyzed the character of many men in fiction, believes a man should captivate and hold a woman's interest.

Not Foppish.

"I like a man to be meticulous about his appearance without bordering on the foppish," she said. "I like him to be neat about his personal habits without being so exacting as to be feminine or eccentric. I prefer a dignified man, a little formal, a bit hard to know, because that holds your interest . . . there is always a promise of something else. A sense of humor is absolutely necessary because without it a man would be a woeful failure as a husband. Intellectual, of course, and an alert conversationalist. Whether or not he is handsome is negligible, but a pleasant personality and a distinct masculinity are of utmost importance."

Miss Virginia Pope, Kenwood Country Club's young golf champion, says: "There's a lot more than looks that count. I've met scads of men at dances and at fraternities and I think some of them think too much about their clothes. I like a man to be dressed well and in good taste, but I don't think clothes mean so much.

"I play golf chiefly with men and in playing golf so many little things come up that show a person's character. That's what really counts. I admire a good sport, one who is unselfish, honest, does not lose his temper. I think it's so silly for men to lose their tempers, start throwing the clubs around and all that.

Character Counts.

"I personally like a man who is honest, straightforward, sincere, who has the really fine qualities. Of course, like most girls, I like good looks, good manners, a nice friendly way and good conversation. But these don't mean as much as a fine character. Golf has shown me that and it must be true in all walks of life."

Miss Hildegarde Hamilton, who has exhibited her landscape paintings in Washington for several seasons, told me when I saw her in Paris just prior to sailing for the United States: "What I admire about the American man is his absolute disdain for fortune hunters. Of course, we have a few but if there is anything that a woman dislikes it is a man who is after money.

"I believe a woman should marry a man who has been brought up in the same environment as herself and who has the same general philosophy of life. Speaking as an artist, I think men are attracted by first appearance and a woman should give serious thought to her choice of clothes. But a man who chooses a wife because she has style and wears her clothes dashingly appears to me very superficial."

Dislikes Arguments.

Miss Eleanor Winthrop Gilchrist, Chicago debutante, who in spite of her wealth has entered the business field, was very decided in her opinion of the type of man she does not like.

"I don't like a man who argues for the sake of an argument. Many men think it is the sign of intelligence. They think that a girl who does not like to argue is not mentally alert. A husband who argued constantly would be worse than one who nagged."

Miss Patricia Byrd Carroll, lovely brunette debutante of Charleston, S. C., who has a distinctly Southern idea of an ideal man, told me with a gay little laugh, "I like a flatterer! All Southern girls know quite well that our Southern men don't mean one-half of what they say. But what girl doesn't adore hearing she's lovely, beautiful, divine! I like romance in a man, too—pretty settings for pretty speeches. I hear all around that chivalry is dead but I can assure you that it is not dead in the Southern man."

THE gilded youth of Lisbon couldn't understand why Pavlowa's ballet dancers were not bowled over when they appeared behind the scenes, silk hats in hand. According to Miss Lisa Gardiner, dancing teacher in Washington and a former member of the great dance artist's corps de ballet, the Portuguese accustomed to wasting time backstage did not charm the girls whose dressing rooms they besieged. They crowded into the wings so thickly the dancers had to brush past them to get onto the stage.

• • • •

When they sent the ballet a case of champagne, Anna Pavlowa decided to end the attentions of these romantic young men. Confronting them in an old Greek tunic, tights, and with an old shawl about her shoulders, she gave them to understand in a staccato peal of mixed French, English and Spanish that her girls did not accept champagne.

• • • •

Miss Gardiner concurred with S. Hurok, whose article about Pavlowa appeared last week in the Saturday Evening Post that she tolerated no laxity back stage. But Miss Gardiner objected to his frequent use of the word ballerinas to designate ballet dancers. She says that she knows of only three ballerinas in the world, besides Pavlowa, who has passed away. The three, Trefilbova, Praebojenskaia and Keschinskia, are teaching in Paris.

• • • •

She never saw Pavlowa put cotton in her dancing shoes, Hurok wrote. In America, she says, it is customary for toe dancers to use stiff, heavily padded shoes, but Pavlowa likes to feel her toes on the floor. Almost anyone can stand on their toes in stiff shoes, and mothers love to see their kiddies on their toes because "it is so cute." Pavlowa disapproved the practice.

Once a fond mother brought her darling and her dancing teacher to Pavlowa. After the child had performed Pavlowa blew up.

"You should be imprisoned," she exploded, turning on the dancing teacher, "for doing that child such an injury for reclame advertising purposes."

• • • •

In refutation of Hurok's statement that Pavlowa was superstitious and refused to give her worn-out ballet shoes away, Miss Gardiner shows a pair given her by Pavlowa. One of her duties while a member of the company was to break in new ballet slippers for Pavlowa, as their feet were the same size.

• • • •

She agreed with Hurok that Pavlowa, "the ethereal being, the delicate Ariel," had an appetite. She told of a dinner at Ivy House, her home outside London, where hors d'oeuvres, caviar, smoked sturgeon and blini were mere prelude to the main course.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

A Reader Tells How He Fought Loneliness in a New Environment.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I read your column in last Mouday's Post in regard to lonliness. About a year ago I was sent as an engineer to Waynesboro, Va. Knowing I was going to be there for some time, and being a church worker and a singer, I affiliated myself with one of the local churches. In doing so, I have made plenty of friends and I am happy.

• • • •

I want some of your friends to be as happy, and I am sure they can if they will try this way. I have as many friends here now as I have in my own home town.

• • • •

Trusting this may be the means of helping someone to adjust himself to a new environment, I am, yours very truly, HOWARD W. K.

A Demonstration.

DEAR HOWARD W. K.: Your experience clearly demonstrates that the person with definite interests and cultivated talents may have friends wherever he goes.

• • • •

Friendship is mostly a matter of figurative barter. Others bring to us the gifts of their minds and hearts and hands in expectancy of an exchange in kind. Those who bring nothing to the mart of friendship can seldom hope to carry much away.

• • • •

I am sure many will profit by your letter, and in their name I wish to thank you. M. H.

A Daily Bath Step Toward Health, Vigor

By Frances Mangum.

DAINTINESS is one of the first laws of loveliness.

There is never a time when a woman should strive so consistently to be dainty as during the hot summer months. She can, if she pleases, establish an individuality and accentuate all of her natural charm by this one means. There are simple precautions that will insure her daintiness. The first of these is a daily bath.

This is necessary not only for beauty but for health. Here as usual, the two go hand in hand. The bath clears the pores and allows them to breathe more easily. It freshens and revitalizes the skin, and reduces the body temperature. After a bath a woman feels enlivened and ready to fend with heat and humidity.

The next precaution is equally simple. It is the deodorent, a sure and easy means of perspiration protection. There are three kinds, liquid, cream and stick, all of them equally efficient if used according to directions.

The liquid deodorant is usually the strongest and lasts several days at a time. One of the best of these comes in a bottle with an atomizer top and has only to be sprayed on the under arm. There are others with sponge attachments ready for rubbing over the perspiration centers.

The cream deodorant is very simple to use. A bit of it on the tip of the finger and applied before or after dressing will stave off perspiration odors for hours.

The stick deodorant is like a white pomade in a lipstick container. It is so small and compact it may be easily carried in the purse to be ready whenever it is needed.

A Style Ultimatum Issued by General

Gowns should extend to the ankle.

The collar must not be too high, but the distance between collar and cheek must be not less than an inch and a half.

Sleeves must extend to the elbow.

Skirt openings or slits on both sides must not extend above the knee.

No woman will be allowed to wear tight clothes.

Stockings must always be worn.

Strictly Speaking

In Hollywood.

1. What motion picture director is reported to be in love with Greta Garbo?

2. How is Marlene Dietrich's name properly pronounced?

3. A recent movie magazine states: "Claudette Colbert's name is rarely pronounced properly" and then does not go on to explain what it should be called. What about it?

4. Define the italicized word in this sentence: "The names of Jean Harlow and Clark Gable were on the marquee.

5. What is Joan Crawford's fiance called?

Answers Here.

1. Rouben Mamoullan—called Roo-BEN mah-mool-YAHN.
2. Mar-LAY-na DEE-treek.
3. Clo-DETTE Col-bare.
4. A marquee, pronounced mahr-KEY, is literally a large tent. In this sense, it means the awning or facade of a theater, bearing the names of the stars emblazoned in lights.
5. Franchot Tone, called Franshow Tone.

Key Likeness Up for Sale, Says Owner

Great-Granddaughter Is Unhampered by Overmuch Sentimentality.

By Elizabeth Young.

LEARNED officials of the Smithsonian Institution and the Library of Congress may concern themselves with such lofty abstractions as the sentimental and patriotic value—plus the historic circumstances possibly attendant upon the painting—of a recently discovered, one-and-only miniature likeness of Francis Scott Key as a youth.

But what the illustrious song writer's great-granddaughter, Mrs. Marie Key Dwight, who owns the miniature—which one expert has called a priceless relic, wants to know is: How much can she get for it in cold cash?

That's all she wanted to know when she first submitted it to the inspection of V. Valta Parma, director of the rare book division of the Congressional Library.

That's what she still wanted to know yesterday, as she sat in Director Parma's office retreat, pining for a forbidden cigarette and gazing in amiable consternation at a flock of assorted photographers who snapped the debated miniature from this angle and that.

Quite Without Foundation.

"Stories in the papers give the impression I have turned the miniature over to the Library of Congress. But the report is without foundation—quite without foundation," she remarked.

"What do you suppose I may get for it?" she wondered.

The question was transferred to Director Parma, arrested in swift and noiseless passage through the office.

The suggestion of affixing a price tag to such a rare specimen of Americana seemed to pain the eminent authority on things antiquarian. He stated, after a pause:

"The miniature is a priceless relic. The Library of Congress is in no sense a dealer's cataloguer." And then he added:

"But I happen to know a private collector has offered $1,500 for it."

In Director Parma's opinion, however, the place for the miniature is not in a private collection. Its place, he thinks, is in the Library of Congress, carefully cotton-wrapped and treasured in a little olive-wood box he has already provided for it; or in the Walters Gallery in Baltimore, side by side with the original manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Walters Gallery, long a noted private collection, recently came into possession of the city of Baltimore.

And to see that it eventually arrives in either of these two suitable surroundings is the duty of some patriotic citizen with adequate means and generous impulses, Director Parma adds.

The miniature, which he first saw some months ago, and whose life story he has since been busily piecing together, was probably painted by the French artist, Jean Francois de la Vallee, around 1795.

Not a Single Cent.

Mrs. Dwight has a refreshing unconcern with the necessity for parting with the Key family heirloom.

"I never cared for old family things," she volunteered. "And I do hate antiques. I dug down into my trunk and dug this out to sell because I need the money. I have'nt a cent—not a single cent.

"This miniature came to me on my mother's death. I had seen it before, of course, when it was my grandmother's.

"All this hubbub about whether it really is an authentic miniature of Francis Scott Key seems absurd. All of us always just took it for granted it was a likeness of Grandpa Key., I never knew any special curiosity about who painted it. I remember grandmother saying, 'Oh, it was painted by a French artist,' if someone asked her about it."

Mrs. Dwight has other antiques, too, which she would just as soon sell as not—sooner, in fact. Among them is a genuine Roman lamp. She has no home, she cheerily assured the reporter. She is just visiting about. Just now she is staying with Mrs. E. M. Clark at 10 Newland street in Chevy Chase.

Persevering Tourists See Town on a Bus

They Spend Two Hours Rumbling Through Washington Listening to a Voluble Guide Tell Stories on the Town.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

They broil uncomplainingly. They are indifferent to the groanings of their blistered heels. They are given strength by their dreams.

For even while they conscientiously absorb statistics and fix their aching eyes on the marble buildings glaring whitely in the sunlight, their thoughts are leaping ahead to their cool verandas back home. And in their imaginations they are already entertaining the neighbors with the recital of their travels. Meanwhile they must concentrate on the information the moist, voluble young man who stands by the driver gives them—in return for the dollar each paid as he entered.

Dashing Guide.

One large blue bus, a favorite with sightseers, has a dashing red-haired youngster as guide. He wears his guide's cap at a rakish angle on the side of his head. He is witty. He is helpful. Tourists hang hungrily on his every word. He knows everything.

"We are now on Pennsylvania avenue," announces the guide sonorously as the "complete sight-seeing trip of all beautiful Washington—time about two hours" begins. He twinkles at the middle-aged, enraptured school teacher who occupies the front seat.

The young widow who is so prettily solicitous of the child by her side doesn't hear. She is saying to the fat-stomached, prosperous-looking man across the aisle.

"Oh, yes I've seen all the buildings before. But I want Billy to see them. Those things make such a great impression on a child's mind, don't you think so?"

The widow is silent. She has been squelched by the indignation of the fat woman who has taken off her glasses to glare her disapproval. The glasses are on again. The fat woman is waving a palm leaf fan with one hand and taking notes with the other. Her smoked glasses oscillate from the buildings outside the bus window to the young guide who stands at the front of the bus.

More Wit.

Undeniably, he is clever—that one. Just listen.

"On the right we have a unique house with eight kitchens," he declaims. And waits while the tourists crane their necks and marvel. Then he contines: "Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen and six little Kitchens." He smiles, delighted at his wit. The sightseers laugh uproariously. It is a jolly crowd.

He tells how wide Pennsylvania avenue is, how many baths are in the White House, enjoys the gasps when he says the new Postoffice Building cost $17,000,000.

"On the right we have the Senate Building, stronghold of Huey P. Long," he says. "On the left is the Methodist Building, headquarters of Bishop Cannon." He grins at the tourists, as if they share a delightful secret. Flattered, they grin back.

When the bus travels down a street devoid of million-dollar buildings he is still entertaining. He rattles off statistics. He tells what the population of Washington is, how the streets are laid off. He tells how much it cost to wash the windows of the Army Building.

Spicy Tales.

On Sixteenth street he points out the Embassies in a grand manner. He tells how much each cost. He relates spicy bits about the owners of the large houses.

"On the right," he says, as the bus turns toward the center of the city, "is the Rumanian Legation. Here Queen Marie stayed while in America. Here she signed her contract to indorse Lucky Strike cigarettes."

The tour is short, but intensive. Exactly two hours after the bus started it draws up, creaking with heat, before the sightseeing headquarters.

"What other tours do you conduct?" the school teacher and the fat woman with the smoked glasses, ask simutaneously. The red-haired young man expounds on the beauties of nearby Washington.

The fat-stomached man has hold of the pretty widow's arm. She smiles up at him. "Well if you insist I will stay and go to Mount Vernon," she says thoughtfully. "It would be a wonderful trip for Billy."

Poor Teaching Has Produced Poor English

Ignorance of Language Held Due to Inefficiency in Schools.

THE ignorance of the English language prevalent among the American people today is the result of inefficient teaching in the elementary grades.

This is revealed through a Nation-wide study of English usage in schools made under the direction of Dr. L. J. O'Rourke, in which 40,000 teachers participated and 1,500,000 pupils were tested.

The survey was begun in 1930 by the Psychological Corporation of New York, and since 1931 has been supported by grants from the Carnegie Corporation through the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Dr. O'Rourke's report, entitled, "Rebuilding the English Usage Curriculum to Insure Greater Mastery of the Essentials," is being published by the Psychological Institute of Washington, which, as an affiliate of the Psychological Corporation, is in active charge of the study.

Small Knowledge.

Results of the study show only 44.7 per cent of eighth grade pupils in the public schools have a mastery of the essentials of English usage. Only 30.9 per cent show a mastery of the niceties of the language and only 15.5 per cent a grasp of the least important phases of usage.

The low mastery of essentials is most important because, according to data assembled by the United States Office of Education, approximately one-half of all pupils drop out between the fifth and ninth grades.

Typical examples of usage grouped by teachers as essentials are: Use of the correct case of pronoun: He invited John and me. (Not John and I.)

Agreement of subject and verb: There are several errors on this page. (Not there is.)

These, Those, Them.

Use of correct form of verb: You have already given your share. (Not give or gave.)

Distinction between these, those and them.

Avoiding the use of and to connect a relative clause with a main clause: She is the author of several books which have been very popular. (Not and which.)

Correct sequence of tenses: He has been my secretary ever since he left college. (Not he is.)

Overalls Favorite Outfits For Lounging in Country

Overalls are the favorite country costumes this season. Popular for beach wear, gardening, tramping around the woods, or most anything, these rustic costumes can be bought in bright striped seersucker or in homespun linen. They can be worn without a shirt for sun-tan purposes or with one on more formal occasions.

Knitted Evening Dress Won't Muss

Paris (U.P.).—Let's all rise and give Anny Blatt a rousing vote of thanks for creating the all-time noncrush hand-knitted evening dress!

This is something for the world to conjure with, my friends, and you'll never regret having this little model in your wardrobe. Immune to dampness, the knitted evening gown can be packed into the smallest week-end bag—coming out uncrushed and ready to spring over a sprightly debutante, or slither over the hips of a dowager!

Among the yarns in this collection are two delicately new ones—"Ann-Ora" and "Ann-Ora bis." They are as soft and light of weight as it is possible for a yarn to be, and in these novelties it is not only the composition of the yarn, but the twist which makes them distinctive. Columbia is doing the wool gathering for her, and a good job at that.

States Should Slice Number Of Teachers, Says Professor

NEW YORK, July 24 (Spl.).—20 per cent cut in the production of new teachers is urged by Prof E. S. Evenden, of Columbia University, as a means of remedying overcrowded conditions in the teaching profession.

Prof. Evenden has completed a three-year survey of the edcuation of teachers for the United States Office of Education.

Every State, Prof. Evenden believes, should take action at once to decrease the number of young people being trained for teaching. At the same time the standards for entering the profession should be raised.

"No new teachers should be employed," said Prof. Evenden, "nor any former teachers reemployed who do not meet the present generally accepted standards of two years beyond high school for elementary teachers and four years of college work for teachers in the secondary schools.

"Furthermore every State should as soon as possible require all teachers to have a minimum of four years of preparation beyond high school.

Prof. Evenden said the oversupply of teachers was caused by the stampede for educational expansion between 1919 and 1928 when enrollment of pupils beyond the elementary grades increased by 2,000,000 pupils.

Professor Working on Life of George Eliot

New York, July 23 (Spl.).—When Dr. Blanche Colton Williams, professor of English at Hunter College, returns from her year's vacation at Bath, England, she will have completed a biography of George Eliot, which she has been working on for two years. Dr. Williams, who sailed on the Olympic today, says the only original contributions in the biography will be the opinions George Eliot's relatives have of her.

Highlanders to Go to Brittany To Honor Memory of Queen

ROSCOFF, Brittany, July 24 (U.P.).—A bright young Scottish journalist in August, 1548, recorded for his press the news that "Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, past to France to be brecht up under the fair of God."

This event will be recalled, with fitting festivities, at the Inter-Celtic Gorsedd to be held here from July 28 to 31.

Glasgow, Edinburgh and other cities of Scotland will be represented and the Scottish clans will go on a pilgrimage to the ruins of the Gothic Chapel which Mary Stuart had erected in Roscoff to mark her arrival here.

She was only six at the time, and the purpose of her coming was to marry Francis, the Dauphin, later King of France. The wedding, however, did not take place until 1568.

In 1748 another member of the Scottish royal family came to Roscoff—Charles Edward Stuart, called the pretender, after the battle of Culloden.

Descendants of his gallant Highlanders are coming here to call to mind these two events in Franco-Scottish history. Scotland will, in fact, be proclaimed as the official guest of honor, but Ireland and Wales also will be represented. Many also will recall the days when Scotland and France were allies in diplomacy and on the field of battle.

One of the picturesque events will be a historical reconstruction of Mary Stuart's arrival in France, accompanied by her courtiers. Highlanders will play the roles of the famous guard which accompanied Mary, via Morlaix and Nantes, to St. Germain en Laye, where she was introduced to her fiance and future husband.

Helburn Signs Contract With Columbia Firm

Theater Guild Executive Follows Moeller to Films.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Theresa Helburn, one of the modern theater's most brilliant executives, has been engaged in an important capacity by Columbia Pictures. The deal is said to have climaxed a 3,000-mile telephone conversation with Harry Cohn, president of the picture organization.

In casting her lot, at least temporarily, with the motion picture industry, Miss Helburn is following the example set by Phillip Moeller, one of the foremost of contemporary stage directors and her associate on the executive directorate of the Theater Guild of New York. Mr. Moeller is now in Hollywood acquiring the technique of motion picture direction.

Miss Helburn will occupy a position with Columbia especially created for her. It will probably be such as to enable her to exercise her unusual talents as producer, supervisor and director.

Will Read Scripts.

For a time she will occupy herself in reading scripts and familiarizing herself generally with the complex activities of the motion picture industry.

During her career in the theater, Miss Helburn has produced plays by O'Neill, Shaw, Turgenev, Barrie and many other playwrights of note. Among those who have appeared in Theater Guild productions for which she has been responsible may be named Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Eva Le Gallienne, Helen Hayes and many others of the foremost stars of the day.

Miss Helburn's last visit to Washington was on the occasion of the Guild's premiere here of "Jig Saw," the comedy that closed the regular theatrical season at the National Theater last spring prior to going on to Broadway.

In contemplating a visit to the Roadside Theater, out at Halpine, Md., as everybody seems to be doing, judging from the frequency with which my phone rings to ask directions as to how to get there, prices and one thing and another, it should not be overlooked that between the acts of "Murder in the Red Barn," the hit melodrama that is being continued at least through Wednesday night of this week, a rare old ballad of those gay '90s is touchingly rendered by a mixed quartet. It is almost worth the trip out 6 miles beyond Bethesda to hear Frances Brunt, Eugene Kressin, Janet Coon and Fred Haskin, jr., sing that gorgeous old tearjerker, "She Is More to Be Pitied Than Censured." There was a time when no singer of "illustrated songs" considered his repertoire complete if it did not include this lyric gem of a gal shot through with tough luck.

United Artists Adds Three.

"The Affairs of Cellini," starring Fredric March and Constance Bennett, will be nationally released on August 3. This will be the second of United Artists' new-season films, the first having been Ronald Colman's comeback production, "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," current at the Palace.

Since the annual sales convention of United Artists in Chicago early in June, three productions have been added to the release schedule of the company for 1934-35. These are "Congo Raid," a London Films picturization of the Edgar Wallace's "Saunders of the River;" "Nell Gwyn," recently accorded a New York preview, and "The Queen's Affair," a British and Dominions production.

The addition of these three titles gives United Artists a minimum of 25 feature productions for the ensuing year, with 18 Walt Disney productions also on the list.

The imminent possibility of feature production by both Mary Pickford and Charles Spencer Chaplin makes 27 feature releases seem likely.

Announcement is expected any minute now of the definite time and place chosen for the presentation of the famous P. T. Barnum melodrama of "The Drunkard," slated to be played by a group of outstanding Washington players either in some prominent downtown hotel or on some accessible and airy roof. The play originally announced by the Playbox Theater, now temporarily disbanded, will have Hugo Inden as its scenic designer. Mr. Inden, Elizabeth Gatlin Pritchard and Isham Keith spent the week-end in New York perfecting their plans for the local production. The famous "olio" used by Barnum in his production will be featured by the group presenting this "roof" version of "The Drunkard," it is said, and further promise is made that beer and pretzels will not be lacking.

"The Drunkard" also is on the production list of the Roadside Theater later in the summer. Here, I am afraid, beer and pretzels WILL be lacking.

Dance Resort's Big Week.

Presenting Miss Marion Bergeron, "Miss America of 1933," as tomorrow night's special attraction and Morton Downey, popular stage, screen and radio tenor, with Joe Haynes' Orchestra, Friday night, Eddie Carr and Al Stern, managers of the rejuvenated Chevy Chase Lake, this week will offer one of the most pretentious programs in the history of the Capital's al fresco dance resorts.

Miss Bergeron, who has just signed a contract with the Columbia Artists Bureau, under the terms of which she will appear as leader and featured soloist of her own C. B. S. orchestra, will conduct the orchestra and appear in a special style show at the lake tomorrow night.

Morton Downey, so Al Stern, who just this minute left through that swinging gate that leads out of Room 300, tells me, will not merely sing a group of songs and then retire from the scene. On the contrary, he will preside at his own piano in the Haynes orchestra and will sing off and on throughout the evening. Friday night, paradoxically, should prove a field day for Downey fans. And it has been demonstrated many times before, since Mort made his first appearance here with Paul Whiteman, at Poli's, that Washington is packed to the boundary lines with Downey fans.

The dog population of the National Capital has shown great interest in the search for a canine player with a flair for comedy to act in one of the most famous examples of Shakespeare's use of a play within a play, "the most lamentable comedy and most cruel death of Tyramus and Thisbe," as done by the artisans of Athens in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented in the National Sylvan Theater, July 30 and 31.

The two candidates in the lead are Ugly, a wire-haired terrier, and Snuffy Lee, of Falls Church, Va. Another pup named Pooch also is being considered, but Pooch, somewhat naturally, prefers dancing to acting. He belongs to Betty Yoder, of the Lisa Gardiner Dancers. Whichever dog is selected will be made an accredited member of the Washington Community Players, just as Katharine Cornell made Flush a regular member of her company in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

A Paraphrase on "Kitten on the Keys"

Stormy Weather, the champion Skye terrier belonging to Jeanette MacDonald, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Titian-haired songstress, prefers to play with his boss' typewriter rather than with his own toys, so Miss MacDonald decides that while he is at it he might just as well as not take a little simple dictation! This may be accepted as just another instance in which the Skye is the limit!

ONE GAS AS GOOD AS ANOTHER?
...NOT BY A LONG SHOT!

"I use any brand of gasoline, they're all alike," some people say. But—there's a big difference in gasolines. And to prove it, Gulf submits the results of 15 power tests in which 33 gasolines were tested. Read these facts about gasolines—then do your own choosing!

DOES IT PAY to be picky about the brand of gasoline you put in your tank? It certainly does!

For there's a big difference in gasolines—even though there may be no difference in what they cost per gallon. Gulf has proved that! How? By actual, show-down power tests on famous American hills.

On 15 tough mountain grades, tests were made of various gasolines. In all, 33 gasolines were tested—including every well-known brand sold in each area where a test was made.

Each gasoline was given the same job—a certain load to pull. The object being to see which could take a car and heavy load farthest up hill in "high" before the motor stalled.

© 1934, GULF REFINING CO., PITTSBURGH, PA.

SCENE OF ONE BATTLE—Bear Mountain, New York, where 9 famous gasolines battled to see which could pull a 2,480-lb. load farthest up the grade. The winner?—That Good Gulf!

(Below) PREPARING TO TAKE OFF—Each gas tested was placed in a jar, which fed direct to carburetor. This made possible quick changes of gasoline for each test run.

(Below) LOOKOUT MT., TENN.—13 different gasolines battled here to see which could take this Chevrolet and load farthest up the hill in "high." Gulf walked off with first honors!

HOW 33 GASOLINES RANKED (IN ALL TESTS TO DATE)

All gasolines tested, except a few "third grade" brands, sold for approximately the same price as That Good Gulf. Each brand is denoted by a letter.

The NEW GULF wins more power tests than 32 gasolines combined!

EACH OF THE BRANDS of gasoline tested is indicated on the chart by a letter, A to Z6. Note that Gulf was uniformly best! Other high-ranking gasolines varied widely in different tests.

Bob Crowley Leads P.G.A. With 138

PARK CLUB, Buffalo, July 24 (AP).—Riding on the crest of a low-scoring wave, Bob Crowley, 25-year-old Dedham, Mass., professional rolled in with a 36-hole aggregate of 138 today to ctpture the qualifying medal for the Professional Golfers Association championship.

Crowley, qualifying for the championship for the third time in four years, toured the sun-parched par 72 course in 67 strokes on his morning round and posted a 71 this afternoon. His total equaled the qualifying record of 138 created last year by Mortie Dutra. of Detroit, and Jimmy Hines, of New York, neither of whom will be on hond when the 36-hole match play chase for Gene Sarazen's crown begins tomorrow. Dutra failed to make the grade today with a total of 155, while Hines failed to qualify in the Metropolitan district sectional test a few wekes ago.

Five players were tied with 141's—Homer Metz, Eddie Loos and Tommy Armour, of Chicago; Al Houghton, of Washington, D. C., and Gene Kunes, of Jeffersonville, Pa. Jim Foulis and "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, of Chicago, and Willie Goggin, last year's runer-up, finished with aggregates of 142 each, while Johnny Farrell, former Open champion, stood alone with 143. Horton Smith, of Chicago, and Bill Burke, of Cleveland, occupied a bracket at 144.

Ten Tied at 146.

Ten players were tied at 146 for the eight remaining places in the championship flight. It was decided via the play-off route, with the victims being Willie McFarlane, former National Open champion, and Frank Walsh, of Chicago.

The successful survivors of the extra-hole battle were Walter Hagen, five times P. G. A. king, Leo Diegel, twice winner; Johnny Revolta, winner of the 1934 St. Paul open; Herman Barron, of New York; Frank Ball, of Haines Fall, N. Y.; Denny Shute, of Philadelphia; Fay Coleman, of Culver City, Calif., and Orville White, of Overland, Mo.

Al Houghton played steadily from tee to green to clip three strokes off par for the 36 holes. He scored 36—34—70, in his morning round, and his 71 in the afternoon included a sub par 35 on the back nine. Cliff Spencer, second of the Washington entries, scored 73-78—151, failing to make the grade.

Phil Furr, the District's first official champion, who won the local welterweight crown from Ray Bowen at the Riding and Hunt Club Monday night, will play a return engagement at the same spot against either Stanislaus Loayaza or Battling Battalino on August 20, it was announced last night.

Loayaza is one of the best club fighters ever developed in this country and Battalino once ruled the featherweight roost.

Mount Airy, Md., July 24 (Spl.). Mount Airy downed Union Bridge in the Tri-County League in a game marked with heavy batting, 16 to 10. Race Crowds Doubled by N. Y. Bets Gate Receipts in State 100 Per Cent More Than in 1933.

$300,000 Tax Revenue Seen in First Year of Legal Wagers.

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP).—Under the New Deal in horse-racing for New York tracks, with legalized betting this year after a lapse of 26 years, attendance has nearly doubled at the Metropolitan courses, gate receipts have increased more than 100 per cent and the State has profited so far to the extent of $129,629.50 in revenue.

This was the evidence contained today in the State Racing Commission's report covering the first 64 days of the racing season and including the spring meetings conducted at Belmont Park, Aqueduct, and Jamaica.

May Collect $300,000.

On this basis the State figures to collect close to $300,000 for the entire 1934 season, comprising 163 days of sport. Last year and during the long period when open wagering was illegal, the State received no income from horse racing.

The commission's report for the three tracks shows 413,962 fans paid $1,292,327.68 as compared with totals of 212,085 and $503,174.36 for the corresponding period last year. The horsemen also profited by the New Deal, as the three associations boosted the total amount paid out in purses from $413,850 to $550,280.

Greatest Attendance.

Belmont Park, largest of the three tracks, had the greatest attendance and receipts. A total of 184,414 persons attended, but only 156,608 were cash customers. The State received $52,256.71 from the receipts of $532,068.28. Last year the stockholders stood a loss of more than $50,000 in purse money alone when the course attracted only 83,343, who paid in $190,537.46.

Jamaica and Aqueduct fared about equal. The former, opening the season in April, attracted an attendance of 120,102 and had receipts of $379,532 as compared to 109,446 and $380,709.60 for Aqueduct. The State received $37,890.18 from Jamaica and $39,482.70 from Aqueduct. In contrast Jamaica's 1933 attendance totaled 60,236, while only 68,508 traveled to Aqueduct.

Bucs Held to Four Hits And Phils Score, 9-0

Philadelphia, July 24 (AP).—The Phillies tied for sixth place today by blanking the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 0, as Brooklyn was losing to Chicago.

Sylvester Johnson, purchased from Cincinnati for relief purposes, held the Bucs to four hits, hurling no-hit ball for five innings. It was Tommy Thevenow's single in the sixth that broke the spell.

Wood Leads by 2 Sets As Rain Checks Play

SIDNEY WOOD.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 24 (U.P.).—Playing the match of his tennis playing life, Sidney B. Wood, jr., young New Yorker, today revived America's dying Davis Cup hopes by winning two sets from the great Jack Crawford before rain interrupted the interzone final between the United States and Australia.

Although Crawford was a 2-to-1 favorite over the slightly-built New York lad. Wood twice broke Jack's service to capture the first set 6—3. Wood didn't quit there. He added a 9—7 victory in the second set. One point of the third set was then played when rain ended the show for the day.

Halted Three Ttimes.

Rain nearly forced postponement before play was begun. A rainfall which assumed cloudburst proportions banged down half an hour before the match was to start. Workmen scurried onto the famed center court with a giant tarpaulin. The rain continued fitfully for nearly an hour and a half. Then the tarpaulin was rolled back. Twice later play was halted by the rain before the final call-off. Wood was leading 3 games to 2 when the first set was interrupted, and Crawford, 7 to 6, when another pause was ordered in the second.

The imposing two-set lead acquired by Wood constituted one of the greatest upsets of the current season. But Wood, evidently seeking to atone for his unhappy showing against Vivian McGrath in the second singles match held on Saturday, played as he never did before. His backhand placements, his forehand angled shots and his teasing lobs often caught Crawford, No. 2 in world ranking, quite off his guard.

Cuts Off Rallies.

Wod was able to storm the net reperatedly and cut short rallies started by the anzac. When Crawford, on rare occasions, elected to play up by the cords, Wod passed him to make the aussie ace appear a novice.

If Wood is successful tomorrow, the tie will stand at two matches for America and two for Australia. In that case the international warefare will be borne by Frank Shields, giant New Yorker, and Vivian McGrath, the young Australian who uses both fists when playing his back hand.

In an ordinary match Shields would be the more probable winner, despite the fact McGrath appeared magnificent in beating Wood and Shiends didn't seem so formidable in bowing to Crawford. But tennis experts know Shields is a "one-game" player, which is to say that he has but one type of play—that of a smasher. If the smashing is good, he's okeh, but if his opponent resorts to repeated soft lobs and easy base line play, Shields has been known to look like a tyro. Despite all this, odds were even tonight on the final outcome.

Wood today beat Crawford at his own game, outsteadying the Aussie at the baseline, displayed a better backhand (several extended rallies were fought only with the backhand) and he made more dashing attacks on the net.

Rookie Hurler Star; Tigers Win, 6-3

DETROIT, July 24 (AP).—Clarence Phillips, a hefty young pitcher just up from Beaumont, made his debut with Detroit today and performed so creditably that the Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 3, stretching their victories for the current series to two straight.

Bucky Harris successively called on Walberg, Pennock, Grove and Welch to stem the Tiger attack, but Detroit had the game tucked away at the end of the third inning.

Manager Cochrane sent Phillips in during the fifth inning after the Red Sox suddenly got to Fischer for three runs and sent him to the showers. Phillips took the mound with two out and forced Reynolds to pop for the final out. Among the Boston hits during this rally were a triple by Lary and a double by Roy Johnson. Thereafter Phillips restricted the Red Sox to four scattered hits.

Credited With Victory.

Phillips received credit for Detroit's victory, the official scorer ruling he was entitled to the honor because he took up the pitching assignment with second and third occupied, six hits charged against Fischer for the fifth inning and then proceeded to hold Boston scoreless.

Chicago got only six blows off Van Mungo, while Bill Lee gave the Cubs seven, but there were eight walks handed the Cubs. Tony Cuccinello made a bad error in the first and finally Manager Charley Grimm socked a homer with two aboard in the sixt hto bring in the winning run.

Combs Badly Hurt; Yanks Beaten

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP).—The Yankees lost a ball game to the Browns, 4 to 2, today and a game to the Detroit Tigers in the American League standing, but an even more serious loss came when Earl Combs, veteran outfielder, was put out of action.

Combs crashed into the left field fence in a vain effort to catch Harland Clift's hit that decided the game in favor of St. Louis and an examination in the clubhouse indicated that he had been seriously injured. Dr. Leo Bartels said he had suffered a possible concussion of the brain, a possible fracture of the left shoulder and several minor injuries but sent him to the hospital for further examination.

110 Too Hot For Murphy.

Clift's wallop, which went for three bases, came just after Johnny Murphy had weakened in the 110 degree heat and passed Alan Strange and Debs Garms. A moment later Jack Burns touched Relief Hurler Russ Van Atta for a double which completed a three-run inning. Lou Gehrig hit his twenty-eighth homer of the year in the second inning for the opening run.

Nine of the Tribe's runs and 12 of its 16 hits were made off Marcum, Philadelphia pitcher, in the first four innings. Lagger, who replaced him on the mound, held Cleveland to four hits and one run.

Parmelee Gives Cards 4 Hits; Giants Win

Cops, 5-0, as No Runners Reach 3d; Outfield Has no Chances.

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP).—Roy Parmelee, who hasn't been able to do much pitching this season, did a lot in one game today as the Giants blasted the St. Louis Cardinals' winning streak to pieces with a 5 to 0 victory in the second game of their series.

Parmelee, winning his third victory of the season and his second since he returned to action after an appendicitis operation, gave up only four hits and as many walks. He struck out seven, didn't let a runner reach third base and didn't give his own outfielders a chance to make a put-out.

The Giants' triumph, squaring the series, kept their two-game lead over the Cubs intact and put the Cards 4½ games behind the lead.

Ott, Mancuso Bat Leaders.

Mel Ott and Gus Mancuso did the heavy work of backing up Parmelee at bat. Ott smashed his twenty-fourth home run of the season in the third inning for the second Giant tally. It also was his 100th run batted in of the season. Mancuso came out of his batting slump by hitting three-for-three and knocking in the first Giant tally.

Frank Frisch and Jim Collins touched Parmelee for a pair of singles after two were out in the first. The Cards didn't get another hit until Chick Fullis singled in the seventh. Burgess Whitehead got the final St. Louis blow in the eighth.

Wood to Pretend He's 2 Sets Behind

Wimbledon, England, July 24 (U.P.).—"I'm going out there tomorrow and pretend I'm two sets behind," Sidney Wood said today when asked how he felt toward the play.

"I'll promise to fight my damndest," he continued. "That's all I have to do because I know Frank (Shields) will come through if I win."

Betting odds tonight were even money. Twenty-four hours ago London commission houses were offering 4 to 1 against the Americans.

Al Crowder Is Pounded In Third

By Lewis F. Atchison
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHICAGO, July 24.—The Nats this afternoon picked up where they left off yesterday with the Chicagoans, but all they picked up was one run while the colorless Chisox picked up four and consequently won the second game of this series, 4 to 1.

Chicago picked on Shuffling Al Crowder for all of its runs in the first three innings as the sergeant, who has been demoted from general for losing too many battles, again confounded his supporters who have been crying: "Wait till the warm weather sets in, then you'll see the general go."

Crowder Knocked Out.

The warm weather has been settling on Chicago for several days. Today it batted around 110, warm enough for any pitcher. Crowder did go—in the third inning. Alec McColl relieved him and Tommy Thomas relieved McColl in the eighth.

Meanwhile, listless Les Tietje was relieving the Nats of their cherished batting punch, holding them to a half-dozen misplaced hits, only one of which made any difference in the score.

That was Johnny Gill's home run into the stockyards in the sixth.

Because they lost the Nats dropped back into sixth place behind the St. Louis Browns. Yesterday Washington won its second game in a row, and supplanted St. Louis, but it was different today—the Browns, by meeting up full face with the law of averages, turned tables on the Yanks and triumphed, 4 to 2.

When Nats did get on base Tietje merely unwound that strong right arm of his and, using it like a flit-gun, choked off what might have

Jockey King Big Help to Winner

Choice, Pennywise, Is Second, With Gloritone Third Home.

SALEM, N. H., July 24 (AP).—Khamseen, which carried the silks of S. W. Labrot earlier in the season, today won his third straight race for J. D. Mikel in accounting for the 1 1-16-mile event, which topped an ordinary card at Rockingham Park.

With the popular Tommy King in the saddle, the 3-year-old son of Sir Greysteel took the lead at the three-quarter pole and reached the judges with 2½ lengths to spare over the favorite, C. J. Meister's Pennywise.

King Rides Good Race.

It took one of King's good rides, however, to keep Khamseen going straight. The roan colt raced extremely wide at the stretch turn, and King was forced to hit him over the head several times to keep him in line. Gloritone was third, 2½ lengths back of Pennywise.

Under 108 pounds, Khamseen ran the distance in 1:46, 1 4-5 seconds off the track record, to pay $5.90 for a $2 win ticket.

Nats Bow, 4-1

been a dangerous rally. In only one instance did he seem to slip, in the fifth when he passed Schulte and Sewell with one down. But a double play saved him from any embarrassment.

Herr Heinie Manush was the only Washingtonian to get two hits, both singles. The second occurred in the sixth and so pleased was Herr Heinie that he left the game, a la Babe Ruth, and Ossie Bluege replaced him.

The usually dependable Buddy Myer aided Crowder in giving the eventual winners their first run of the game in the opening inning, muffing a double-play ball while Conlan scampered home from third.

Passes Two Men.

Crowder, acting in the capacity of stage manager, had arranged the trappings with great care, passing Simmons and Bonura after tossing a two-bagger at Conlan's bat.

The sergeant survived round two in admirable fashion, sending 'em back, one, two, three. But in the third the heat got him after the Sox had gotten three runs.

Swanson began the sergeant's last stand with a single to right and was sacrificed a peg by Conlan. This was unnecessary, but the Sox didn't known how the old trooper felt at this time. Chicago then laid down a well timed barrage of singles by Simmons, Bonura and Appling, all to right field, and another by Dykes to center.

McColl Retires Side.

Three runs were over and two more waiting for the go signal, when ancient Alec McColl went to the mound, and, after walking Hopkins, he retired the side.

Washington got two men on base in the seventh as Kress singled and Sewell walked, but Whitehill, pinch hitting for McColl, hit into an untimely double play.

Hathy Leads All Way To Win at Arlington

Arlington Park, July 24 (AP).—Hathy, running for S. M. Look, of Lexington, Ky., ran away with the top event of an all-claiming program at Arlington Park today, defeating Mrs. Roy Carruthers' Race Craft by two lengths at 6 furlongs. Jockey Paul Keester got Hathy away in front and made every post a winning one. Race Craft lasted to finish second, with C. V. Whitney's Synod in third place. Hathy raced the distance in 1:14, and paid $5.22 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE HEATHEN, $7.30, $4, $3; PERIODICAL, $4.90, $3.80; POLYFON, $3.10.

THE HEATHEN was prominently placed from the start, wore down CHAIN leaving the back stretch, drew clear, but hard ridden at the end, just lasted. PERIODICAL, slow to settle into his best stride, was taken to the outside approaching the stretch, closed fast on the outside and would probably have been the winner in another stride. POLYFON, restrained in pursuit of the race, held on willingly in the final drive. LAMP BLACK, outrun early, closed with belated speed in the last furlong. CHAIN had good speed, but tired through the stretch after saving all possible ground. HAPPY SCOT stopped through the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:01½. Off at 3:03. Winner, J. W. Walter's (jr.) b. or br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARLIE DAWN, $6.90, $4.20, $3.40; WAX, $4.40, $3.40; DOZANA, $5.

CHARLIE DAWN, away in the first flight and restrained within striking distance of the pace, came to the outside of the leaders in the stretch, responded gamely to hard urging and wore down WAX inside the last few yards. WAX, well placed from the start, went to the front when RIVER ROSE began tiring and despite holding on gamely, was unable to withstand the bid of the winner. DOZANA, far back early, lacked speed for the first five-sixteenths, moved up on the outside thereafter and finished with a rush through the stretch. COLOR BEARER, well placed throughout, was unable to improve his position under brisk urging. RIVER ROSE weakened badly in the closing quarter mile after displaying keen early speed. HOGANS FOX made up some ground in the last three-sixteenths.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35½. Off at 3:38½. Winner, H. T. Archibald's blk c. (2), by Westy Hogan—Arch Duchess. Trained by G. L. Arvin. Value to winner, $600; scond, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 3-5, 1:06 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WESTYS DUKE, $5.70, $3.90, $2.60; GREAT MASTER, $30.70, $8; PROSECUTOR, $2.60.

WESTYS DUKE, away well and in close attention of the pace, took command after passing the furlong pole, but just held on long enough to hold GREAT MASTER safe. The latter moved up steadily leaving the back stretch, closed with a rush on the outside through the stretch and was catching the winner at every stride. PROSECUTOR, quickest to begin, was steadied along in front, increased his lead entering the stretch, but faltered in the last sixteenth. RUSTIC JOE closed going gamely. MIGRATE, well up early, dropped back and lacked speed when called upon. CANOBIE LAKE had brief early speed. KNEESSI lodged a claim of foul against the winner, but it was not allowed.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:12. Winner, Mrs. A. R. Smith's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INFORMAL, $8.40, $3, $2.50; AYSTON, $2.70, $2.40; DORNOCH, $2.60.

INFORMAL followed the early pace, responded stoutly to hard urging through the stretch and, despite bearing out, was drawing clear at the end. AYSTON had speed from the start, drew into a good lead and, kept under punishment all the last furlong, was unable to stave off the closing challenge of the winner. DORNOCH, outpaced early, came with good enery through the stretch. JAZ AGE, well up throughout, was placed under punishment in an effort to keep up, but weakened in the last quarter mile. ANNE L. was never a factor. OSWEGO PRINCESS was outrun from the start.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHAMSEEN, $5.90, $2.60, $2.40; PENNYWISE, $2.60, $2.30; GLORITONE, $2.70.

KHAMSEEN was steadied along in nearest attendance of the pace, wore down PENNYWISE approaching the quarter pole, raced extremely wide at the stretch head and King was forced to hit him over the head several times to keep him in. He drew out steadily when straightened out. PENNYWISE had good speed, was rated along under slight restraint, but was unable to keep pace when challenged. GLORITONE raced well all the way, though unable to keep pace when challenged. VESTED POWER tired. AYMOND was outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCK POINT, $7, $3.60, $2.80; HERNANDO, $6.30, $3.60; SKY HAVEN, $4.70.

ROCK POINT, unruly at the post, moved up fast on the outside after straightening out on the back stretch, drew into a good lead before reaching the far turn and drew out steadily thereafter, winning with speed in reserve. HERNANDO had good speed from the start and continued gamely to the end, though no match for the winner. SKY HAVEN, reserved early, closed determinedly when called upon, but was unable to reach the first two. SQUEEZE OUT closed gamely in the last quarter mile. GABBO made up some ground. WATERSET, well placed early, tired. SANTERNO was outrun all the way and showed a dull effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $800 claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won cleverly; place, same. Went to post at 5:46. Off at 5:48. Winner, Jersey Stable's br. g. (6), by Light Brigade—Iwin. Trained by C. H. Trotter. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49, 1:14, 1:41 3-5, 2:00 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRASS MONKEY, $5.50, $3.20, $2.60; GOLD SPILL, $3, $2.40; GRAND ACRE, $2.50.

BRASS MONKEY as usual slow to begin, moved up gradually in the run down the back stretch, moved up on the inside after rounding the far turn and catching COLD SPILL inside the last 70 yards, was going away at the finish. COLD SPILL took command at once, was steadied along in front under slight restraint, but was unable to keep pace when the winner challenged. GRAND ACRE went well placed from the start, but weakened slightly during the closing three-sixteenths. GAY PARTY, well placed early, was unable to maintain his position when the real racing began. KIBITZER was never able to enter into contention. HIGH SOCKS was far back all the way.

Walker Must Win Back His Title

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP).—Spokesmen for the New York State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association today said that Mickey Walker would have to do more than reclaim the middleweight boxing title he discarded several years ago to gain title recognition from them.

"The Walker - Young Corbett match on the Coast in my opinion is just another contest, nothing more," Ed B. Foster, president of the N. B. A. telegraphed the Associated Press from Providence, R. I., when informed Walker was reclaiming his discarded crown.

"I would say the present champion is Vince Dundee," he continued. "Before Walker could fight for middleweight title he would have to hurdle Teddy Yaros, of Pittsburgh. I myself saw Lou Brouillard decisively defeat Walker in Boston, and I also saw Dundee decisively beat Brouillard."

Brown Not in Accord.

Bill Brown, New York State commission member, also viewed Walker's claims with a skeptical eye.

"The last time I saw Mickey fight he couldn't lick anybody," Brown said. "Dundee is recognized as champion in New York, and Walker hasn't done anything recently to change my mind as to that. He never has trained seriously, and I doubt if he could whip several middleweight aspirants who deserve a title shot before he does. I was down to his camp the last fight he had around New York, and it looked to me like he was engaging in a steak-eating contest instead of training for a fight."

Brown said the commission would discuss the matter at its meeting Friday when Chairman John J. Phelan will have returned from a European trip.

San Francisco, July 24 (AP).—Mickey Walker will meet Young Corbett, of Fresno, with his claim to the middleweight title at stake, in a 10-round match in the Seals' Stadium here August 14, the San Francisco Press Club, sponsoring the bout, announced today.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Rockingham Park, July 24.

Clocker Mike was sober today—cold sober. What's more, Clocker Mike is now a member of the Manchester Fire Department, thank you. It seems that Mike had a hot hand in a crap game over behind the paddock lunch when fire broke out in the stables. Mike remembered a horse that he had clocked in sensational time the other morning and he just couldn't bear to think of this possible longshot being done to a crisp brown. So when the firemen put the hose on the stable Mike followed the water right in and out he came dragging a singed 2-year-old behind him. The firemen gathered around and put a fire-fighting hat on him and before the flames weer out Mike was directing the work—that is, according to Mike. However, he showed up today with a badge on his belt and a two-inch increase in chest expansion. Two winners and a gang in the money was the Bennings, Inc. record for the day. BILL.

First race—I'm going to try to hustle the veteran Silverdale home in the opener. He has been eased along since arriving from Charles Town and this looks like the right spot. Flying Don didn't get any the best of the start last out. A better getaway tomorrow will find this fello win the thick of the battle. Lerack for the show.

Second race—Flag Time has the edge on this field, I do believe. A speedy plater now and ready to lead Chickahomony and Calgary Kay to the wire. The last named is a possible wake-up.

Third race—This group will have to beat Silk Flag before another takes this purse, and I don't believe such can be done. Mynah breaks from an outside post and will have something to say about the money distribution. Race Street has a fighting chance.

Fourth race—High Glee will have Robertson aboard and this combination should gain the long end of this purse. Black Hand has shown several speedy efforts and could be mighty troublesome. Flying Sailor to take care of the others.

Fifth race—Morning Mall gets the No. 1 post in this sprint and will have the hustling Peters to take care of the saddle work. Both horse and rider are fit and ready and I expect a victory. Lady Laura is one that Clocker Mike has dug up as a possible longshot. Candy Prince for the rest.

Sixth race—Tuffy G. usually pops up at sizeable odds. He seems to be auspiciously placed here and I look for a run in. Polly Cee and Lawless Lady for the other places. Fair Billy may do it, but that last cured me.

Seventh race—Employment, Friar Mark and Silver Wrack is the way I prefer them in this mile test. It is a close three-way fit in my book.

Eighth race—Burning Up, Speedy Skippy and Postscript can run for the Bennings dough. Any change in track conditions would move Butter Beans on top.

Frankie Parker Is Upset at Seabright

Mako Defeats Schoolboy Star; Helen Jacobs and Allison Advance.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 24 (AP). Led by Wilmer Allison, and Helen Jacobs, the ranking players in the men and women's singles, competition in the annual Seabright tennis tournament today moved into the quarter-final round with the usual accompaniment of upsets.

Allison, the Nation's No. 2 ranking player and seeded No. 1, was extended in each set before he gained the bracket of eight with a 6—4, 6—4 conquest of Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla. Miss Jacobs, the National women's champion, never was pressed, however, as she disposed of Marianne Hunt, Santa Monica, Calif., without losing a game.

The upsets in the men's competition came in the downfall of Frankie Parker, 18-year-old Lawrenceville, N. J. schoolboy; Gene Mako, National intercollegiate titleholder from Los Angeles, and J. Donald Budge, of Oakland, the eighth seeded player. In the women's play, Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, fell before the hard-driving Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., 3—6, 6—4, 6—0.

Parker's Game Shot.

Parker's game went askew in all departments after he led, 2—0, in each set and the revenge he sought from Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., who put him out in the Crescent-Hamilton tourney last week, turned out to be another straight triumph for the Southerner, 6—2, 6—4.

Budge made a gallant fight against Henry Prusoff, Seattle, but could not combat the Westerner's terrific service and accurate forehand and lost, 6—3, 3—6, 6—4. John McDiarmid, Fort Worth, outplayed young Mako in the first set and forged ahead in the third set with a succession of passing shots in the last two games to win at 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

The quarter-final bracket was completed by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta, National clay court champion; Gregory S. Mangin, Newark, N. J., winner of the Crescent-Hamilton tournament; Berkeley Bell, New York, and John Van Ryn, Philadelphia. The latter eliminated John Hope Doeg, National champion in 1930.

Joining Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Andrus in the quarter-finals of the women's competition were Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, Kansas City; Carolin Babcock, Los Angeles; Gracyn Wheeler, Los Angeles; Mae Cuervorst, Wichita, Kans.; Baroness Maud Levi, New York, and Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, Short Hills, N. J.

Pat Deck Enters Round of Eight in District Public Parks Title Tennis Tourney

Judd Beaten Handily by 6-3, 6-1

Markey-Mitchell Enter Doubles Semifinals in Straight Sets.

Good Card Today With Welsh Meeting Trigg in Feature.

THE annual Public Parks Tennis Championships passed through the conventional midtournament lull yesterday as early round matches were disposed of and the stage set for today's four quarter-final singles and two quarter-final doubles matches.

Pat Deck, seventh seeded player, ascended to the remaining open rung in the round of eight with a 6—3, 6—1 victory over Dean Judd, and Bud Markey and Dooley Mitchell tore through to the semifinals in the doubles, walloping Lawrence and Raphael Sherfy, 6—1, 6—4, in the second round and Neal Anderson and John Neal in the third round, 6—2, 6—1.

Welsh vs. Trigg Today.

Today's hot and hectic program opens at 4 o'clock when Barney Welsh, 1934 champion, meets Hugh Trigg, seeded No. 8, in a match which should definitely give some indication of the Rockville rocket's present physical condition. Lightly built, Barney appeared suffering from a severe attack of fatigue in his near-fatal third-round match with Ray Freshman Monday.

Welsh was still feeling the effects of his gruelling five-set battle at Frederick with Baltimore Eddie Jacobs Sunday and his listless play reflected his condition. He declared the intention of catching plenty of sleep before today's match and, providing he is hitting with his old power, should plow through to the semifinals without too much trouble. Freshman, in winning the second set of Monday's match, is the first District player to take a set from Welsh in tournament play this year.

Other Good Matches.

At 5 o'clock, Dooley Mitchell, seeded second, after Welsh, tackles Morgan (Happy) Jacob, the only unseeded man to reach the quarter-finals. Jacob eliminated Frank Shore, seeded fifth, Monday. Also at 5 o'clock, Ralph McElvenny, District tournament finalist against Welsh, clashes with Deck and Bud Markey, seeded fourth, meets Herb Shenkin, seeded No. 6. Only the biggest kind of an upset could result in the elimination of any one of the top-seeded four.

The two doubles quarter-final frays today brings the top-seeded team of Tony Latona and Axel Gravem against Frederic Sendel and Maurice O'Neil at 5 o'clock and McElvenny and Welsh, seeded second, against Trigg and Allen Staubley an hour later. Deck and Joe Baker reached the semifinals Monday. Latona and Gravem, City of Washington champions, were none too impressive yesterday in their match with Sid Wallenstein and Harry Goldsmith, winning 6—2, 12—10, but contented themselves with a mild workout in their first match of the tournament.

Petrin and Simms Fight at Stadium

Hogan Off Tuesday Card; Fullam Faces Turner.

Unable to obtain a suitable opponent for the big, promising heavyweight, Eddie Hogan, Joe Turner yesterday signed Don Petrin to meet Eddie Simms in a 10-round main bout at Griffith Stadium next Tuesday. Petrin is the heavyweight who displayed such real class and boxing form against Buddy McArthur in a semifinal to the Galento-Tow shambles last week. Eddie Simms is the Cleveland knockerout who is rated much higher in the fistic scale than his brother Frankie.

Frankie Fullam, former Catholic University star who has shown great improvement in recent New York bouts, will meet Bob Turner, the Norfolk plopper-over in an 8-round semifinal. In sixes, Joe Green will tackle Buddy Grimes. Freddy Heintz is scheduld against Henry Irving and Roy Manley will shoot his southpaw punch against Tony Dominguez.

Palfrey, 15, Joins 5 Sisters In Effort to Win Tennis Fame

BOSTON, July 24 (AP).—Palfrey for years has been one of the best know names in tennis, thanks to the exploits of five racquet-swinging sisters from Brookline, of who the leader is Sarah Hammond Palfrey, of Wightman Cup fame.

Now the baby of the family, 15-year-old John Gorham Palfrey, jr., has taken racquet in hand resolved to gain a little glory for the male side of the family in a National way.

Johnny has been chosen by the New England Lawn Tennis Association as one of two youths, who will represent this section in the 1934 National junior championAcademy, Indiana, the week of ships opening at Culver Military August 6. The other nominee is Harry Thompson, jr., of Manchester. They are ranked one-two among New England's boy players.

Young Palfrey reached the State doubles finals at the age of 12, losing in a three-set match. He came back to win the boys singles and doubles titles in 1932 and 1933. In addition he holds several other State championships in New England.

Johnny isn't positive just yet that tennis is his best game, for he also has been competin regularly in junior golf tournaments and making a good showing.

Each of Johnny's sisters, Polly, Elizabeth, Mianne, Sarah, and Joanna, has held one or more National tennis titles.

Chevy Chase's Women Take Golf Title

Beat Army-Navy, 9½-2½; Mrs. Meckley's 82 Is Best for Day.

AFTER Miss Elizabeth Houghton, daughter of the former Ambassador to Great Britain and Germany, made a flying trip from Massachusetts in order to play, Chevy Chase's women golfers trounced Army and Navy, 9½ to 2½, yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club to win the District first team championship.

Miss Houghton, winner of The Washington Post match play handicap championship in 1933, scored an 87 as she and Mrs. Landra B. Platt won 3 points from Mrs. L. H. Hedrick and Mrs. F. G. Crisp. Other members of the Chevy Chase team who won points were Miss Susan Hacker, Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., Mrs. Bishop Hill, Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., Mrs. Frank R. Keefer and Mrs. Harry E. Knauss.

Scores 80½ Points.

Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, former District champion, set the pace yesterday with a 40-42—82, one of the finest rounds ever made in women's competition at the course. A 7 on the 525-yard sixteenth prevented the host club star from scoring an even 80.

Baer Referees Brown Bout Tonight

Young Washington Heavy Fight Arthur Huttick at Legion Arena.

WITH revenge in his heart and dynamite in his fists, Natie Brown, Washington's rapidly rising young heavyweight contender, will do battle with one who hampered his progress considerably earlier in his career—Arthur Huttick—in a 10-round feature at the American Legion Arena tonight. Cofeatured with the main bout will be Max Baer, heavypweight champion of the world, who is an entire card in himself. Baer, of course, will not risk his classic profile against the punches of two common heavyweights who are without the pale of the first five, but will act as guest referee and master of ceremonies.

Huttick started Brown on the nose-diving slump which set the local heavy back just before he began his recent spurt which has carried him to the seventh ranking in the big boy division, with a sound trouncing in which Nathan received a bad gash over his eye. In subsequent battles, the cut was reopened, causing Brown to lose on a technical knockout to Tony Galento and many others.

Held Neusel to Draw.

After a long enforced layoff, during which medical skill was summoned to his aid to heal the cut completely, Brown popped back into action by fighting Walter Neusel at Ridgewood Grove Club. The best Brown received for his efforts against Neusel was a draw, but that was enough under the circumstances. Since then he has taken Bob Tow, Marty Gallagher, Hans Birkie and Al Stillman into camp.

Huttick has just returned from a long sojourn abroad during which he met and defeated the best heavies available across the pond. His manager, the faous Jimmy Bronson, feels confident that his charge is in condition and prepared to upset Brown.

Bars Baer as Referee.

So certain is Brown of Huttick's winning that he insisted that one of Washington's regularly licensed referees work the main bout, not trusting to the arbitering efforts of Baer, who originally was scheduled to act as third man.

Baer will work one of the preliminaries or the semifinal and perform several new stunts which he has thought up out of his own head since dethroning Primo Carnera. His presence here is one jump of a tour of the East in similar performances. From Washington he will go to Cleveland and gradually work his way West to the Coast, where he will go immediately into a new movie.

McNeill, Midland Ace, Bat Leader With .464

Cumberland, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Lee McNeill, Midland, copped the first half batting championship of the Cumberland and George's Creek League with an average of .464, according to the official record completed by Ray E. Wilt, secretary. He made 40 hits in 84 tries at bat. Three players have better averages than McNeill but played about half as much.

Sullivan, of Tri-Towns, was second among the regulars with .442, while Harry Gorta, of Cumberland, was third, with .437.

Post Predictions

Bouts rated A (excellent) to Z (unmentionable).

Main event—Arthur Huttick, New York, vs. Natie Brown, Washington, heavyweights; ten rounds. Rated G. Brown is a cagey, not a colorful, performer and may fight even more cautiously than usual against Huttick's terrific body punching. If they both open up, this bout will deserve a much higher rating. Brown to outsmart Huttick.

Semifinal — Steve Dudas, New York, vs. Bill Mathews, Baltimore, heavyweights; eight rounds. Rated E. Dudas, a miniature Jack Dempsey, always keeps tearing in, making a fight of it, and Mathews still can punch, even though it is rumored he has seen his best days. Dudas.

Preliminaries—Don Berry, Washington, vs. Dropper Clark, Marine Corps, lightweights, four rounds. No line available for rating or selection. Sammy Alfino, Cuba, vs. Steve Lokasik, Naval Air Station. Rated H. Alfino should outsmart Lokasik. Soldier Jack Loudin, Fort Humphreys, vs. Earl Dunlap, Georgia, middleweights; four rounds. Rated H. Loudin apparently is going places in the ring racket and should take Dunlap without too much trouble.

Guest referee and master of ceremonies—Max Baer, world's heavyweight champion, vs. the crowd. Rated A plus. Mad Maxie can lick any crowd in the world and is entitled to an A plus rating in everything but agility in avoiding lawsuits.

Thomas Somerville Shoots a Subpar 69

Farmington, Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Thomas H. Somerville, of Montpelier Station, returned from Absecon, N. J., today after shooting a 69 at the Bay course of the Seaview Golf Club. Somerville, a member of numerous golf clubs in Virginia and Delaware, clipped 2 strokes off par while playing with R. F. Loving, of the Farmington Country Club. Somerville might have tied the course record of 66 had he not missed three putts of less than 4 feet each. He played the back nine in 31, 3 below par, holing every putt.

District Tank Aces Invade Baltimore

Lyman, Broaddus, Knight in Group to Compete at Meadowbrook.

A NUMBER of the District's foremost aquatic stars will compete in the Meadowbrook Swimming Club's open meet this Saturday at Baltimore. Joe Lyman, District outdoor highboard diving champion, and Bob Knight, indoor champion, will perform in their specialty as will Johnnie Broaddus, former champion, and Johnnie Marshall, runner-up for the outdoor title. Lyman and Broaddus will represent Maryland Club Gardens; Knight, the Shoreham Men's Swimming Club, and Broaddus will compete unattached.

Buddy Hodgson and Charlton Graves, of the Shoreham, are also entered in the diving, while Marie Duvall, women's District champion, is to compete in the women's diving along with Leonora Taube. Both girls are from the Shoreham. Ann Bono, of the Shoreham, District 50-yard champion, will swim the short sprint with Caroline Cox, former champion and clubmate.

George Groff, of the Shoreham, District sprint champion, will probably not compete, but Jim Sharp, of the Ambassador, runner-up to Groff in the outdoor title meet, is planning to make the trip.

Planting the Sorrow.

Some men who have a haunting sorrow are wont to place it on parade; if they were wise they'd go and borrow a useful pick-ax and a spade, and then they'd plant that sorrow deeply, with proper dirges, fervent hymns, and not display the blamed thing cheaply, as beggars show their festered limbs. All voters have their gnawing sorrow, that turns their hair and whiskers gray, but some look forward to tomorrow and shoo sad memories away. Misfortunes on their heads are raining, as they pursue their daily chores, but if they went around complaining their friends would think them deadly bores. They know how weary they are feeling when others come with tales of dole, explaining how they hit the ceiling and lost a package or a roll. They know how anger in them bubbles, when others stop them on the street to tell the story of their troubles, of ruin widespread and complete. And so they vow they'll plant their sorrow out in the boneyard cold and gray, still banking on a bright tomorrow, still dodging evils of the day. Since came the great and famed depression the multitudes are sad and blue, and every gent must make confession of all the griefs he ever knew. A few brave souls refuse to bore us, refuse to groan about their plight; instead, they join in pleasant chorus, insisting that the outlook's bright.

Stocks Touch New Lows in Late Sell-Off

Undertone Turns Steadier as Sales Dwindle to 1,595,120 Shares.

New York, July 24 (AP).—Efforts to rally stocks lacked stamina today and the market closed lower for the fifth consecutive session after a late selling wave had wiped out most of the earlier gains.

On the average, share prices sagged into new low ground for the year. The undertone was steadier, howeved, and liquidation diminished. Volume dwindled to 1,595,120 shares compared with 1,868,790 yesterday.

The trading pace quickened materially in the last half hour as selling was resumed in volume. Farm implement and mail order shares were under pressure on weakness in leading staples.

Brokers on Sell-off.

Brokers interpreted the late sell-off as a resumption of the decline which started last week, rather than as motivated by any new developments. Margin calls were said to have gone out in the largest volume in some time and to have resulted in some additional forced liquidation, especially around the opening and toward the close.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks closed eight-tenths of a point lower at 71.4. The average has declined nearly 7 points since last Thursday without a rally.

Movements were uneven and there was a scattering of net gains at the close. Rail shares steadied after their severe decline, although on the average they sold at new lows for the year.

Farm Group Losses.

J. I. Case headed the farm group with a loss of nearly 5 points. It touched 40, its 1934 low. International Harvester & Deere were off 1½ points. Montgomery Ward & Sears Roebuck lost more than a point each in active selling toward the close.

Homestake Mining tumbled 15 points to 400 on a transfer of 100 shares. Metals and other industrial groups generally moved lower. U. S. Steel, General Motors, General Electric, Chrysler and other leading shares touched the lowest prices recorded this year on further small losses.

Utilities showed better resistance along with rails. American Telephone continued to hold around 112. Consolidated Gas was unchanged.

Live Stock and Crops.

Some of the recent liquidation movement was thought by some commentators to reflect a moderation of bullish hopes for autumn, party because of the serous damage suffered by farm areas from the drought and short crops. Details of live stock and crop losses occupied a prominent place in the news.

Covering of short commitments helped to steady railroad stocks in the face of publication of some disappointing June operating income reports in comparison with last year. The first 11 railroads to report June revenues showed net operating income of $10,999,000 compared with $13,378,000 in June, 1933, a drop of 17.7 per cent, although gross income for the month increased 3.2 per cent.

Smaller profit-margins also were seen in a decline in earnings of several important corporations. Most second quarter corporate earnings reports, however, made favorable comparions with the like period last year.

Treasury Offering of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Bonds Provides a Way for Distorting Our Fiscal Position.

By Ralph West Robey.

There is little use to mince words about the offering of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds just made by the United States Treasury. It is financial juggling pure and simple. And it is juggling of exactly the same type that has brought, and properly so, holding companies into disgrace in this county.

The offering is for $100,000,000. The bonds bear 3 per cent interest. They will be sold to the highest bidders. They are fully guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the United States Government. Yet, technically, they are not Government bonds. This is the beauty of the issue. The Treasury merely acts as fiscal agent for the Farm Mortgage Corporation. The amount borrowed, accordingly, does not have to appear in the public debt.

Effects Go Even Further; Will Reduce Public Debt.

The situation, in fact, is even worse than this. Through the issue the public debt will be reduced. This is because, according to dispatches, the proceeds of the loan will be used largely to repay advances that have been received by the Mortgage Corporation from the Treasury and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. These advances now appear as part of the public debt. In the case of the advances of the Treasury they are included directly. In the case of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation one more step is involved. The RFC lends the money to the Mortgage Corporation and then, in turn, borrows from the Treasury.

If the entire amount of the proceeds of the offering were used to pay off such advances, thus, there would be a reduction of $100,000,000 in the public debt of the United States, as shown by the daily statement of the Treasury. The repayment, too, would appear as a credit on the books of the Treasury. In consequence, the deficit for the month and fiscal year to date would be reduced by $100,000,000.

Danger Shown if One Considers RFC Possibilities.

If anyone doubts that such a practice is questionable procedure let him think of its possibilities for hiding the real financial position of the Government. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation now has net outstanding of some $4,000,000,000. All of this has been obtained by the RFC selling its debentures to the Treasury. The organization has the right, however, to sell its debentures directly to the public with a guarantee by the Government of both principal and interest.

Suppose the RFC decides to follow such a course, and by this means raises $4,000,000,000. Further, that it then takes this amount and repays the advance of the Treasury. The effect would be to wipe out an equivalent amount of the deficit. We would show not only a balanced budget but a surplus until such time as the actual outlays of the Treasury exceeded its receipts from taxation by $4,000,000,000.

The current offering by the Treasury of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonus is this kind of a transaction. There is no defence for it. Either all of these guaranteed obligations must be shown in the daily Treasury statement or the basis for the issue of them must be taken out. Sleight of hand has no place in Treasury accounting.

Bond Market Pushed Lower As Rails Lose

Rallying Tendencies Fail; Sales Volume Rises to $11,740,000.

New York, July 24 (AP).—Conspicuous heaviness of secondary rail liens in the final hour of today's bond market again unsettled the list and most issues finished around their low levels of the day.

While rallying tendencies had been shown in the early dealings, buying was rather half-hearted and offerings increased following another late relapse in stocks.

The carriers apparently reflected growing doubts regarding a solution of the high cost problem and a sharp decline in June earnings, compared with last year, now being reported by a number of the carriers.

Hopeful News Scarce.

News of interest to other sections of the market was scarce and various prime investment loans barely shaded their recent peak prices.

Transfers totaled $11,740,000, par value, only a trifle more than yesterday, but the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate bonds sagged 4-10 of a point, to 85.7. The rails accounted for the largest part of this decline.

Others on Losing List.

McKesson 5½s were off 2½ at 79½; Nickel Plate 6s, off 3½ at 62; Northern Pacific 3s, off 1 at 69; Sharon Steel Hoop 5½s, off 2¾ at 63¼; Studebaker 6s, off 1¾ at 45½, and U. S. Rubber 5s, off 1¾ at 84½.

Aside from Home Owners Loan 3s and 4s, which were slightly higher, the majority of U. S. Government securities recorded declines of 2-32 to 7-32 of a point.

Foreign obligations were fairly steady. While the Argentines lost a point or more, gains of fractions to around a point were held by bonds of Australia, Finland, France and Germany.

Curb's Prices Decline Again Under Selling

Some Issues Resist Loss in Drive; Sales Cut to 261,000 Shares.

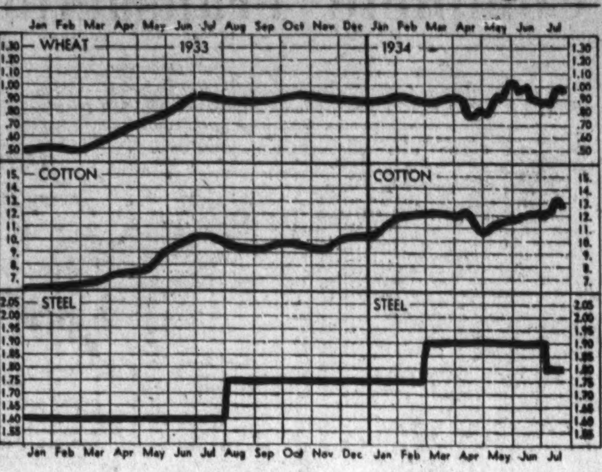

New York, July 24 (AP).—Selling, which broke out anew in the last few minutes of trading, resulted in further declines on the curb exchange today. Modest recoveries recorded in earlier dealings were hastily swept aside and net losses of fractions to more than a point generally substituted.

The list was steady at the start and quiet buying appeared in many issues that yielded in the previous day's selling. A few scattered shares resisted the late selling drive, particularly Dow Chemical, which closed at 75, up 3 points. Duke Power, a recent heavy spot, finished 2½ points higher at 40.

Waco Aircraft was a spectacular loser, sagging around 6½ points at one time for a new low this year. Singer Manufacturing, Midland Steel 2d preferred and Montgomery Ward "A" lost around 2 each while shares off about a point or more included Armstrong Cork, Commonwealth Edison, Flintkote "A," Greyhound Corporation, Pioneer Gold, Sherwin Williams, Technicolor, A. O. Smith and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Electric Bond & Share and Standard Oil of Indiana ended slightly lower.

Transfers approximated 261,000 shares compared with 299,000 yesterday.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

There was almost no movement in foreign exchange rates yesterday. Some of the gold currencies worked a little higher in terms of dollars, while the German mark slipped .12 of a cent to 38.80 cents.

The pound sterling remained at $5.04¼ in New York, after the dollar had held unchanged in London at 5.04 3-16 to the pound.

French francs also were unchanged at 6.59⅛ cents in New York, while the dollar gained slightly in Paris at the equivalent of 6.58⅞ cents to the franc.

The price of gold in London advanced a halfpenny to 137 shillings 11 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.77), and an amount valued at about $2,239,337 changed hands.

At the closing New York price for French francs, the dollar was valued at a premium of .64 of a cent over par, the same as on Monday and compared with .54 of a cent a month ago.

Farm Product Prices Reflect Effects of Drought on Crops

Grains Make Further Advances After Sag From Season's Highs; Spot Cotton Holds Near to Tops; Live Stock Declines Moderately.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture. Bureau of Economics.)

Prices of farm products continue to respond mainly to news of the drought. Grain markets have made further net gains since the middle of July, although prices sagged after reaching new high levels of the season.

Feeds followed the grain position rather closely and there was a strong market on wheat products. Spot cotton holds fairly close to the year's top prices around 13 cents. Live stock values decline moderately under continued heavy supplies. Butter prices recovered rather sharply with active buying, but cheese sold lower in central markets under pressure of heavy holdings and sold at about steady levels in producing sections.

Standard lines of eggs advanced a little as conditions affecting production became less favorable. Most poultry sold at fairly steady levels, but price changes were slightly downward and demand slow. Fruits and vegetables show many price declines along with liberal supplies, including much poor stock and limited demand.

Cotton Prices Hold.

Prices of spot cotton have shown little net change since the middle of the month. Unfavorable market features included domestic labor troubles, high temperatures in the eastern part of the belt which tended to check boll weevil activity, continued light exports and domestic consumption, and lower prices for commodities and securities.

New England cotton markets reported increased buying of spot cotton. Southern mill centers were showing only moderate activity and labor troubles resulted in the closing of several mills. Drought continues unbroken in Texas and western Oklahoma, temperatures above normal having been reported for many sections. The hot weather and only a few scattered showers in the Eastern States were beneficial to the crop in this region where the moisture has been excessive and where boll weevils were reported in larger numbers than for several years.

Grains Tend Upward.

The general wheat market situation displayed a considerably stronger tone the second half of July. Leading market influence was the serious and rapid crop deterioration. Harvesting of winter wheat has advanced to the northern limits of the belt and threshing is well along. In the spring wheat section, particularly in Minnesota, small grains appear to be in almost hopeless condition. Further crop injuries are reported in Canada. In Europe, too, the drought continues to lower the crop prospects.

Cash hard wheat at Kansas City gained 2 cents or more the third week of July and soft wheat was irregularly higher with active buying from mills and storage interests. Spring wheat markets were very firm and making steady price gains. Corn markets were sharply higher and trade estimates of production lower. Prices of oats and barley strengthened with those of other feed grains and rye markets advanced with wheat.

Feed prices moved sharply upward in mid-July and later. Advancing grain prices and increased demand from drought areas were the principal strengthening influence. The principal gain was in wheat feeds, but cottonseed, linseed, and corn feeds were also higher. The average of feed prices advanced 2 to 3 cents, nearly reaching the level of a year ago.

Hungary to Make Part Payment Loan Interest

New York, July 24.—Speyer & Co. as American fiscal agents, have been informed by the trustees of the State Loan of the Kingdom of Hungary 1924 that the Hungarian government has provided foreign currencies to meet 50 per cent of the interest due on August 1, 1934. For the balance, Pengo Treasury bills of the government have been deposited to the credit of the trustees with the National Bank of Hungary.

As directed by the trustee, Speyer & Co. are prepared to make this part payment of 50 per cent of the face value of the coupon, to the holders of the August 1, 1934, coupons of the dollar bonds, on or after that date. Such coupons will be marked "Paid 50 per cent" and returned to the bondholders to be reattached to their bonds, in order that their claim for the balance may be preserved.

Wheat Slumps On Prospects Of Heat Break

Decided curtailment of speculative interest accompanied the fall of values, with corn and other grains, as well as wheat, showing a pronounced reactionary trend.

Some moisture relief was reported Northwest and West, and forecasts indicated lower temperatures there, supplemented by additional showers.

All deliveries of wheat went below $1, and the market closed heavy near the day's bottom level, 2 to 2½ cents under yesterday's finish; corn, 1¼ to 1⅜ down; oats, ½ to 1¼ off, and provisions showing 10 to 15 cents' decline.

Extreme downturns of wheat prices went within ⅛ of going full 5 cents under yesterday's top. Contributing to the weakness of the market was the fact that primary receipts were larger than a year ago for the first time in weeks.

In addition, both here and at Liverpool, various observers regarded the wheat market as overbought for at least the time being, and there were cables saying that European crops in some sections were turning out better than expected.

Much of the selling of wheat today was attributed to Eastern sources. Some of the selling appeared to be of a stop-loss character, disposal of holdings upon which brokerage margins had been exhausted with no additional funds forthcoming from owners. Comparative scantiness of new speculative demand, however, rather than any unusual degree of pressure to sell, distinguished the market as a whole.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. In some quarters, semipanicky marketing of live stock was looked upon as bearish as to feed grains.

Cotton Rallies Wiped Out in Liquidation

July Sells at 12.61 as General Market Drops 23 to 26 Points.

New York, July 24 (AP).—Partial rallies from an early decline in cotton today followed failure of official weather reports to indicate adequate rains in the Southwest, but prices eased off again in the later trading under renewed liquidation.

October contracts after selling off to 12.79 early, rallied to 12.93, or within 6 points of yesterday's closing quotations, but later broke to 12.76 and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 23 to 26 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 15 to 18 points and after some early irregularity active months sold about 20 to 23 points net lower in response to the easy Liverpool cables and belief that the buying of late yesterday had weakened the technical position. This decline was checked by trade buying and covering on the official weather report and prices rallied 12 or 14 point from the lowest.

December Sells at 13.04.

December sold up to 13.04, or within 7 points of yesterday's closing quotations, but the demand failed to broaden and prices weakened again during the afternoon on an idea that a disturbance reported in the Gulf might possibly improve the Texas rain prospect, the easier ruling of the grain market. The lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when December sold off to 12.86, or a point below yesterday's low level.

While reports of a disturbance in the Gulf seemed to bring in liquidation, doubt was expressed in some quarters whether it would spread northward. The official forecast was for unsettled weather with showers in south portions of east Texas, and generally fair to part cloudy in west Texas except for unsettled in the extreme west portion. The official details showed only a few light showers in Texas and continued high temperatures in the western belt. Exports today, 9,961. Making 7,604,165 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,954. U. S. port stocks, 2,486,150.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil closed barely steady and unchanged to 2 points lower today. Sales, 41 contracts. The belief that rains would come in western Texas seemed to unsettle the market and led to scattered liquidation in the near months, although refining interests bought and declines were held in check. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 5.95; September, 5.98; October, 6.03; December, 6.23; January, 6.30.

Bank Reopenings Pass 1,000 Mark for 1934

New York, July 24.—The number of banks opened in 1934 passed the 1,000 mark last week, according to the American Banker. At the close of the week, the total reopenings and replacement institutions chartered was 1,020, of which 339 were National and 681 were State-chartered institutions.

Federal Reserve reports showed that after the banking holiday in 1933 at the first of April there were 4,811 closed and unlicensed banks, of the 18,390 which had been operating 100 per cent on December 31, 1932. Reopenings during 1933 totaled slightly over 1,500, of which 800 took place before June 30. Added to the 1,020 reopened this year, this makes the net loss in banking institutions since the first part of 1933 still 2,300 banks, the American Banker estimates.

New Ruling Is Issued On Shipments of Pulp

Richmond, Va., July 24 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today ordered the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad to grant the Virginia Central, Fredericksburg-Orange Link, the same rates on pulpwood shipments as are now in force out of Fredericksburg via Doswell.

By the order shipments will be made in the future at not more than $1.70 per ton out of Fredericksburg via Doswell and not more than $1.80 per ton by the R. F. & P carload shipments would contain at least 20 tons of pulpwood.

Trade Gains Show More Advertising

Chicago, July 24.—The confidence of business men that sales opportunities justify increased promotion effort is reflected in the increase of 9.9 per cent in the volume of newspaper advertising in June, as compared with June, 1933, Avertising Age reports.

The total volume in 77 leading cities was 145,237,000 lines, as compared with 132,150,000 lines in June, 1933. General advertisers led the way in percentage of increase with a total of 27,922,000 lines, a gain of 17.9 per cent over the figures of a year ago. Sugar Futures Hold Steady; Buying Revives

Coffee Becomes Firm as Brazil's Political Status Is Cleared.

New York, July 24.—Sugar futures maintained a quiet tone during the week under review due to the waiting attitude of traders with regard to the proposed Cuban treaty. After slight declines on liquidation by "tired longs," the market turned firm in sympathy with raws and closed the week with net results of 1 point decline to 1 point advance.

Toward midweek refiners abandoned their waiting policy and entered the market moderately as buyers, paying 1.67 for several cargoes of Cubas. As the week closed refiners showed a more active interest, with a sale of Cubas made at 1.72, a new high for the year.

Buyers were reluctant to touch duty-free sugars as both the Philippines and Puerto Rico have already shipped their quotas. A sale of Puerto Ricos was reported on Friday at 3.18, a new high for duty-free sugars this year. This sale included a cancellation clause providing that in the event that these sugars were over the quota the buyer could refuse them. The AAA ruling that Cuban sugar in bond on January 1, 1934, would be applied against the Cuban quota as released helped to clarify the situation.

Poor Growing Conditions.

Licht's cables to the United States report poor growing conditions for the beet crop for continental Europe and the United States. Cable advices report 87 per cent of the Puerto Rican quota already shipped, with a large part of the balance already sold. Cuban production to July 15 is estimated at 2,218,000 tons, 98 per cent of the decreed crop, 2,315,000 tons.

Eight Cuban centrals continue to grind. In London raws were slightly higher, being quoted at the equivalent of 94 cents, f. o. b. Cuba, compared with 92 cents last week.

On a wave of better sentiment induced by the clearing up of Brazil's political difficulties, coffee futures were firm throughout the week under review. Santos contracts showed gains of 15 to 21 points for the week and Rio 7 to 14 points. The election on Tuesday of President Vargas and Brazil's return to constitutional government produced a better feeling in Brazil and the local trade.

Coffee Prices Advanced.

Prices advanced in sympathy with higher Brazilian cables and trade covering due to increased demand in the local spot market. As the week closed prices reacted slightly from the best but a steady undertone was maintained.

In the spot market better inquiry and demand was reported with Santos 4's quoted at 10¾ cents, against 10½ cents last week. The futures market in Rio gained 1,650 to 1,675 reis for the week. Destruction in Brazil during the first half of July amounted to 305,000 bags as against 702,000 bags during the last half of June. This letdown reflects Brazil's confidence in the market due to the improved statistical position on July 1 and the smaller 1934-35 crop now estimated at 14,102,000 bags.

With the weather reported as fine all week, talk of frost has abated. Cables disclosed that the National Coffee Department had resolved that coffee exportable from Santos for the second half of July and August would be 60 per cent direct and 40 per cent retained as against the previous rate of 30 per cent direct and 70 per cent retained.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Coal—On the basis of production in the second week in July, coal output in the United States is running around 7,500,000 tons weekly. There has been a good demand for bituminous due to the expected mark up of 50 cents a ton on September 1.

Oil—Bunker fuel oil continues in an unsettled price range and the trade has heard further reports of a contemplated reduction from present levels. Domestic heating oils were reported quiet and there was a tapering off in sales of kerosene.

Knit goods—Cotton underwear prices have become more stable as a result of the recent upward trend in raw cotton. Hosiety was reported in better demand, but wholesalers were said to have abundant stocks on hand.

Paints—With the seasonal rush over, the demand for pigments has subsided considerably, although a fairly steady business was reported in chemical colors. Carbon black deliveries thus far in July were estimated to be running behind those for June.

Metals—With the exception of lead, the market for metals of various kinds continues quiet. Lead users were reported to be stocking up in anticipation of an advance in prices, which are now $9 a ton less than they were a year ago.

Year's World Tin Consumption Placed at 27 Per Cent Increase

New York, July 24.—A 27 per cent increase in world consumption of tin for the year ended May, 1934, compared with the previous 12 months is shown in the current bulletin of The Hague Statistical Office of the International Tin Research and Development Council.

Consumption, in long tons. 12 months ended May,

	1933.	1934.
United States	38,470	53,117
United Kingdom	17,879	20,112
Germany	8,872	11,007
France	8,826	9,354
Italy	3,753	4,020
U. S. S. R.	2,676	5,153
British India	2,061	1,900

Tin consumption in the tinplate industry during the year ended May, 1934, is shown as 55,000 tons, this being 5,000 tons more than in 1929 and 2,900 tons more than in the peak year of 1933.

World Auto Output.

World automobile output during the first five months of this year, the Bulletin states amounted to approximately 1,835,030 units as compared with 1,076,282 units during 1933.

Tin consumed in this industry during the same period totaled 5,700 tons in 1934 as compared with 3,590 tons in 1933.

Prices of Lead Improve in Past Week

New York, July 24 (AP).—A steadily improving price situation in lead was the feature of nonferrous metals market in the past week. Advances of $1 to $2 a ton in lead reflected steady day-to-day purchases, with buying on the advance approximately equalling the smelter ore intake. The demand was predominately for August shipment, with buyers apparently anxious to stock up against anticipated fall requirements.

No change of consequence occurred in copper, with the price holding at 9 cents for Blue Eagle electrolytic. A generally small consumer demand was emphasized by reports that operations in the brass mills of the Waterbury, Conn., district have shrunk perceptibly. June statistics, however, showed a refined stock, or nearly double the reduction of 36,300 tons in domestic reduction in May. Since June 1, 1933, U. S. stocks of refined have been reduced 228,000 tons.

Zinc continued flat, although prices held generally steady. While demand was negligible, producers are favored by the statistical position and are not disposed to press offerings.

Tin continued steady in a quiet market. Foreign exchange movements affected prices from time to time, but generally the schedule was unchanged. Demand was quiet, with buyers coming in only as needs demanded. Tin plate trade sentiment improved, reflecting intimations that previous reports of large stocks in hands of can makers were exaggerated.

Week's Bank Clearings List Deposits Increase

Baltimore Tobacco.

Baltimore, Md., July 24 (Spl.).—Leaf tobacco receipts increased to 1,176 hogsheads. Sales were 709 hogsheads, which was just about as many as were offered outside of reinspections of old-crop tobacco.

Crop Prospects.

Maryland—In about half of the growing section rain is now needed to make a good crop.

Maryland firm leaf, nondescript, 3.00@4.00; common to medium, 4.50@8.00; seconds, common to diseased, 3.00@7.00; medium to good, 8.00@20.00; good to fine, 21.00@35.00.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 24 (AP).—Dun's insolvency index for the first part of July was down to 55.7, compared with 63.1 for the full month of June, and 88.2 for the corresponding period in 1933. The drop of 7.4 points in a single month was regarded as more than the average.

The automobile industry is engaging about 9 per cent of all steel making capacity and is thus accounting for approximately 1-3 of the current production of steel ingots, forecast this week at about 28 per cent of capacity, according to the weekly review of the American metal market. There is really no distinct increase in steel purchases, the publication states.

Holders of $8,386,000 of the $24,532,000 Alleghany Corporation 5 per cent bonds of 1950 have deposited them in favor of a plan of recapitalization of the company, according to a statement filed with the New York Stock Exchange.

Commenting on the application of the Railroad Credit Corporation to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a plan of reorganization of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., E. N. Brown, chairman of the reorganization committee for the road, stated that no plans for taking the line out of bankruptcy were under consideration at the present time. It would be advisable, he added, to wait for an improvement in business before drawing a plan.

B. & O Road Promotes Agent at Huntington

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 24 (Spl.).—Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials announce the promotion of Carl H. Groninger from the position of district freight agent at Huntington to that of division freight agent with headquarters at Parkersburg.

Andrew Hartzell, of Baltimore, promoted from traveling freight agent, will succeed Groninger at Huntington, and J. H. Garbesi, whom Groninger succeeds, has been transferred to the Wheeling division. The Parkersburg division, of which Groninger will have charge, includes the territory between Moundsville and Kenova.

Canada Wheat Crop to Bring More Money

Farmer to Receive Largest Cash Return in Past Three Years.

New York, July 24.—Should the present price of wheat be maintained, the grain farmers of the Canadian west should receive substantially larger monetary returns than in the last three years, even though quantity production is moderate, says the Bank of Montreal in its current business summary. Prospects promise a heavier harvest than last year, when Canadian wheat production amounted to 269,729,000 bushels, and the prevailing price of wheat is substantially above last year's average price of 67 cents per bushel, the bank points out.

"The upward trend of business continues in evidence, with the customary midsummer slackness in some lines of industrial and mercantile movement," says the bank's summary. "Favorable symptoms in recent weeks have been the upswing in employment, increased retail sales, the buoyancy of foreign trade and public revenues, and improved wheat and grain prices.

"Production records have been well maintained, but with a slackening in some lines that brings the general level slightly under that of the preceding month. Newsprint (with an output of 229,600 tons), automobiles (13,905 units) and Central Electric Stations (1,707,745 k. w. hours) are examples of exceptionally high figures being followed by lower ones (though still very high), and metal shipments in general fell off, though copper, gold and zinc showed mounting outputs.

"Recovery in Canada's external commerce, which began two years ago, is still proceeding, the total value in June having been $104,828,000, compared with $80,091,000 in the same month last year, a gain of 30 per cent."

Nation Is Warned To Expand Trade

New York, July 24.—A warning that the rest of the world is moving ahead rapidly with the expansion of its foreign trade, while the United States is lagging behind, was sounded by James D. Mooney, president of the American Manfacturers Export Association and president of the General Motors Export Co., in an address to association members which was broadcast over a Nationwide network recently.

Mr. Mooney expressed confidence in the Administration's endeavors to correct this condition, and urged support of the efforts that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are now making to negotiate reciprocal trading agreements designed to give American farmers and industrialists their rightful place in the world markets.

"A great many foreign nations have seized the opportunity to make trading arrangements among themselves," Mr. Mooney said, "and these arrangements have resulted already in a substantial increase in their exchange of goods, while we have been sitting on the sidelines waiting for some sort of a miracle to happen."

Exports of Grain Rise 46,000 Bushels

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week totaled 227,000 bushels against 181,000 the previous week and 158,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparison between last week's exports and those for the week before: Barley 106,000 bushels against 33,000; corn 118,000, against 141,000; wheat 3,000, against 7,000; no exports of oats or of rye were reported for either week.

Canadian grains exported last week from United States ports totaled 480,000 bushels against 393,000, while exports of North American wheat flour were 25,000 barrels against 29,000 barrels.

A Famous Old Silent Picture Is to Be Filmed Again; Concerning a Few of Those Headline Salaries; Hollywood Close-Ups and Long-Shots.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, July 23. — Just about time for a good home, mother and family picture! Consequently that may be the reason why M.-G.-M. has set about clearing up the talkie rights for "The Old Nest," by Rupert Hughes, which was a most successful picture in the silents. It is said to have grossed a good round $1,000,000 even in the day when it was produced, which was about 1921.

CONSTANCE BENNETT.

The picture was made very shortly after its author became associated with the movies. He was brought out here at the time of the signing of a group of writers known as the Eminent Authors, when Samuel Goldwyn was operating the Goldwyn Studio, now M.-G.-M., at Culver City.

It is thought very possible that May Robson will be seen in the mother role in the film, when it is produced. The picture is distinctly in line with the campaign for clean movies.

Something About Salaries.

Fifty-one actors, 28 directors and 22 executives receive $75,000 or more a year. Can't list them all in the space of this column, but here are some. The top-notchers spoken of in the dispatches are presumed to be Will Rogers and Greta Garbo. Rogers is known to receive approximately $100,000 a picture, and Garbo $200,000. Maurice Chevalier, Constance Bennett, John Barrymore, Norma Shearer, Ann Harding, Wallace Beery, William Powell, Janet Gaynor, Edward G. Robinson, James Cagney, Clark Gable, Ruth Chatterton, whose stipends range from about $7,500 per week down to $2,500, all top the President's salary.

And executives, there are any number of them in the big money, including Louis B. Mayer, Irving Thalberg, Emanuel Cohen, Carl Laemmle, sr., Jack L. Warner, Winfield R. Sheehan, Adolph Zukor and Harry Cohn. Recent Federal Trade Commission report showed their salaries ranging from $100,000 up to $250,000 plus per year.

Novarro Finishes Tour.

Ramon Novarro has completed his concert tour in South America and is traveling on the ship Northern Prince, which is to arrive in New York Wednesday. Almost immediately he will come to Hollywood. His first picture will probably be "Tip-Toes," with Evelyn Laye, and after that "Her Excellency's Tobacco Shop."

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

"Just Out of College" finally has just about all its leading players. Ann Dvorak is now in the picture, joining Franchot Tone, Ross Alexander, Merwin Light, Nick Foran, Jean Muir and Margaret Lindsay. Alfred E. Green will direct the picture.

"Woman Hater" is the new title of "Sailor Beware," and Bing Crosby might (just might) play in the picture.

Sidney Fox is going back on the stage; she will fill a week's engagement at the Castle Theater in Long Branch, Long Island, in "The Pursuit of Happiness."

Wallace Beery flew to Idaho for a vacation, with his plane loaded with fishing tackle.

Twelve short comedies are announced for Columbia production—two each for Harry Landgon, Leon Errol and Walter Catlett, and four to be made by others.

"Stake Out" is the title of a new picture in which Johnny Mack Brown will play the leading role. It was written by Lambert Hillyer, who is also preparing Tim McCoy's third film.

There is a fair chance that Grace Moore will be seen in "Enter Madame" in place of Elissa Landi, as the requirements of the role are for a singing star. There is a deal on for Miss Moore's services. She had marked success in "One Night of Love," when it was previewed recently. Anyway, Miss Landi will not play in "Enter Madame," but in "Sacrifice."

No Minimum Prices Provided by Oil Code

The Petroleum Administrative Board has held that President Roosevelt's recent Executive order permitting bidders to quote Government agencies at prices 15 per cent below code minimums does not apply to the oil code. This stand was taken because the code does not provide minimum prices. The Post erroneously stated in a headline over this announcement printed last Sunday that the board had ruled that the industry can not quote prices below minimums fixed by the code.

Culbertson On Bridge

The Language of Bridge.

Contract Bridge has developed a vocabulary all its own and indeed it might well be said, without drawing too much upon the imagination, that it has created a complete language. All the phrases in common use have a specialized meaning. While a term may have one meaning under certain conditions, it may have a diametrically opposite meaning under other conditions. Take, for instance, the Double. In many instances, as all Bridge players know, a Double does not indicate faith in the ability of the doubler to defeat the contract undertaken, but on the contrary is an urgent request for partner to name a suit which promises hope of part-score or game to the doubling side. In other cases the Double is of course for the purpose of increasing anticipated penalties and it is the generally accepted procedure that when a player sitting Third Hand has bid a suit and has doubled an adverse game or part-score contract, the Double requires the original leader to open the bid suit.

However, there has been still a further development of the meaning of the Double, and now it is a generally accepted principle that when a player not in the lead doubles an adverse Slam contract, the Double is an urgent demand that the leader look over his hand carefully and then make a lead that would without the Double appear to be sheer suicide. In other words, in such instances the leader must make an unnatural lead. This convention, known as the Lead-Directing Slam Double, often is the only means by which an adverse contract can be defeated. It was used with effect on the hand below:

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable

The bidding: (Figure after bid refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

North	East	South	West
1♣	4♡	4♠(1)	Pass
4NT	Pass	5NT	Pass
7♠	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

West, after his partner's Double, considered the situation very carefully. Obviously, his partner did not wish the lead of a heart as that lead would have been the natural one had he not doubled. The diamond, which was an alternative lead, did not appear promising. The bids by North, East and South all suggested a somewhat freakish distribution of the cards. While there was no assurance of it, there was a bare possibility that East was void of clubs. In any event, this appeared to be the most probable meaning of the Penalty Double, and West thus led a club, which East ruffed, thus defeating the contract. This lead, without the Double, would never have been made.

This Grand Slam was bid and made at other tables (the deal was played in a Duplicate game), since there was no Double and consequently no club lead. With North as Declarer seven spades can not be defeated by any lead.

It should also be noted that, even if he could have seen all the cards, East would have known that he had nothing to lose by doubling the contract of seven spades, for although seven notrump can be made, that score is not as great as seven spades, due to South's honor holding.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer
North and South vulnerable

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.
